Arsenal Fired By Japanese Near Peiping; Drive Feared

Wanpinghsien Shelling Answers Refusal to Withdraw.

Chinese Silenced In Fierce Fight

2 Other Artillery Clashes Reported; Eastward Road Attacked.

By the Associated Press.

Peiping, July 20.—Japan's army in North China fired the garrison of Wanpinghsien today, beginning an offensive which Chinese feared would culminate in a frontal attack against the ancient and walled city of Peiping.

The Japanese brought artillery into the field and shelled the Chinese garrison for more than two hours.

There was bitter fighting about the garrison, and the marble balustrades of Marco Polo Bridge, 10 miles west of Peiping. The present crisis was the result of clashes between Chinese and Japanese troops on July 7.

Negotiations between local Chinese and Japanese officials failed to establish peace and the Japanese command issued an ultimatum to Chinese troops to withdraw from the trouble area.

Fire Continues.

They refused, the Domei (Japanese) news agency said, and opened fire on Japanese troops with trench mortars. The fire continued at intervals through last night.

The ultimatum expired at noon and two and one-half hours later the Japanese troops, 1,000 men, moved against Wanpingchsien.

Shells dropped into the garrison and fired both arsenal and barracks, Domei said. The Chinese guns within the garrison were silenced, Japanese sources said, and the city and nearby Marco Polo Bridge were damaged heavily.

Firing still was audible late tonight. It seemed to center about Wanpinghsien and the highway to Peiping, a little more than 2 miles from the city's gates.

Battle Near Highway.

Shell fire also could be heard from the vicinity of the highway to Nanyuan, southeast of Peiping. Japanese counted one soldier dead and one wounded as their losses for the day.

A third clash was reported in the vicinity of Lukouchiao about 7 p. m. Japanese artillery replied, silencing Chinese mortar fire and destroying two Chinese observation posts.

Chinese within Peiping were tense, believing that the city soon might be subjected to attack.

Women's organizations within the city pledged that "200,000,000 women in China will urge their husbands and instruct their sons to abandon the hearth of home and take to the fields to resist Japanese aggression."

They sent a telegram to the North China garrison commander, Gen. Sung Cheh-yuan, urging him to resist "Japanese attacks with all the resources at his disposal."

Tokyo Cabinet Meets.

Tokyo, July 20 (AP).—Cabinet ministers held three emergency sessions today as Japanese forces in North China launched a "punitive" expedition against Chinese west of Peiping.

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota reported the results of the meetings to Emperor Hirohito, but there was no public indication of their nature.

The Domei news agency reported from Fengtai, Japanese field headquarters in North China, the Japanese turned their artillery on Chinese troop concentrations west of Peiping as a "punitive measure" after a Chinese attack.

Chiang Confers.

Nanking, July 20 (AP).—Chiang Kai-Shek, premier-generalissimo of the Nanking (Central) government, participated in a council of state for the first time tonight since the clashes with Japan in North China.

The deliberations were secret but it was believed the ministers discussed Chiang's Japanese policy as stated by him yesterday in a public address at Kuling. In it he reiterated China's desire to preserve peace but declared she would fight if necessary to resist Japanese aggression.

The premier returned here today with Mme. Chiang to take a direct hand in settling the crisis as the foreign office warned that Japanese military operations in the Tientsin-

Mattern's Flight Permit Dubious

By the Associated Press.

Commerce Department officials said yesterday there is little chance that Jimmie Mattern will be permitted to make a proposed North Pole flight to Moscow.

These authorities, wanting to prevent recurrance of such air tragedies as the loss of Amelia Earhart, said it also is doubtful projected world flights by Howard Hughes and Dick Merrill will be authorized.

Similar views were expressed regarding a proposed globe-circling flight by Merrill and Mark Hellinger, newspaper columnist.

D. C. Teacher Charged With Abducting Child

Mrs. Campbell Thought Boy Was Her Nephew, Lawyer Says.

Mrs. Marian W. Campbell, 40, of 721 Varnum street northwest, a Washington high school teacher for more than 14 years, last night was charged with abducting a minor child and driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicants. She had been held in connection with the alleged abduction of Philip Shane, 20 months old, of Beltsville.

In the Hyattsville Jail, where she was taken by a county policeman after the Shane baby had been rescued, bond was set at $500 on each charge.

News that the woman in the bizarre case was the popular Mrs. Campbell brought a shock to thousands of Washingtonians who studied art under her either at the old Western High School, where she was detailed for 12 years, or more recently at the new Woodrow Wilson High School in Chevy Chase.

A member of the Woodrow Wilson faculty said last night Mrs. Campbell had been under a heavy strain for sometime. This was caused partly, he said, by her separation from her husband and illness in the family. Her nerves were in such bad shape, he said, a doctor had prescribed a modest amount of liquor for her daily.

The powerfully built Mrs. Campbell, who had been taken into custody Monday night, summoned her brother, Francis William Watson, to Hyattsville several hours later.

MRS. MARIAN W. CAMPBELL.

Watson in turn retained John S. White, a Hyattsville attorney.

White said last night, after talking with Mrs. Campbell in jail, he was convinced worry and the long heat spell had combined to "confuse" the teacher.

"She told me," Attorney White said, "that she thought the little Shane boy was her nephew, a youngster about the same age. She

Maryland University Head Says All Served Prince Georges Well.

In a turbulent court session featured by the introduction of testimony indicating political influence in the Prince Georges County police department, Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, yesterday took the stand at Upper Marlboro, Md., to defend the seven men on trial for conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Dr. Byrd, known more familiarly throughout the country as "Curly," aided the defense as a character witness. The university executive said:

"I have known practically all of the defendants and I believe they have served their county well."

It was the second time Dr. Byrd had been called on the stand. Last Friday there was no response when the court bailiff shouted;

"H. Curly Byrd."

The influence of politics in the police department was testified to by Warren Peake, one of the four indicted policemen, during cross-examination by Ogle Marbury, special prosecutor.

Marbury asked if it was customary to charge motorists with a serious traffic offense and then reduce the charge and accept minimum collateral on the lesser charge.

Peake responded:

"If the proper persons are interested. There are a lot of persons in the county politically interested."

Lengthy cross-examination of Peake and two other defendants, Herbert J. Moffat, former justice of the peace at Hyattsville, and Elmer Pumphrey, former bondsman, of Suitland, occupied almost the entire day.

Questioned by the prosecution, Moffat admitted reducing a speeding charge against Charles Hamilton, colored, 1400 block of T street northwest, from exceeding 60 miles an hour to exceeding 45 miles.

After he had reduced the charge, Moffat said he put $26.70 in the jacket and turned it over to the police court to be forfeited as collateral.

William C. Fraser, Baltimore auditor, testifying for the State last week, declared that no record of the Hamilton case nor any trace of the money had ever been discovered in the police court files.

In two cases where he is alleged to have accepted $101.70 for fines and costs on traffic charges, Pumphrey explained that he merely offered to take the money to the police court to put it up as collateral.

The arrested persons in these cases were Stanley Fox, and Raymond Iannucci. Both obtained receipts on which Pumphrey identified his signatures.

Several times Judge William Loker interrupted, once asking Pumphrey how he knew the fine would be exactly $101.70 and not more.

Pumphrey nodded his head.

"Yes," he replied.

3 Die, 3 Injured As Train Hits Car

Atlanta, July 20 (U.P.).—A woman and two children were killed tonight when the Seaboard Air Line's crack southbound train, the Robert E. Lee, struck their car at a grade-crossing near here.

A second woman and two other children were rushed to a hospital in critical condition.

The dead, all of Atlanta, were:

Mrs. Osborne B. Griffin, 30.

Grace Griffin, 5, her daughter.

Annette Holt, 6 months old.

Mrs. Tom F. Holt, 28, mother of the baby girl, was critically injured. The other children who were in a critical condition were Norman Griffin, 13, and Morris Holt, 8.

Old D. C. Law Invoked in War Upon Abattoir

Seal Revives Act of 1898 as Weapon; Drawn Up to Protect Fish.

The District plans to use a 39-year-old law as a surprise weapon to prevent operation of an abattoir here, it was learned last night. The statute was drawn up to protect fish.

Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal, who earlier in the day had urged a group of officials and citizens to press the fight against plans of the Adolf Gobel Co. to build a slaughterhouse at Benning and Anacostia roads, discovered the obscure law, which heretofore has not been invoked in the long drawn out controversy.

Enacted by Congress in 1898 and entitled "An act for the protection of fish in the District of Columbia and for the maintenance of a permanent spawning ground in the Potomac River in said District, and for other purposes," the statute provides:

"No person shall allow any tar, oil, ammoniacal liquor or other waste products . . . or any waste product whatever of any mechanical, manufacturing or refining establishment to flow into or be deposited in Rock Creek or the Potomac River or any of its tributaries within the District of Columbia, or into any pipe or conduit leading to the same."

Court Ruling Cited.

A study by the United States Public Health Service last spring revealed that "it would be impossible to keep a certain amount of polluting material from reaching Piney Run," which runs through the abattoir site and empties into the Anacostia River.

Seal pointed out that the Court of Appeals, in upholding the act of 1989, decided that it was the intent of Congress not only to protect fish in the Potomac and tributaries but also to keep the waters free from pollution. He clearly intimated that if operation of the slaughterhouse leads to the adverse conditions warned against by the Public Health Service, the Gobel company must face the consequences.

The corporation counsel and Thomas S. Settle, secretary of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, were spokesmen for the committee which discussed strategy earlier in the day in Seal's office.

Fight for Bill Continues.

An attempt also will be made, the committee decided, to obtain action on the "nuisance industries" bill introduced in the Senate, but now pigeon-holed in committee. Failing in this, legislative prophylaxis again will be sought at the next session of Congress.

Others present at the two-hour conference were Charles F. Consaul, vice chairman of the Committee of 100 on the Federal City; Miss Harlean James, executive secretary of the American Planning and Civic Association; Howard A.

Rebels Seize Strategic Hill Near Madrid

By the Associated Press.

Madrid, July 20.—Insurgents captured Peak 660 today in a fierce attack east of Villanueva de la Canada, an official government communique reported tonight.

Defending government forces claimed to have inflicted heavy losses on the insurgents in the severe fighting for possession of the hill 15 miles northwest of Madrid.

The government communique said there had been intensive artillery bombardments on the front west of Madrid, where heavily reinforced insurgent troops are battling to regain ground taken in a government drive.

Guadalajara, northeast of Madrid, was bombed by insurgent planes today, the government said, setting fire to a home for infants and aged. Some 300 children were saved from the burning buildings.

The glare of burning munitions dumps and gasoline stores at Leganes, south of the capital near Getafe, was visible from Madrid. They apparently had been fired by a government shell.

Loyalist Lines Firm.

Government lines at Brunete, 12 miles west of Madrid, held firm before the insurgent forces which Gen. Franco bolstered with seasoned reinforcements hurried from less active fronts.

In addition, Gen. Jose Miaja's troops pressed on the Corunna highway northwest of Madrid. A heavy artillery duel thundered throughout the day east of Las Rozas.

An insurgent air raid on the east coast, however, cost at least two score lives at Tarragona, south of Barcelona, when a fleet of insurgent planes bombed the city twice. Forty-five bodies had been recovered from the ruins and 110, largely civilians, were wounded.

The French consulate was reported to have been badly damaged by some of the 80 bombs dropped.

2,000 Rebels Slain, Claim.

St. Jean de Luz, France, July 20 (AP).—Reports reaching here from insurgent headquarters at Salamanca tonight told of violent fighting and insurgent gains on the battle front west of Madrid.

The insurgents asserted their troops, in 48 hours of almost ceaseless fighting, had advanced to positions east of the towns of Villanueva del Pardillo, Villanueva de la Canada and Brunete. These towns are on the line of heavy fighting some 15 miles west of Madrid.

Madrid reports claimed all insurgent efforts to retake towns captured by the government two weeks ago were unavailing, and said insurgent losses during the counter-offensive were possibly as high as 2,000 killed.

New Neutrality Split.

London, July 20 (AP).—A sub-committee of Europe's "hands-off Spain" committee split into two blocs tonight over the British attempt to patch up the tattered fabric of nonintervention.

Italy and Germany, which have consistently taken parallel action in Spanish neutrality questions and which quit the committee's naval patrol of Spain, were understood to have lined up on one side against the seven other nations in the group, led by Great Britain.

In one quarter the development was interpreted as meaning the breakdown of neutrality negotiations. Lord Plymouth, British representative and committee chairman, adjourned the meeting to consult his government, hoping to hold another session Thursday, however.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons only last night his scheme for revitalizing Spanish nonintervention must be accepted in full or it would collapse.

Harold Gatty Wed To Sugar Heiress

Gatty, companion of the late Wiley Post on a 1931 aerial globe circuit, and Miss Fenna Bolderhey, 23, daughter of a Dutch sugar planter, were married by the mayor at the summer city hall in Queens.

Swing of 7 Senators Dooms Court Bill; Insist on Action; Caucus to Pick Leader Today

Harrison Apparently Has Slight Edge on Eve of Balloting.

President Insists He Still Is Neutral

Secret Votes Will Be Taken First Time in 25 Years.

By Franklyn Waltman.

The bitterest Senate leadership fight in 25 years will come to a conclusion today when Senate Democrats hold a party caucus to decide between Senator Pat Harrison, Mississippi veteran, and Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, assistant leader.

Both sides last night claimed victory and observers generally agreed the result would be determined by one or two votes. The Harrison campaign managers claimed 38 pledged votes, exactly a majority of the present Democratic membership of the Senate. The Barkley forces were more extravagant in their claims, insisting their candidate would receive between 40 and 42 votes. The Barkley list, however, was reported to include several doubtful Senators.

In some quarters it was believed Senator Harrison had a slight edge in today's balloting, particularly since Senator Barkley late yesterday agreed that the votes of absent Senators should be counted in the tabulation. Two of Harrison's supporters—Senators John H. Bankhead and Carl Hayden—are ill.

Retains Committee Rule.

Should Harrison be elected leader he would continue as chairman of the Finance Committee, to which Senator William H. King, next in line on that committee has agreed. For retaining his committee chairmanship Harrison has ample precedent. Indeed, the fact that the late Senator Joe Robinson did not hold a standing committee chairmanship as well as the floor leadership was an exception rather than the rule. At the time of his death Robinson was chairman of the committee on reorganization.

It was recalled yesterday that Nelson Aldrich, when majority Senate leader was chairman of the Finance Committee; Thomas Martin, as Senate leader during the Wilson Administration, was chairman of the busy Appropriations Committee; Henry Cabot Lodge was chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee; Charles Curtis was chairman of the Rules Committee and James E. Watson was chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee. Oscar W. Underwood, when majority leader of the House, also was chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

President Roosevelt, questioned at his press conference yesterday, indicated he was hands-off the fight, but he did so none too firmly. Ever since he wrote the "dear Alben" letter to Barkley last week, referring to him as "acting majority leader in the Senate," the President has been regarded as preferring the Kentuckian.

Explained to Harrison.

The President the next day, however, told Senator Harrison that such an interpretation of his letter was incorrect and that he was under the impression—which was erroneous—that Barkley was acting leader. He said he addressed the letter to Barkley only because he thought he was the appropriate person through whom to transmit his views regarding the Supreme Court plan to Senate Democrats.

All this, Senator Harrison explained with the President's permission to the press last Friday. When asked yesterday to tell his press conference what he told Senator Harrison, the President replied that the Mississippian already had done so.

Asked if it were to be understood that he was hands-off the Senate leadership fight, the President replied that was correct—that his position was the same as it had been in the House leadership fight last winter. This remark was regarded by some as ambiguous because on Capitol Hill the President was widely believed to have preferred the selection of Representative Sam Rayburn, of Texas, who won.

The President, however, denied he had ever heard of any White

D. C. 'Mayors' Asked to Explain Conflicting Attitudes on Taxes

Senate, House Committee Heads' Advice Sought by Commissioners; Hazen Assails Move to Drop Bill, Raise Property Levy.

By James D. Secrest.

Confused by the contradictory attitude of Congress, the District Commissioners will solicit advice this week from Washington's two unofficial "mayors"—chairmen of the Senate and House District Committees.

Melvin C. Hazen, president of the board, said that the conference will be arranged as soon as possible at the convenience of Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, and Representative Palmisano (Democrat), of Maryland.

Genuinely alarmed over the threat of "municipal insolvency," the District heads were further disturbed over the prediction of Palmisano that no local tax bill will be passed at this session of Congress.

The House District Committee chairman suggested that the realty and personal property tax rate be hiked to $2.20 and that the tax measure be dropped.

Hazen assailed Palmisano's proposal as "illogical" and stated that an increase of 70 cents in the realty tax rate would be "highly unfair" and "confiscatory."

"If Congress doesn't want to legislate for the District," he said, "let it give the Commissioners broader powers to administer its own affairs."

Hazen stated, however, that unless Congress acts in the meanwhile the Districts heads will be forced to fix a tax rate by August 1. He did not intimate how much this may be.

Meanwhile the hope of Senate action on the omnibus tax bill appeared to depend upon the outcome of compromise moves on the court

Painters Strike To Stop Use of Nonunion Men

A general strike of all union painters in Washington was called yesterday as part of the drive of the painters' union to force contractors on Government projects to employ only union labor.

Between 500 and 600 painters and plasterers, members of Local 368, laid aside their brushes and tools at 1:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon and walked out. Order for the strike was issued earlier in the day through Bryce B. Holcombe, business manager of the union.

The strikers quit both public and private jobs. Areas effected by the walkout, coming within the jurisdiction of the union, include nearby Maryland as far north as Laurel and nearby Virginia, as far south as below Alexandria.

The strike climaxed a controversy between the union and the firms of William Wilson & Son, of Atlanta, and Coons & Raptis, of Brooklyn, N. Y., contractors on jobs at the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the City Postoffice.

Threat of a general sympathy strike of painters on all Government projects throughout the Nation unless adjustment is made came last night from Holcombe.

Holcombe asserted he was prepared to fly to the national headquarters of his organization in Lafayette, Ind., and confer with L. P. Lindolof, the president. If Lindolof's approval was obtained, work on 312 Government structures, as far as painting and plastering are concerned, would be halted.

Projects which would be affected from coast to coast would include 11 PWA jobs, totaling $11,680,000; 1934 projects, totaling 59, at a value of $25,000,000; 1935 projects, num-

22 Hurt in Crash Of Roller Coasters

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—Twenty-two persons were reported injured, none seriously, in a collision between two roller coaster cars at Riverview Amusement Park tonight.

The accident occurred on one of the "high rides." One car plunged into the rear of another. The injured were removed to a hospital where attendants said a preliminary check revealed no major injuries.

Ford Company, Eight to Face Assault Trials

'One-Man Grand Jury' Names Group in Union Beatings.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, July 20.—A common pleas judge ruled today that the Ford Motor Co. and eight individuals must face trial for the beating of United Automobile workers near gates of the River Rouge plant May 26.

Judge Ralph W. Liddy, who conducted a month-long one-man grand jury inquiry which resulted in an assault warrant, and then presided at examination of the defendants, set bond at $500 for the individuals pending trial in the September term of the Wayne County Circuit Court.

Although nearly a score of union workers were beaten and chased away when they tried to distribute handbills to Ford employes at the huge plant in suburban Dearborn, the warrant charged only an assault on William Merriweather, who suffered two broken vertebrae.

Everett Moore, of the Ford service department, which polices company property, six other Ford employes and a former newspaper circulation employe were the individuals named.

Harry S. Toy, attorney for the Ford men, said he would attack validity of the warrant in circuit court.

Earlier Stanley Ziek, former foreman in the Highland Park plant, had testified he resigned after he was forced by his superiors to discharge the veteran workmen. He said Dennis McKinney, a superintendent, had told him:

"After all this NLRB stuff blows over only loyal men will work at

Virginian Is Jailed For Auto Injuries Which Killed Wife

Staunton, Va., July 20 (AP).—After dismissing a charge of manslaughter, Augusta County Trial Justice W. Terrell Sheehan late today sentenced Ira B. Fridley to serve ten days in jail, to pay a fine of $100 and revoked his privilege of securing a driver's permit for six months upon finding him guilty of reckless driving and operating a car without a permit.

The charges grew out of fatal injuries sustained by Fridley's wife, an expectant mother, at Augusta Springs on July 10, when she ran in front of the car driven by Fridley.

Long Controversy Held Unnecessary

Agree in Next Few Days or Abandon Struggle, Their Ultimatum.

By Robert C. Albright.

A conclusive "finis" last night apparently was written across the Administration's substitute court bill, in its present form, by a series of developments culminating in decisive action by a little group of "noncommittal" Senators.

The tide definitely turned when a delegation of seven Senators, holding the balance of power in the court fight, informed Vice President Garner they will vote to send the bill back to committee rather than prolong the bitter party court rift.

In the delegation were Senator Herring, of Iowa, previously listed as supporting the substitute plan; Senators Brown, of Michigan; Andrews, of Florida; Johnson of Colorado, and Overton, of Louisiana, who have been "noncommittal," and Bulow, of South Dakota, and Adams, of Colorado, who have been opposed to the plan.

Russell at Conference.

An eighth "noncommittal" Senator—Russell, of Georgia—attended an earlier conference of the group but did not go with them to Garner's office.

Garner last night carried word of their action to a White House conference attended by the President pro tem of the Senate, Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, and two Democrats seeking the leadership toga—Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, and Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky.

In the presence of the President it was decided to let the court controversy go over until after today's Senate leadership caucus. The entire legislative situation was reviewed in relation to the court bill.

Previously an informed Administration official announced "this thing is going to work out with surprisingly satisfactory results to all concerned."

Decision of the so-called noncommittal Senators was reached at an unexpected conference of the group. Later they dropped into Garner's office in a body to tell him what they had done.

On one thing the entire group was agreed—that they would vote to recommit the substitute court plan rather than permit indefinite continuance of a debate they believe is unnecessarily destroying party unity.

Two or three in the delegation said they were willing to wait two or three days to see if the Administration could successfully frame another substitute, effecting beneficial court reform without enlarging the Supreme Court.

Gain for Opposition.

One or two others favored instructing the Judiciary Committee, in the motion to recommit, to consider the possibility of a constitutional amendment effecting necessary reforms.

But the effect of their central decision to vote to shelve the present bill was to assure the opposition of the votes they needed and had hitherto considered "doubtful."

On learning of their action, Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, liberal leader of the opposition, declared:

"The bill is dead. There will be an early motion to recommit, and it may come this week."

The Vice President was informed plainly by the deleation that unless some substitute satisfactory to the Senate is advanced in the next few days, they will cast their votes for a motion to recommit the pending bill.

In a word, he was told that this group of Senators saw no reason to remain indefinitely in Washington entangled in a controversy they regarded as unnecessary.

Senator Edward R. Burke, of Nebraska, a leader of the court plan opposition, said the development made it "absolutely certain that the opposition now has enough margin to send the bill back to the judiciary committee and end its consideration this session."

Burke said proponents of the bill "seem to be floundering around in the dark." Prior to the meeting of the noncommittal group, Burke

Roosevelt Denies Extra Cost Was Involved In Navy's Search for Miss Earhart, Noonan

The search of vast reaches of the Pacific for Amelia Earhart involved no additional cost to the Navy, President Roosevelt declared yesterday. Furthermore, he added, the Navy would do the same thing for any citizen, rich or poor, whose life was in danger.

The President's attention was called to a published dispatch from Honolulu, stating that the Navy's search, now ended, had cost some $4,000,000. In reply, he declared every Navy plane has to do so many hours of flying anyway, and consequently there was no additional cost there.

With regard to the fuel oil consumed, he said the Navy was on a very skimpy allowance, and the search meant a slightly faster use of oil than would have been used otherwise, due to the speed with which the airplane Lexington crossed the Pacific to join the search, but the fuel consumption was no greater than it would have been in maneuvers, so the humanitarian undertaking involved no extra cost on that score, he said.

It was a sad mission, the President continued, especially in view of the failure to find the noted aviatrix and her navigator, but valuable training experience resulted to the naval forces.

The Lexington's feat in getting away from Los Angeles on such short notice, getting her planes and other supplies aboard and departing in a matter of only 16 hours was called amazing. Throughout the search, the reporters were told, the Lexington did a fine job.

The President's comment was prompted by reference to "House mutterings" over the cost of the search.

Representative Scott (Democrat), California, last week asked the

By Sidney Olson.

Representative Marvin Jones, of Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, yesterday introduced a new general farm bill patterned along President Roosevelt's recommendation that Congress legislate to stabilize farm incomes and farm prices.

The measure was drafted to effect the Administration's "ever-normal granary" program by providing for the storage of bumper crop surpluses against lean years in order to assure consumers of food-supply stability.

The ever normal granary program would operate for wheat, corn, cotton, rice and tobacco.

When the granary overflowed processing taxes would begin to operate on wheat, cotton, rice, tobacco and hogs. The hog tax would be on the basis that most of the corn crop goes to market in the form of hogs. Tax proceeds then would be distributed among complying farmers and used to move surpluses into foreign and domestic markets.

Production Control.

Crop production control, in a voluntary form, along lines operated under the amended soil conservation act, would be imposed on the Nation's farm lands, with benefits and cash grants made to farmers who comply with conservation rulings, storage and marketing quota regulations and acreage quotas.

Complying farmers who stored surplus products would be eligible for commodity loans, while cash benefits would go to farmers who complied with a provision requiring storage of 20 per cent of their crops in bumper years.

Limit of $10,000.

A new ceiling of $10,000 would be placed on soil conservatoin payments to individual farmers. Only landlords sharing benefits with tenants would be exempt under Department of Agriculture regulations.

Secretary Wallace would be given sweeping powers to fix acreage and marketing and storage quotas for major agricultural commodities and pay cash benefits.

Chairman Jones, who did not indicate whether his measure had Administration approval, said he would press committee action this session.

The ranking minority member of the committee, Representative Clifford Hope, of Kansas, gave the bill offhand approval yesterday, declaring it followed a plank in last year's Republican platform.

The processing taxes to be applied when the ever-normal granary's needs had been satisfied would be 2 cents per pound on cotton, 10 cents a bushel on wheat, and 25 cents a hundred pounds on hogs.

Provision Lacking.

While the bill followed many sections of the American Farm Bureau Federation's measure, prepared with the approval of Secretary Wallace, it did not include a provision to pay cash benefits to the farmers from the Federal Treasury when farm prices fell below the 1909-1914 parity level.

Farmers could not plant a larger acreage than that fixed by the department for his farm if he wished to remain eligible for benefit payments. The totals of national acreage eligible for benefits were set at:

Cotton, 45,500,000; wheat, 67,400,000; field corn, 102,500,000; rice 925,000; flue-cured tobacco, 1,080,000; Maryland tobacco, 39,00; burley tobacco, 525,000; other tobacco, 480,000.

The marketing quota system would apply when production exceeded supply in normal years by the following amounts:

Cotton, 15 per cent; wheat, 20 per cent; corn, 10 per cent; tobacco, 10 per cent, and rice, 10 per cent.

During the day Alabama Representatives urged Jones to report a general farm program for enactment at this session of Congress, and Representative John W. Flannagan, jr. (Democrat), of Bristol, Va., said, "We are going to get a farm bill passed at this session of Congress."

Flannagan said tobacco State Representatives had been promised any plan they worked out for tobacco control would be included in the bill.

First Lady Plans Motherhood Article

New York, July 20 (AP).—George Bye, agent for Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, said today she had agreed to write a 200-word article for Sam Goldwyn, motion picture producer, on motherhood.

"Mrs. Roosevelt, along with a number of other prominent women, agreed to write the articles," Bye said. "She has no contract with Mr. Goldwyn and none is contemplated."

"I handled the negotiations and there was no suggestion Mrs. Roosevelt would write motion picture advertising. Neither was there any understanding that her writing would appear as advertisements in newspapers and National magazines."

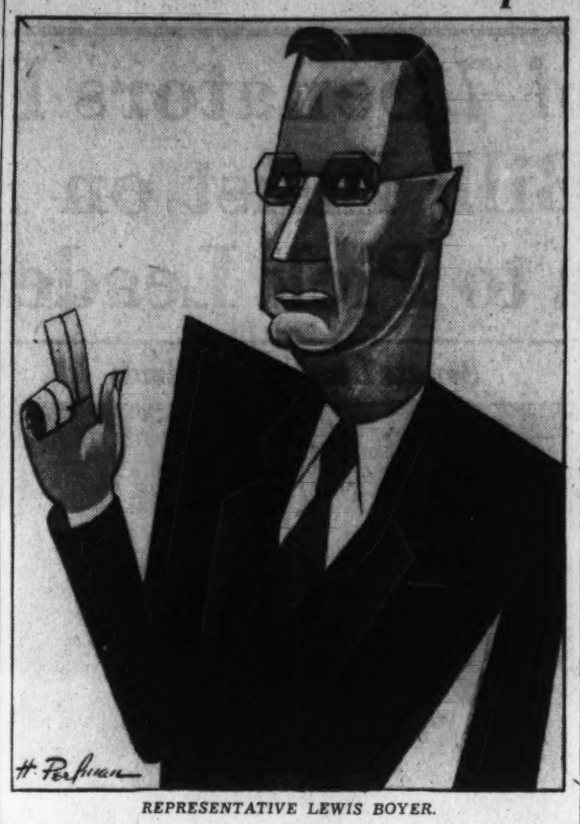
Morris Appointed To Welfare Board

Edgar Morris, former president of the Washington Board of Trade, was appointed yesterday to the Public Welfare Board by the District Commissioners. He will fill the unexpired term of Dr. Worth B. Daniels, who resigned, effective July 1. The term expires in 1940.

Morris, a leader in civic activities, is president of the Edgar Morris Sales Co. He is a director of the Washington Boys Club and a trustee of the Washington Community Chest.

New Faces in Congress

Rep. Boyer Backs Roosevelt, Even to His Favorite Sport



REPRESENTATIVE LEWIS BOYER.

By Edward T. Folliard

Representative Lewis Leonard Boyer (Democrat), of Quincy, Ill., is such a thorough-going New Dealer that he even sees eye to eye with the President in the matter of recreation. Every time a House recess permits it, Boyer goes fishing. He journeys down to Chesapeake Bay after hardhead and trout, usually in company with fellow fishermen in the House.

Last week-end he went to Ocean City and caught some bluefish. Rather, Boyer said he caught some. The soul of truth in other things, Boyer, so his friends say, is utterly unreliable when reporting on his fish ctach.

On days when Congress is at work, Representative Boyer is a very industrious fellow. He gets down to his office at 8 o'clock every morning and he remains on the Hill until the gavel has fallen.

The House has yet to hear him make a speech, although out in central Illinois they say he can make a good one. He made up his mind at the outset to keep his mouth closed during this Congress. Older members advised him a policy of silence was best for a freshman until he learned the ropes.

It is said back home that "Lou" Boyer literally lifted Adams County out of the mud. He was for 22 years superintendent of highways in that county, and his monument is the splendid system of concrete roads now gridironing an area which, when he started back in 1915, knew only the primitive ruts of the horse and buggy era.

It was this highway job that served as Boyer's springboard to the House of Representatives. Riding the Roosevelt bandwagon, he pleaded for a better deal for the farmer and the working man, and when the votes were counted he had squeaked in over his Republican opponent by 1,816 votes.

Boyer is a self-made man in the best sense of that term. He was born on a farm in Adams County, Ill., May 19, 1886. He was educated in the rural schools, and at the age of 18 he became a teacher. While he was teaching, he studied civil engineering. After passing a civil service test, he was appointed superintendent of highways of Adams County in March, 1915, a post he held until a month or so after his election to Congress in 1936.

This was one of two honors that came to him in that year, the other being his election as State president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Mrs. Boyer is the former Effie Proctor. They have one son, John, 21, who serves as his father's secretary. The family lives at the Broadmoor Apartments, and the athletic-looking Boyer often may be seen hiking through the Rock Creek woods in back of that structure.

Roosevelt Grants Pardons to Two In Ohio Robbery

President Roosevelt has granted unconditional pardons to Anthony (Tony) Labrizetta, 34, and George Sargent, 39, of Akron, Ohio, serving 25-year sentences in Cuyahoga County Jail at Cleveland, for a $125,000 mail robbery they did not commit.

Announcement of the pardons was made by Attorney General Cummings, who recommended the men be freed when it was learned the sensational crime, which was committed at Warren, Ohio, in April, 1935, was the work of a notorious gang.

The huge sum, in currency and bonds, was taken from a mail truck after the driver had been forced into a lonely garage. The cash was part of the Republic Steel Corporation's pay roll. It was not recovered.

Brother Ambrose Made Xaverian Order Leader

Baltimore, July 20 (AP).—The election of the Very Rev. Brother Ambrose, C. F. X., to be superior general of the Xaverian Order was announced today in the Catholic Review.

The announcement of the election, held in Bruges, Belgium, was made through the provincial headquarters of the Xaverian Brothers at Mount St. Joseph's College.

Brother Ambrose succeeds the Very Rev. Brother Paul, C. F. X., who was superior general for eight years.

Woman Author to Wed Divorced New Yorker

Reno, Nev., July 20 (AP).—Mrs. Fannie K. Gatchell, prominent Ossining, N. Y., author and magazine writer known as Fannie Kilbourne, was named as the prospective bride of Henry Allen Schubart, 48, formerly of New York City, on a marriage license issued here today.

Shortly before, Schubart was granted a divorce from Mrs. Pauline W. Schubart, of New ork. He charged cruelty.

Ushers, Doormen Join D. C. Stage Employes' Union

The International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, an A. F. of L. affiliate, has come out from behind the wings to organize "front-of-the-house" workers in local theaters. Formerly restricted to stage hands, motion-picture operators and musicians, the I. A. T. S. E. already have signed up about 90 per cent of the ushers, cashiers, matrons and stage doormen in the District's six largest movie houses, both union officials and theater executives say.

The new organization applied yesterday for an I. A. T. S. E. charter. Employers are making no move to halt organization, according to theater officials here.

Interests of All American Republics Co-ordinated, Undersecretary Says.

By substituting the "Good Neighbor" policy for "our earlier domineering role," the United States has brought about an unprecedented change in international relations, has helped to revitalize international morality and has also gained friends, Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, declared last night.

Recalling President Roosevelt's promulgation of the new policy, in which the Chief Executive said the good neighbor is "the neighbor who resolutely respects himself, and, because he does so, respects the rights of others," Welles, in a radio talk, said:

"I know of no previous instance where the adoption by a government of a new basis for its foreign policy has more rapidly produced concrete, practical benefits . . .

"Within four short years there has been created within the New World a friendship between our 21 democracies which had never previously existed, and an approximation of interests, both political and economic, which has not only been something new, but something of a palpable, tangible advantage to us all."

Hails "Sincerity."

This Government has followed the course charted by the President "with sincerity and consistency," he declared. In relationships with the other American republics "we have endeavored to remove by friendly negotiations all of those causes for misunderstanding and prejudice—all of those injustices—which had previously beclouded our relations with our neighbors to the south."

The "Good Neighbor" doctrine is not a one-way policy, he reminded his hearers.

"It is inherently reciprocal in its nature. If this Government, in its dealings, with its American neighbors, not only treats them with scrupulous respect for their sovereignty, for their rights and for the rights of their nationals, but also bears in mind their exigencies, the difficulties, economic or political, which they may from time to time encounter, it has the right to expect similar respect, equivalent consideration, for itself and for its nationals."

Praises Conference.

He expressed confidence "that in this new era of good feeling which is so rapidly pervading this continent" the reciprocal obligations are fully recognized and will be observed by all the American republics.

He added:

"The real significance of the conference of Buenos Aires for the maintenance of peace has not yet perhaps been duly appreciated. The millennium has, of course, not yet arrived. There still exist serious controversies rankling between some of the American nations, which, until they are solved, must continue to preoccupy the minds of all of those countless men and women in the Americas who demand the preservation of peace. But still there resulted from that conference a new psychology, a new feeling of solidarity on this continent, a new realization of the imperative need for an agreement upon certain standards of procedure in international life if the conditions which engender peace are to be created—all of these quite as valuable as the treaties and conventions therein adopted."

Hull Names Dunn 'Political Adviser'

A new office in the State Department, that of adviser on political relations, was created by Secretary Hull yesterday. James Clement Dunn was appointed to the position.

Dunn has been serving as head of the Division of European Affairs since that division was created several weeks ago. Previously he was head of the Division of Western European Affairs, which was consolidated with the new European Affairs Division.

Jay Pierrepont Moffat, who has been consul general at Sydney, Australia, was appointed chief of the Division of European Affairs to succeed Dunn.

THE "Freshman Class" of the Senate yesterday pledged allegiance to its principal "teacher," Senator Norris (Independent Republican), of Nebraska, and sent the veteran fighter in liberal causes a letter wishing him speedy recovery from the illness which forced him to cut short his stay in Washington.

Senator Smathers (Democrat), New Jersey, made public a letter, signed by 13 of the 14 first-year Democrats in the Senate, which was sent to Norris yesterday. Smathers was instructed to prepare the letter at a recent meeting of the group.

Senator Andrews (Democrat), Florida, who was unable to attend the meeting, was the only Freshman who did not sign the message.

"It may interest you to know," the group wrote, "that we the undersigned, representing the 'Freshman Class,' the last group of the United States Senators to come to that body from the people, met this morning and pledged ourselves to continue the fight for liberal and progressive policies as exemplified by your record in public life.

"We acknowledge our debt of gratitude to your gallant leadership which has brought so many liberal ideals into a reality for the betterment of the Government and benefit of the people."

He appreciates this indorsement, he added, but definitely will not run.

CREATION OF A "FRANKLIN D. Roosevelt Foundation" to establish a preparatory school in Tennessee for students of the American continents was proposed in a bill offered yesterday by Representative Atkinson, of Tennessee. The bill contained one of the most elaborately prepared project specifications in such a measure in years. Right off, it named Gen. John J. Pershing as first chairman of the foundation. Providing for 1,200 students, it proposes a $100,000,000 endowment, in the form of 4 per cent, 100 year bonds. The Federal Government's share would be $70,000,000. Tennessee would put up $6,500,000, and each of the 47 other States $500,000.

Eight of the foundation's 16 trustees would be ex officio members, the President of the United States, Secretary of State, the Army's Chief of Staff, the president of the General Education Board, three university presidents, and the Governor of Tennessee. The other eight members would be appointed by the President with Senate confirmation.

Half the 1,200 students would be chosen from American countries other than the United States for free scholarships; 200 United States students would receive scholarships and 400 others would pay tuition.

THE BUREAU OF PUBLIC ROADS has renewed its agreement to provide half of the cost of a $1,600,000 bridge across the St. Johns River at Jacksonville, after protracted delay because of a mix-up with PWA, the Florida Senators, Pepper and Andrews, announced . . . Progress on lower Mississippi Valley control projects is assured by the President's approval of the nonmilitary appropriations bill for the War Department, Representative Whittington (Democrat), of Mississippi, said . . . The President earlier in the day signed the bill, although it carried $105,000,000, triple the amount he recommended, for flood-control projects . . . Legislation authorizing doubling the naval reserves, raising it from 1,200 to 2,400 men, was reported favorably by the House Naval Affairs Committee.

"A FARCE AND A FAILURE" up to now, Representative Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, labeled State public utility commissions as he continued his crusade against the "power trust" at a hearing of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee on the 7-TVA's bill.

Gigantic, overlapping utility holding companies, he said, had become so powerful the average commission might as well not exist so far as regulation of power rates is concerned.

Rankin spoke at a hearing on legislation to create seven regional power and conservation agencies similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority.

From Harcourt A. Morgan, vice chairman of TVA, the committee received today a letter "heartily indorsing the broad objectives of the legislation as outlined in the President's message to Congress."

Josephine Roche, acting Treasury Secretary, in another letter said the Treasury believed regulation of stream pollution should be omitted from the bill.

The "drastic nature" of the pollution section, she said, would make enforcement "extremely difficult."

Authorization for a dozen Army housing projects remained in dispute between the two houses of Congress after the House passed an authorization bill for such housing. The House simply ignored a Senate bill of similar tenor, which proposed a $22,993,088 expenditure, and adopted without debate a measure which differed principally as follows:

Eliminated $1,893,188 for headquarters provisional brigade and the quartermaster department in Washington, D. C.; $500,500 for Fort Huachuca, Ariz., and $200,900 for Fort Devens, Mass.

Reduced a proposed expenditure at the Presidio of San Francisco, from $555,000 to $176,300, and increased an allotment to Fort Bliss, Tex., from $276,000 to $463,000.

Added these projects: Fort Barrancas, Fla., barracks and telephone construction, $87,000; Fort Benning, Ga., water system, $275,000; Fort Douglas, Utah, medical detachment barracks, $42,000; Frankford Arsenal, Philadelphia, office building and extensions, $255,000; Jefferson Barracks, Mo., barracks, mess addition and nurses' quarters, $205,500; Fort Knox, Ky., hospital, $200,000; Fort MacArthur, Calif., barracks and telephone construction, $138,500; Fort D. A. Russell, Tex., motor shop, truck and gun shed, $77,818; and Fort Wayne, Mich., noncommissioned officers' quarters, $68,000.

WORKERS IN A GEORGIA cotton mill have signed a petition against the court bill because they were "afraid" not to do so, Senator Russell (Democrat), of Georgia, was informed in a telegram yesterday from O. E. Petry, secretary of the Georgia Federation of Labor.

MODERNIZATION of the aircraft carriers Saratoga and Lexington is desirable, the House Naval Affairs Committee decided yesterday, but only if it is kept within a $15,000,000 expenditure. The changes will make them the most efficient vessels of their type in the world, Rear Admiral Cook told the committee. The alterations will conform to the London naval treaty, said Chairman Vinson, of Georgia.

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, said today the Western beet growers "frankly want and need" new legislation to extend the Jones-Costigan act's sugar quota system and revive benefit payments to producers.

In a telegram to Clarence R. Bitting, Florida sugar producer, he rejected Bitting's suggestion that congressional action be postponed a year or more.

The 80,000 beet farmers, he said, "see nothing but distress and disaster ahead" if the marketing quota system in effect since 1934 should be abandoned. It is due to expire December 31.

Bitting wrote "it would seem only fair" to give the international sugar agreement reached this year at London an opportunity to function free of supplemental legislation until its effect on the American market is fully disclosed. Borah replied, "The treaty can never take the place of local legislation," and to await the results of the treaty "would be to destroy in large measure the beet sugar industry."

Explorer Finds 'Strange' Indians, Rich Ore Deposit

New York, July 20 (AP).—Cyril von Baumann, the explorer, came back from the jungles of Ecuador today without the 60-foot snake he wanted, but with two valuable discoveries to report as well as the conviction woman has no place in the wilds.

Von Baumann, a partner of Andre Roosevelt, cousin of the President, said his bride, the former Helen E. Smith, had not passed the jungle test "by a damn sight." She made him shave every day.

He found a Manganese deposit he valued at $1,500,000,000, and a strange tribe of Indians, the Avishiries, who he said look Semitic and make idols with long beads.

U. S. Will Spend $5,000,000 for Air Service Aid

Modernization of Radio System, New Towers Approved.

By the Associated Press.

The Bureau of Air Commerce announced yesterday a $5,000,000 program of airways construction.

The bureau said its program is designed primarily to improve the existing system of air navigation aids by modernizing present aids and providing new facilities to fill in gaps in the present system.

Projects so far approved under the 1938 fiscal year program were said by the bureau to include:

Medium-powered radio stations squipped for simultaneous transmission of radio range signals and voice communications from a five-tower vertical radiator system will be established at the following places:

Stations to Be Altered.

Alma, Ga.; Charleston, S. C.; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Miami, Fla.; Mobile, Ala.; New Orleans, La.; Raleigh, N. C.; Richmond, Va.; Greensboro, N. C.; Spartanburg, S. C., and Titusville, Fla.

A new medium-powered station of the loop antenna type will be established at Charlotte, N. C.

Other Improvements.

At the following sites will be located low-powered radio localizers transmitting directive signals from loop antennas, which serve as localizing guides for airmen within a radius of approximately 15 miles:

Chesterfield, Tenn.; Macon, Ga., and Vero Beach, Fla.

A fifth tower and radio telephone broadcast equipment will be installed at Texarkana, Ark., vertical antenna station not now equipped for simultaneous voice transmission, and simultaneous operation will be provided.

Private Pilot Assails Navy's Airport Protest

Interference With Radio Reception Negligible, Says Ben King.

New personalities last night entered the controversy over whether planes landing at the proposed Camp Springs Airport would interfere with reception at the Navy's new Cheltenham receiving station, and the argument threatened to put solution of Washington's airport problem back where it was before a special commission nearly two weeks ago recommended the Maryland site.

The Navy's prediction of radio interference from airplane motor ignition was scored by Ben King, Washington sportsman pilot, who pointed out that present-day aviation power plants are shielded to prevent interference with the airplane's own receiving set.

As for the 300-foot towers which may be built at Cheltenham providing a landing hazard, King declared:

"I'd be willing to bet $100 that when the site for the Camp Springs Airport has been revealed no part of it will be within 3 miles of the receiving station."

Cheltenham Lower.

The Cheltenham station is 75 feet lower than the proposed airport, and there would be no reason for a plane to fly at so great a distance from the landing field low enough for the proposed towers to be a menace, King said.

The flier's contentions were backed by Senator William H. King, chairman of the airport commission. Senator King declared there was nothing to the Navy's protest and indicated he would proceed to introduce the bill.

Meanwhile, the House Committee on Naval Affairs met at the invitation of its chairman, Representative Carl Vinson, and referred Admiral Leahy's letter embodying the Navy's protest to the sub-committee on aeronautics of which Representative John J. Delaney (Democrat), of New York, is chairman.

Vinson asked that a report be presented as soon as possible, pointing out that the Navy already had spent $1,000,000 on the Cheltenham receiver.

Congressional leaders yesterday said there was little inclination to push the bill at the present session of Congress, since some members already have objected to the construction of the airport entirely with funds provided by the Federal Government.

Departmental Fight.

An interdepartmental battle between the War and Commerce Departments has developed further to complicate the problem. The Army feels the construction of the new air terminal should be placed under its jurisdiction. The Commerce Department, on the other hand, is said to feel that the supervision of the development of the airport should be placed under the Bureau of Aeronautics, which has control of commercial airlines.

Representative Howard W. Smith, of Alexandria, yesterday stated he had not changed his views on the subject of closing Military road. "I am ready to go along with whatever the Arlington County Board decides to do," Smith said. "We have always been ready to agree to the removal of Military road from the center of Washington Airport whenever another highway to serve Arlington County residents was provided."

At the county board meeting last week Samuel J. Solomon, manager of Washington Airport, said his company was willing to spend as much as $25,000 toward the construction of a new highway to replace Military road.

Victim Identifies Scottsboro Youth

Decatur, Ala., July 20 (AP).—Mrs. Victoria Price, chief State witness of the "Scottsboro case," looked at Andy Wright, colored youth, from the witness stand today and said: "Yes, he was one."

Wright, on trial before the tenth jury to hear the case, denied guilt. Wright's life is not in jeopardy, the State having agreed to waive a death demand.

Nine colored men are accused of attacking Mrs. Price and Ruby Bates on a rolling freight train six years ago. In the new series of trials, opened since the United States Supreme Court reversed death sentences a second time, the electric chair has been decreed again for one defendant, and another has been sentenced to 75 years imprisonment.

Indiana Bank Looted; Brady Gang Is Sought

Center Point, Ind., July 20 (AP).—Believing they again may be on the trail of the Brady gang, Federal agents and State police searched tonight for three bandits who held up the First National Bank here this morning and escaped with $2,000.

Two of the three men, hiding in the bank when William O. Graeser, president, opened it this morning, forced Graeser to open a safe, then locked him and two customers in an upstairs room and escaped with the available cash.

Walter Duranty, Author, Under Knife at Hopkins

Baltimore, July 20 (AP).—Walter Duranty, journalist and author, underwent an abdominal operation today at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Physicians described his condition as "good," and said he probably would be able to leave the hospital at the end of the week. Dr. Harvey B. Stone performed the operation. Duranty, for many years Moscow correspondent for the New York Times, is the author of several books.

Leahy Requests Plane Carriers Be Modernized

House Naval Affairs Group Debates Adherence to London Treaty.

Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, yesterday urged to the House Naval Affairs Committee the immediate modernization of the aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga.

The two converted battle cruisers, Admiral Leahy said, had one great advantage over more recently constructed airplane carriers, in the heavier armorplate they carry.

Declaring that the United States would shortly possess six aircraft carriers, Amiral Leahy said that the naval building and modernization program conformed to the stipulations of the London Naval Treaty.

The meeting was enlivened by rapid-fire exchanges between committee members over questions of policy. Some opposition to abiding by the stipulations of the London Naval Treaty when other nations apparently were not doing so was evinced by members.

Chairman Carl Vinson, of Georgia, declared that the United States was abiding by the provisions of the treaty because it had no desire to start a naval race.

"We've already set so many examples that no one ever follows," shot back Representative Melvin J. Mass (Republican), of Minnesota, a supporter of increased naval building.

The modernization of the two carriers, to cost approximately $14,000,000 would be carried out in Government shipyards, Admiral Leahy said.

The funds, naval officials declared, would be used principally to repair and improve machinery, and to put "blisters" on the two ships, which would make them more buoyant.

G. M., Ford Facing Federal Charges Over Advertising

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Trade Commission charged General Motors Corporation and the Ford Motor Co. yesterday with making "false and misleading representations" in advertising the prices of automobiles.

General Motors Sales Corporation also was named a respondent. The commission's complaint charged advertisements for some General Motors and Ford cars result in "deception of the public and injury to competitors."

Saying the companies' advertisements usually feature in large type a designated F. O. B. price for certain cars, a commission statement added:

"The complaints charge the advertisements are arranged in such a manner as to create the impression that fully-equipped cars so illustrated and described may be purchased at the F. O. B. or delivery point complete and ready for operation for the prices featured, or at other points for the feature prices plus the cost of transportation."

Roosevelt Denies Extra Naval Cost In Earhart Quest

Navy and Commerce departments for such data on the Earhart hunt and criticized costly searches for lost "stunt" fliers.

Honolulu, July 20 (AP).—Navy planes and ships traveled 180,000 miles in the search for Amelia Earhart, Rear Admiral Orin G. Murfin disclosed today in a statement expressing belief the aviatrix and her navigator had perished.

It is believed the search, as conducted in the area decided upon," Admiral Murfin said, "was effective and established beyond reasonable doubt that neither the plane nor its personnel are above the water in the area searched."

The hunt for the aviatrix and Frederick J. Noonan began July 2, when their plane was forced down near the end of their 2,570-mile hop from New Guinea to tiny Howland Island, 1,500 miles south of here.

Civil War Shrine Here Asked by Rep. Secrest

A national shrine in memory of veterans of the Civil War was proposed for Washington yesterday in a resolution introduced by Representative Secrest (Democrat), of Ohio.

A commission, headed by the President, is designated to select a site for the memorial, which would contain an auditorium and an arena for outdoor symphony concerts. An authorization of $50,000 to pay expenses of the commission is proposed.

2 Convicts Flee Dead-End Trap In Hail of Lead

By the Associated Press.

Durant, Okla., July 20.—Pete Traxler, Oklahoma desperado, and a companion in a break from a Texas prison farm, escaped into the Washita River bottoms late today after a gun battle with a posse of 100 officers in which Traxler's wife was captured.

The two men at daybreak had invaded the hamlet of Verden, Okla., picked up the woman under the eyes of officers, and sped away. Mrs. Traxler and a car in which she and two men were riding were seized 16 miles west of here when deputy sheriffs came across the auto at the dead end of a road.

In Gun Battle.

The officers opened fire and the men in the car returned it. The shots attracted about 100 officers searching in the vicinity. The two men fled into the river bottoms. Traxler's companion was believed to be Fred Tindol.

Mrs. Traxler was quoted as saying:

"Pete came through Verden, Okla., about a week ago, but I refused to go with them. Then they came in this morning and Pete came upstairs to my rooms and talked to me about it.

"He finally talked me into going with him."

Verden is about 150 miles northwest of where she was captured. The fugitives' car was riddled with bullets.

Bloodhounds on Trail.

Bloodhounds were brought from the McAlester prison and horses were obtained for officers hunting through the wooded country.

None of the posse was injured, but officers did not know whether either of the fugities had been hit.

Mrs. Traxler said they had stopped their car to rest when the officers surprised them.

"Pete told me I'd better run," she said, "but when the firing began, I fainted and when I woke up Pete was gone and about a hundred officers were gathered around."

Liberal 'D. A. R.' Is Formed in N. Y.

New York, July 20 (AP).—Mrs. Julia Church Kolar, of New York, announced today the formation of the Descendants of the American Revolution—an organization she said with membership requirements similar to the Daughters of the American Revolution, but intended to sponsor policies more liberal than those of the D. A. R.

Qualifications for membership are the same, excepting one count.

"We shall not have the proviso: only if she is personally acceptable to society, shall a person be admitted," Mrs. Kolar said.

'Big Train' to Pitch.

An exhibition of pitching by Walter Johnson will feature the closing carnival program at Our Lady of Victory Church, Reservoir and Conduit roads, tonight at 8:30 o'clock. The Elks Boys Band played last night at the carnival.

Eleanor Holm Jarrett Breaks With Band Leader-Husband

But Billy Rose Is Just Her Boss, Asserts Swimmer; Revue Producer Silent; Spouse Refuses Comment as 'Ungallant.'

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, July 20.—Eleanor Holm Jarrett has been singing "Let's Call the Whole Thing Off" to Art Jarrett, she disclosed today, but she has no intention of humming "Only a Rose" to Fannie Brice's husband Billy.

The backstroke champion, center of a storm that kicked up waves of champagne about the Olympic team's boat last year, said she had discussed a divorce with her crooning band-leader husband. But she insisted that did not mean a romance with her boss, Billy Rose, as Cleveland gossips had it.

"I know nothing about it except as the producer of the show in which she is the star," said Rose, who receives $1,000 a day for running the "Aquacade Revue" here in which the 23-year-old swimmer sings and swims with Johnny (Tarzan) Weissmuller.

Miss Holm was dropped from the American Olympic team as it neared Germany last year "for violation of training rules."

"I had five or six glasses of champagne," she agreed later. "I never drink more than five or six."

In turn, she charged Olympic and "misconducted" themselves aboard a liner en route to the Berlin games.

committee officials had "disgraced"

The 23-year-old world's backstroke champion made personal appearances in theaters after her return from Berlin, appearing part of the time with Jarrett. Since May she has been swimming and singing in the "Aquacade," an extravaganza presented on Cleveland's lakefront.

She and Jarrett were married September 2, 1933, in the Church of the Good Shepherd, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Jarrett Won't Comment.

Dallas, July 20 (AP).—Art Jarrett, film and radio singing star, said today it "would be very ungallant on my part to make any sort of comment" on reports that his wife, Eleanor Holm Jarrett, swimming champion, had discussed a divorce.

When Jarrett, star of the Pan American Casino show here, was told his wife had admitted in Cleveland today she had discussed the matter, he said:

"Situations like this are extremely personal and require considerable tact. It would be very ungallant on my part to make any sort of comment. I do not care to discuss my domestic affairs in the public prints nor do I intend to do so. This will be the extent of any reference to the subject by me. I believe most people will understand my position."

J. D. Rockefeller Will Is Probated

White Plains, N. Y., July 20 (AP). The will of John D. Rockefeller, sr., disposing of an estate estimated at about $25,000,000, was admitted to probate today by Westchester County Surrogate William J. Sheils.

The chief beneficiaries named were the oil magnate's granddaughter, Mrs. Margaret Strong de Cuevas; her children and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

The executors and trustees of the bequest are John D. Rockefeller, jr., Bertram Cutler and Thomas M. Debevoise, the last two residents of Green Village, N. J.

Polar Flight 'Confirms' Theory World Is Flat

Zion, Ill., July 20 (AP).—The world still is a saucer to Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva, religious leader of this Lake Michigan settlement.

Voliva said today the recent flights of Russian aviators from their homeland to the United States by way of the North Pole "absolutely confirmed" his theory of a flat world.

Lieut. Oxley Gets Post.

By the Associated Press.

W. Frank Persons, Federal employment service director, announced today the appointment of Lieut. Lawernce A. Oxley, Raleigh, N. C., colored man as national field representative for the agency. Oxley, former social welfare worker with the North Carolina Department of Public Welfare, has served as chief of the division of colored labor in the Department of Labor.

10,000 Will Attend A. E. F. Rally Here

About 10,000 members are expected to attend the second A. E. F. reunion here in September, according to Capt. Hiram Williamson, of Dallas, national co-ordinator for the reunion. Capt. Williamson arrived in Washington yesterday to draft final plans.

The four-day event will begin September 16. The tentative program includes a series of fireworks displays entitled "The Cavalcade of the American Soldier and Sailor," which will describe 100 years of National defense. President Roosevelt has been asked to place the A. E. F. reunion wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier during memorial services Sunday, September 19.

Old-Age Pensions Slashed for 250

The monthly old age pensions of 250 persons on the Ditsricts rolls will be cut August 1, it was announced yesterday by Elwood Street, public welfare director.

Those involved in the pension reduction have been receiving more than $30 per month. Beginning August 1, their monthly allowance will be slashed to this amount, the maximum payment fixed for this year.

Street explained the slash was necessitated by an inadequate appropriation.

I. C. C. Defers Hearing On Leaf Freight Rates

By the Associated Press.

The Interstate Commerce Commission announced yesterday postponement until September 20 of a hearing on proposed revision of freight rates on manufactured and unmanufactured tobacco.

The proposed new rates, which were to have become effective last May 20, now are under suspension pending the hearing.

5 St. Rose's Girls Aid in Chest Work

Striving to show their appreciation of the Community Chest and at the same time acquire experience in the business world, five girls from St. Rose's Technical School, a member of the Chest, have volunteered for services at Chest headquarters. The five are Norma Woodhouse, Teresa Bisciatti, Helen Heill, Frances Collins and Rita Lynn.

The five girls are giving up part of their vacation.

St. Rose's Technical School specializes in the care of girls of 14 to 18 years.

A. F. L. Aluminum Unit Wins C. I. O. Injunction

Knoxville, Tenn., July 20 (AP).—American Federation of Labor workers at the Alcoa (Tenn.) plant of the Aluminum Co. of America obtained a temporary injunction from Chancellor A. E. Mitchell here today preventing members of a rival C. I. O. union from using the union hall.

The C. I. O. unit was formed following termination of a recent strike marked by a riot in which an officer and a striker were killed and more than a score injured.

Japanese Shell Garrison 10 Miles From Peiping; City Fears Frontal Attack

Guns Answer ChineseRefusal To Leave Area

Bitter Wanpinghsien Fight Follows Ultimatum; Roads Attacked.

Peiping area were darkening the prospects of a peaceful settlement.

He immediately summoned Wang Chung-Hui, minister of foreign affairs; Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, minister of war; Gen. Yu Fei-Peng, minister of communications; Chang Kia-Ngau, minister of railways, and Wang Shih-Chieh, minister of education, into conference.

Both the Chinese foreign office and the Japanese embassy confirmed reports that no new truce had been arranged at Tientsin.

Saito Blames Reds.

Irresponsible local Chinese soldiers, influenced apparently in part by the Third Internationale, provoked the present crisis between Japan and China, Japanese Ambassador Hirosi Saito said yesterday, the United Press reported in a copyright story.

The ambassador said that "Red" doctrines have been more conspicuous in China since the kidnaping of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek a few months ago, and have appeared noticeably among troops of the Twenty-ninth Chinese army stationed at the site of the present clash.

Saito expressed the opinion in an interview with the United Press that if those local soldiers were withdrawn by Chinese officials the situation would be settled peaceably.

Liberal Economics Key to Enduring Peace, Says Sayre

Oxford, England, July 20 (AP).—Francis B. Sayre, United States Assistant Secretary of State, told the World Church Conference today that officials of the United States Government are convinced lasting peace will never come until the people build for it.

A changed economic policy is the most constructive way to build for peace, Sayre said, adding:

"We in the United States seek to tear down the great barriers and teach the gospel of economic liberalism. We've got to turn back to the principles of Jesus Christ and put them into practice."

Charles P. Taft, of Cincinnati, said revolution will come if reaction is uncontrolled.

Mrs. Harper Sibley, of Rochester, N. Y., told the conference

"The Holy Catholic Church, that includes Christian communists, fascists and capitalists, must kneel together."

She said political movements such as communism had risen because of injustice in the economic order.

British Laborites Hit Palestine Plan

London, July 20 (AP).—The Labor Party gave notice tonight it would attempt to defer parliamentary approval of the royal commission's plan to partition Palestine.

The opposition party announced it would seek an amendment to the motion for approval in the House of Commons. Under the amendment a select committee would give the commission's report further examination before Parliament commits itself.

Hibernians Hear Reds Castigated

Atlantic City, N. J., July 20 (AP).—Two thousand delegates from as many American lodges of the Ancient Order of Hibernians began their annual convention here today, and heard their chaplain, Bishop James A. Griffin, of Springfield, Ill., say that if communism were supplanted by "social justice and Christian love" men would "live in peace and brotherhood and enjoy security and tranquility."

Bishop Griffin told his fellow Hibernians, "If you need inspiration in the battle before you, you have but to turn to Ireland, the land of saints and scholars," where, he said, a national movement has been launched to wipe out communism.

Parisians' Pact Ends Strike in Restaurants

Paris, July 20 (AP).—The strike which closed many Parisian boulevard restaurants ended tonight when operators and employes signed an agreement revising the work week.

The agreement modified a government decree providing a five-day week for such workers. The modification was with the government's assent.

$3,000,000 Treasure Of Spanish Dons Found

Panama City, July 20 (U.P.).—Government police tonight guarded 6,000 pounds of gold bars worth more than $3,000,000 discovered in an abandoned mine tunnel near Piedra Candela, Chiriqui Province.

The treasure is believed to have belonged to Spanish conquistadores who worked the "lost" La Estrella Mine over three centuries ago.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Miss Carol Lathrop, 18-year-old graduate of Madeira School and daughter of Mrs. Patrick Moore Lathrop, librarian at the Navy Department, who was "kicked and shoved" by Japanese soldiers in Peiping. The State Department last night expressed confidence that the incident could be "handled locally" by the American Embassy.

Marconi Rests In State While World Mourns

Inventor to Have National Funeral With Burial at Bologna.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, July 20.—A world bound more closely together through his genius tonight mourned the death of the Marquis Guglielmo Marconi, the father of wireless.

The famous inventor, who was only 21 when he discovered how to telegraph through space, died early today of heart paralysis in his palace-home in the heart of Rome. He was 63.

Marconi left unfinished his far-reaching development of the ultra-short wave, but his work will be carried on by the group of experts who have searched with him in the mysteries of transmission without wires.

Marconi, whose wireless messages first bridged the Atlantic in 1901, was a frequent visitor to the United States.

Mussolini Grieves.

First of the leaders to pay respects at the death-bed of the pioneer was Premier Mussolini who kissed his forehead. Marconi was to have seen Il Duce last night in the Palazzo Venezia but a heart attack forced the inventor to cancel the visit.

Pope Pius XI, who is known to regard Marconi's invention of wireless as one of the greatest individual contributions to human welfare, sent messages expressing his sorrow and prayed in his private chapel at Castel Gandolfo.

The aged Pope was much attached to the inventor, who designed the special short-wave radio used for communication between the Vatican and the papal summer palace. He received Marconi only last Saturday and bestowed a special blessing on him and his family.

Family's Joy Shattered.

Marconi's sudden death brought sorrow to his family on a day for which joyous plans had been made.

It was the eight birthday of his vivacious little daughter, Elettra Elena, and the anniversary was to have been celebrated at Viareggio, seaside resort, where she was staying. Queen Elena is her godmother.

Her mother, the former Countess Christina Bezzi-Scale and Marconi's second wife, arrived in Viareggio last night and the father was expected today.

The Marquise hastened back to Rome by automobile early today when she received word of her husband's illness and was at his bedside when he died. Their wark-eyed daughter was left in Viareggio with her maternal grandfather.

The body of the inventor, dressed in the blue uniform of a member of the Royal Academy of Italy, of which he was president, later was taken to the academy to lie in state until tomorrow.

A state funeral will be held at 6 p. m. tomorrow and the body will be taken tomorrow night to Bologna, Marconi's birthplace, for burial Thursday.

Radio to Honor Marconi.

A one-minute period of silence in honor of Guglielmo Marconi will be observed at 12 noon, Eastern standard time, today on all American radio networks. Broadcast of the funeral from Bologna, Italy, will be transmitted over Station WRC here and other stations of the red network, National Broadcasting Co., after the period of silence.

Reich Press Again Attacks Catholics

Berlin, July 20 (AP).—The German press marked the fourth anniversary today of the signing of the Reich's concordat with the Vatican with renewed attacks on Catholic prelates and policies.

News columns emphasized the disputes over concordats in other nations, particularly Poland and Yugoslavia. Most of the charges were reiterations of Germany's contention that the Vatican is fostering a world-wide anti-German campaign.

Among those accused were George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago; Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, and Theodore Cardinal Innitzer, archbiship of Austria.

A criminal court at Breslau, meanwhile, sentenced a lay brother to 15 months' imprisonment on immorality charges.

Reds Kill 24 More As Far East Spies

Moscow, July 20 (AP).—Execution of 24 more alleged "Trotskyist and Japanese terrorist spies and wreckers" was reported from the Soviet Far East today.

The Khabarovsk, Siberia, court which sentenced them to death, convicted them of sabotage along the Trans-Siberian Railroad. The total of persons reported executed in Soviet Russia's spy hunt in recent months is now 322.

Pravda, Communist Party newspaper, charged delay in harvesting the Soviet's bumper wheat crop. The charge was linked with new shakeups in high offices.

Edward F. Rosenthal, vice commissar of water transportation, was removed from office and succeeded by Georgi Kucheroff. Tursun Khodjaieff, commissar of domestic trade in the Uzbek Republic, was succeeded by Akbardjan Akhmedoff, former Uzbek commissar for grain and cattle breeding on state farms.

Mexico Industries Swept by Strike

Mexico City, July 20 (AP).—An outbreak of strikes and threatened walkouts in various parts of Mexico tonight affected the electric, mining, aviation, telephone and textile industries.

Strikes against Electric Bond & Share subsidiaries in 17 Mexican states were planned in support of employes at Merida, who have been idle a week.

President Lazaro Cardenas sought to avert a strike of 17,000 in American Smelting & Refining Co. mines and processing plants.

Shooting affrays, without casualties, were reported from Orizaba, in Vera Cruz, where the confederation of workers of Mexico and the regional confederation of Mexican workers are battling for control of the big Cocoalapan textile factory.

Half of the 700 students of the federal farm school at Chapingo, in the federal district, seized and held buildings, demanding that secretary of agriculture, Saturnino Cedillo, let the students run the school.

Hope Hampton Inherits.

Philadelphia, July 20 (AP).—Hope Hampton Brulatour, known on the screen and operatic stage as Hope Hampton, will receive the entire $8,000 estate of her father, Ellsworth Kraft Hampton, sr., his will, filed for probate today, disclosed. He died last April.

Naval Pact Bill Passes Second Commons Test

Sea Expert Sent To Japan To Prevent Arms Race, Duff Cooper Reveals.

By the Associated Press.

London, July 20.—Great Britain tonight moved nearer ratification of the London naval treaty, which limits the size of warships, but not their number. The House of Commons approved second reading of the treaty bill without dissent.

Discussion brought questions concerning the caliber of the United States' naval guns and the possibility of Japan's starting a new international naval race with new and larger warships. Neither Japan nor Italy adhered to the 1936 treaty.

"Is it a fact the United States decided to adopt 16-inch guns in consequence of the prospect of the Japanese advancing to those of higher caliber?" Winston Churchill asked Alfred Duff Cooper, first lord of the admirality.

Duff Cooper replied the United States "considered themselves reluctantly compelled to adopt 16-inch guns," but did not answer the question further.

He remarked that Sir Robert Craigie, a British naval expert, is now en route as ambassador to Japan to exert his good influences. Though France and the United States have ratified the treaty, British ratification was held up during negotiation of the recent bilateral naval pacts with Germany and Russia, which brought those nations within the scope of the agreement.

The admirality chief expressed hope Italy eventually would enter the limitation fold, but said the situation in regard to Japan was "admittedly more difficult."

He declared, however, that "Japan has given repeated assurance" she does not intend to start another armament race.

A. V. Allexander said Laborites would not oppose the treaty because "there is so little in it," but added that the British decision to stick to 14-inch guns would lower the navy's morale in time of conflict.

Another opposition member, Goeffrey Mander, asserted that any increase in the United States Navy could be regarded as an increase in the British navy.

He said the Japanese government is now relying on force as an instrument of policy and "if that is so, there is no alternative but to face it. If Japan is going to resort to force it is for the United States and ourselves."

Clyde Pangborn Is Reported Held In Soviet Town

By the United Press.

Moscow, Wednesday, July 21.—Clyde Pangborn, American pilot who is planning a non-stop round the world flight, was reported today to be under arrest at the isolated town of Velikieluki, near the Latvian border.

He allegedly attempted to enter Soviet Russia without a visa.

Pangborn, first man to fly the Pacific, was accompanied by Representative William I. Sirovich, New York, on a plane trip from Stockholm to Moscow.

Pangborn took the plane at the last minute and was unable to obtain a visa, hoping to get one across the border.

Soviet officials gave him 24 hours to obtain a visa or face deportation. Sirovich went on to Moscow to try to get Pangborn a visa there but failed.

French Budget Cut, Stabilizing Fund Created

By the Associated Press.

Paris, July 20.—The second People's Front government tonight decreed drastic governmental economies to pull France out of her economic and financial difficulties.

A series of sweeping decrees also shook up the command of the Bank of France and created a fund to "defend" government securities.

Premier Chautemps' cabinet approved the program of Finance Minister Georges Bonnet, designed to meet at least part of France's huge armament and other expenses, and President Albert Lebrun gave his assent.

The government bond defense fund will be created through the increased value of gold in the Bank of France vaults as a consequence of the franc, the first measure Bonnet instituted to restore French finances.

Creation of the bond fund was cited as evidence the government has no intention of converting its bonds into other securities bearing a lower interest rate, a measure which has been advocated widely to free France from her heavy interest load.

Government securities rose on the Bourse after announcement of Bonnet's program.

The new fund, it was stated, will operate much in the way the franc stabilization fund works in co-operation with the United States and Great Britain under the tripartite monetary agreement.

Cabinet ministers were asked for departmental economies to total 15,000,000,000 francs ($507,000,000). These would meet about half of the estimated 31,527,000,000 franc ($1,198,026,000) deficit in ordinary budget, extraordinary budget and special armament expenditures.

Police Rout 500 Serb Students In Church Row

By the Associated Press.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 20.—Police with bared bayonets tonight charged and dispersed 500 students protesting the clubbing yesterday by police of two members of the Serbian Orthodox church.

The youths gathered in Kalimegdan Park near the Serbian Cathedral, shouting epithets and stoning police, who cleared the park and surrounding streets. One policeman was wounded when struck by a stone. Many persons were arrested.

Thousands of members of the Serbian Orthodox church, embittered over clubbing of the two members, flocked to churches to pray for defeat of the unratified Yugoslav concordat with the Vatican. Orthodox churchmen say the agreement would give the Roman Catholic church greater privileges than the Orthodox church in education and politics. The concordat was signed in 1935.

The elderly Orthodox Bishop Simeon, of Sabatz, was badly hurt, a medical bulletin said, in the affray yesterday when police broke up a parade of members of his sect. Authorities had said they feared the parade would be a demonstration against the concordat.

The bulletin said the bishop was not in danger of dying, but suffered a skull fracture and brain concussion. He lifted a heavy silver cross he was carrying to protect himself, and a policeman's truncheon smashed the cross down on his head.

Woja Janich, a parliamentarian who opposed the Vatican accord, was the other man seriously hurt.

The Serbian church holy synod ordered churches within its jurisdiction to display black flags in mourning and protest ratification of the concordat. Churches were told to toll their bells continuously and have continuous prayers for Bishop Simeon's recovery and against the concordat.

had claimed 49 votes for a motion to recommit, more than enough to shelve it for the session.

Burke said he favors submitting the motion to recommit the bill when the Senate reconvenes tomorrow. Opponents are considering coupling with the motion provision that a select committee, or judiciary subcommittee, study the whole question of judicial reform, and bring out recommendations next session.

A significant talisman that the end of the court fight is near was seen in failure of Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, to reply yesterday to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's letter opposing the court bill.

Had Planned Reply.

Wagner, who had expected to come out for the court bill, first decided to reply to Lehman last night. Preparations for the statement later were called off. Although Wagner might possibly reply today, it was indicated the New Yorker, in the face of developments, may have nothing to say.

From another Senator prominently identified with the court plan, but who declined to be quoted, came word that he regarded the fight as virtually over.

As last night's White House leadership conference concluded, the delegation led by Garner exchanged pleasantries with newsmen on the White House steps, and then hopped into the Vice President's car. They declined to disclose details discussed.

Later they stopped briefly in Vice President Garner's office. Three other Senators dropped into the office for a few minutes to chat with them. The visitors included Senator Wagner, Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, and Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina.

Opinion expressed in a high Administration quarter that the court dispute will be worked out in a manner satisfactory to all started fresh speculation on further modification of the pending substitute court bill.

Insisted on Results.

This official commented on current compromise talk and pointed out the President has insisted on "objectives" rather than "methods."

He said the court bill falls into five parts, that four of them deal with the lower courts, and that only the fifth part, dealing with Supreme Court reorganization, has aroused strong opposition.

The official was asked if he thought the President would be satisfied with four-fifths of his court program.

"I don't think we're at that bridge yet," he replied.

The same source remarked on Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's letter in opposition to the court bill that "its timing was deadly," and apparently it was a "gratuitous" statement that had not been asked. He said Gov. Lehman's attitude was known, but its publication was unexpected. No one was "furious" or "particularly jolted" by the announcement, he said.

Comment Garbled.

Comments of an Administration spokesman on the court controversy, indicating his belief that a satisfactory solution was about to be reached, were garbled in first reports to the Capitol.

The official had been misrepresented as hinting the President was willing to abandon the Supreme Court phase of this bill.

Jubilant opponents, believing the reports authentic, prematurely hailed the fight as over early in the afternoon.

"There is only one thing to do," said Senator Wheeler, "and that is to recommit the bill."

Wheeler said he believed there are some judicial reforms which can be made effective, particularly with reference to the lower courts.

Suggests Five Changes.

He suggested five changes that might be considered by the judiciary committee. The included authority for the Attorney General to intervene in private cases involving constitutionality; trial of constitutional cases by three judges instead of one; a limitation on attorneys' fees in receivership cases; curtailing of court powers in receivership cases; and action to expedite trials, by possibly permitting dismissal of cases when not promptly brought to trial.

"These and other matters had best be studied in committee," said Wheeler. "The bill should first go back to the judiciary committee. They could submit the problem to a sub-committee of liberals who want real reform."

The Senate met only briefly yesterday, and adjourned until tomorrow, leaving today free for the leadership caucus. Senator Barkley indicated the vetoed farm interest rate bill may be called up tomorrow. This would necessitate at least temporary laying aside of the court bill.

X-Ray Photographs Of Gershwin Available

New York, July 20 (AP).—X-ray photographs of the late George Gershwin's head and hands will be available for scientists of the future studying the "biology of genius," it was announced today by Dr. C. Ward Crampton, president of the Aristogenic Association.

Files of the society contain data on the 38-year-old composer of "Rhapsody in Blue" and others in a small group selected as the most "aristogenic," or "biologically best-born," living Americans, Dr. Crampton said.

Veteran of Vanishing Trade

JERE CLIFFORD.

The modern smithy stands,
Ne'er sees he sign of mane or hoof,
Inactive are his hands.

Strong and gnarled after his 53 years at the forge, Jere Clifford, of 813 Otis street northwest, is typical of the dwindling ranks of Washington's blacksmiths.

He is one of nine listed in the city directory, which also, by way of being thorough, lists two horseshoers.

"There isn't any need for horseshoers these days, but the term blacksmith means much," explained Jere yesterday. He is spry and white-haired, a man with a mighty arm, despite his 73 years. And, it is his proud boast, he never has seen a chestnut tree.

"Elms are all right," he shrugged yesterday, "elms in the twilight in Northwest Washington, and me in the twilight of my life, mellow but still vigorous."

A blacksmith, Jere, a veteran in a vanishing trade announced, can do anything with iron. He is a one-man factory, and his bellows are now run by electricity. You press a button and the crackling giant performs.

But the real work, that of hammer and hot metal, still belongs to the great right arm Mr. Longfellow, in an age of trotting horses, chose to call, with moderation, sinewy.

Jere is strong, and his years of blacksmithing have not dimmed his ardor for a trade that is dying as a violet in the autumn.

He has shod the steeds of the mounted policemen of a more individualistic era. He has tended fire horses and cavalry horses and the horses lovely ladies rode before the screech of automobile sirens caused difficulties unheard of in the Victorian era.

"But, you see," explained Jere yesterday, "a horseshoer is one thing and a blacksmith another. A blacksmith is the finished product. Iron is his putty."

Jere is at his forge every day. Some of the other District blacksmiths are not. One comes down only upon call. But not Jere. He can make tools sharper, and the world will never learn to get along without tools. He can forge parts of fences. He has made sabers, with blades as sharp as those which made ancient Toledo famous. And one day, in the age when such things were popular in the Middle West as lawn ornaments, he forged an iron dog.

"He didn't bark, but he looked damned natural," observed Jere, as he spat to windward.

Today the streets of the District are practically horseless.

Now and then in the Southwest a huckster's horse pulls a wagon of vegetables with a grotesque straw hat upon his head. Once a beer truck, horse drawn, rattled into a milky dusk. And, at dawn, the milk wagons, several hundred of them, come clattering through the city so that babies may be fed and an ancient tradition preserved.

The dairies have their own blacksmith shops, and their own horseshoers, who get $1.10 an hour.

"But," snorted Jere yesterday, "they ain't blacksmiths and they can't make iron dogs. They're horseshoers, that's what they are, so help me."

President Plans No Far East Ban

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt indicated yesterday he had no immediate intention of invoking the neutrality act against China and Japan.

Asked at his press conference whether he had considered applying the act to the Far Eastern controversy, the President asked why he should.

Under the neutrality act the President, when and if he finds "a state of war" exists, must prohibit the the export of arms, ammunition and implements of war to both belligerents. Financial assistance to them also would be barred.

Miss Melissa Heil, 66, Long Ill, Dies at Home

Mrs. Melissa Heil, 66, resident of Washington for more than 20 years, died yesterday at her home 910 Lawrence street northeast, after an illness of several months.

Mrs. Heil is survived by her husband, Charles C. Heil, a son, Ernest Heil, and a daughter, Mrs. Adelaide Sampson. She was a native of Beacon, N. Y.

Funeral services will be held at her home at 1 p. m., tomorrow with burial in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

Ford's. If I have to take back those two birds—Cwikiel and Gulliksen—I'll break their backs. See that railroad car full of slag out there? We'll put them out there with shovels, and out there if they feel like it they can talk union."

Ziek said he now is on the U. A. W. pay roll as an organizer in the Ford district local, working in an advisory capacity.

Defendants Listed.

In addition to Moore, the individuals held for trial in the State court are Wilfred Comment, Samuel Taylor, Worshon Sarkisian, Charles Goodman, Oscar Jones and Theodore Greis, all Ford workers, and Russell J. Edick, former circulation worker for a newspaper.

The formal charge is assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than the crime of murder. Conviction would make them liable to a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment and $1,000 fine.

Ziek told Examiner John T. Lindsay that in urging discharge of union members McKinney apparently had acted on orders of his superiors. He quoted McKinney as telling him:

"Ziek, I damn near lost my job yesterday. You got to fire a lot of men here."

End Forecast Tomorrow.

When he asked the superintendent why Cwikiel and Gulliksen were to be discharged, Ziek said McKinney told him, "This is a little deep for you. There's something else behind this."

N. L. R. B. attorneys who had hoped to conclude their presentation today on the complaint charging the Ford company with unfair labor practices, indicated they probably would be finished tomorrow.

House request to the leaders of the Pendergast organization in Missouri to urge Senator Harry S. Truman of that State, to vote for Barkley—a report which originated in Kansas City.

Incidentally, James P. Aylward, Democratic national committeeman from Missouri, telegraphed Senator Truman urging him to vote for Barkley, but he made no mention of White House or any other inspiration. Senator Truman, however, said he plans to vote for Harrison today.

Secret Ballot Expected.

The vote in the caucus today is expected to be taken by secret ballot and each side regards this as important. The Harrison managers feel there are several Senators who personally prefer him but would not wish to displease the White House. On the other hand, the Barkley supporters feel a secret ballot would help them.

For instance, they pointed out the hostility which has existed between Harrison and his colleague from Mississippi, Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, and the suggestion has been projected that in a secret ballot Bilbo might vote for Barkley, whereas he would not do so on an open ballot because of fear of resentment back home.

Bilbo yesterday denied as untrue reports appearing in a Mississippi newspaper that he would vote for Barkley. He said he was considering voting for Harrison and added that "I shall vote in the interest of Mississippi's cryptic remark in view of the feeling between Bilbo and Harrison, who have not been on speaking terms.

Such situations as this have made it difficult to forecast how the caucus will come out. In addition there has been intense bitterness engendered by the feeling over the Supreme Court fight, the general disturbance within the Democratic Party and the importunities of some of the Barkley followers that the prestige of the President and the New Deal really is at stake.

First Vote in 25 Years.

The extent of the feeling in the present fight is well-indicated by the fact that if this contest goes to a vote today, it will be the first time in 25 years that a Democratic caucus has voted on the leadership. On previous occasions there was no contest or the matter was settled before the caucus was held.

In 1923 when Joe Robinson was elected as Democratic leader of the Senate there was a spirited contest, with Furnifold Simmons of North Carolina, challenging Robinson's right to the place. The night before the caucus the campaign managers of the two candidates met and frankly laid before each other their lists. It was found that Robinson had a majority of one vote and Simmons withdrew, moving in the caucus to make the Robinson selection unanimous. Incidentally, Harrison was Robinson's manager in that fight.

Nothing of that sort is expected to happen in this fight. The Barkley managers were confident that they had victory within their grasp. So were the Harrison forces. Unless a last-minute change comes this morning, the issue will go to vote. Whether balloting will commence as soon as the caucus meets or whether there will be several speeches remained unknown last night.

Quezon Explains New Liberty Plea

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippine commonwealth said tonight terms of the independence act empowering Congress to change economic relations between the Philippines and the United States were a major cause for his request to President Roosevelt for independence by 1938.

He said these terms had proved a source of growing irritation to his people.

"Our economic relations are not stable now, and since Congress may change them at any time our reconstruction plans are constantly threatened with a setback," Quezon said.

He said recent statements by him should not be construed as an invitation to Congress for a counter proposal looking toward a continuation of the American Flag in the islands.

'Fair and Warmer' Today's Forecast As Rain Cools City

"Fair and warmer" was the Weather Bureau's forecast for today after intermittent rain and cooling winds held the thermometer below the 70-degree mark throughout yesterday.

The mercury remained within a 3-degree variation with a low of 66 recorded at 7:30 a. m. and high of 69 at 12:15 p. m. From 11 a. m. until 7 p. m. the hourly readings were fixed at 68, with prospect of only a slight drop during the night.

Total rainfall yesterday was .54 inch. Gradually clearing skies were expected through last night.

Littlehales Named Board Counsel

Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal yesterday appointed George Reber Littlehales, counsel for the District Unemployment Compensation Board. The position which he will take over about August 1, carries with it a $3,800 annual salary.

Littlehales, a native of Washington, is a graduate of Princeton University and of George Washington University law school. He is 37 years old and is married.

Before being admitted to the District bar he was active in the real estate business here. He has since been employed in the investigation division of the Justice Department and as a special counsel for the NRA and for the Resettlement Administration. He is at present engaged in private practice.

D. C. Teacher Charged With Abducting Boy is very fond of children, and she frequently took her nephew to the Zoo and such places."

White said that, while he couldn't quarrel with State's Attorney Alan Bowie for recommending an abduction charge under the circumstances, such a charge was palpably unjustified.

"There was no motive," he said, "no animosity, no attack. If she were trying to abduct the boy, why should she have stopped at a gasoline station two miles from the Shane home? There was plenty of gas in her car. When the police arrived, she cried out, 'Don't take my nephew.' She was simply confused by worry and the heat."

White said Mrs. Campbell had vehemently denied she was intoxicated.

The charges of abduction and driving under the influence of liquor were preferred against Mrs. Campbell late yesterday in a warrant sworn out by Sergt. Charles Durham, of the Maryland State police.

It was Durham who arrested Mrs. Campbell after Mrs. Norris Shane, wife of a Department of Agriculture employe, had notified police a woman had abducted her 20-month-old baby, Philip, while he was playing at their home in Beltsville about 7:30 p. m.

Sergt. Durham, with a description of the woman, the baby and the automobile, sped over the Washington-Baltimore boulevard. At a gasoline station in Berwyn, about 2 miles from the Shane home, he saw a naked child run from an automobile. Then he saw a woman, her clothes awry, get out of an automobile and chase him.

Sergt. Durham, with the assistance of others, took her to the Hyattsville police station. Little Philip was taken home.

Painters Strike To Stop Use of Nonunion Men

bering 186 and having a value of $35,680,000, and 1936 projects, numbering 156 and totaling $17,375,000.

These properties are in various stages of construction.

Treasury officials yesterday said they had not been notified of any contemplated national strike.

Only Monday the painters' union called its members off four Government jobs here in protest against the Wilson and Coons and Raptis firms, and Monday night the Central Labor Union placed itself on record as endorsing the strike action.

Representatives of other allied unions met in the offices of the Washington Building Trades Council yesterday morning, but took no action on a possible sympathy strike.

Sympathy Strike Meeting.

This morning, however, a meeting of the executive board of the council will be held to consider a city-wide Federal building strike in sympathy with the painters.

Holcombe called yesterday's strike in protest against the use of nonunion labor on contract jobs at the City Post Office and the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Forty pickets patrolled these projects yesterday—20 men to each building.

"The union has issued instructions that the picketing, in accordance with custom, be orderly," said Holcombe last night.

The union scale for painters is $1.37 1-7 per hour. Holcombe said last night he understood on one job where nonunion men were being employed the union scale was being paid, while on the other the painters were receiving only 1.37½ cents per hour.

With the Government situation apparently headed for a showdown, machinery was set up yesterday to untangle a similar controversy involving District building projects.

Formally prepared complaints by the Building Trades Council against two firms using nonunion labor on three District school jobs will be submitted to the newly created District Labor Relations Board, which is charged with the maintenance of fair practices in municipal contract work.

For Immediate Review.

These, according to Capt. J. S. Bishop, jr., chairman of the new board, will be submitted immediately for review by the Labor Department. Then, if precedents have been set in similar circumstances, the board will order local contractors to abide by them. Assistant Corporation Counsel William H. Wahle, legal adviser to the board, asserted.

Meanwhile controversy in a third labor dispute seemed clarified. A recapitulation showed the workers in 5 of 11 cleaning and dyeing establishments had indicated by big majorities in secret balloting Monday that they desired collective bargaining representation through Local 87 of the Laundry Workers, Dry Cleaners' and Dyers' Union.

After the plants became strike bound, settlement of the representation issue was ordered by the National Labor Relations Board.

Lost in Two Firms.

The union fell short of a majority only in the votes of the Aristo and Vogue Co. employes. It won among employes of the Economy, Federal, Globe, Master, Needles, Premier, Regal, Rubinstein and Vanity.

The union seeks an $18 minimum wage, a 40-hour week, union recognition and time and a half for overtime.

Holcombe announced late last night that all members of the painters union would meet at headquarters early this morning to sign a strike pledge.

High Court Voids Verdict of $35,000 In Alienation Suit

Tallahassee, Fla., July 20 (AP).—The Supreme Court reversed today the $35,000 damage verdict obtained by James Edgar in Miami against Lewis E. Mallory III, for alienation of affections.

The court ordered a new trial on grounds that Judge Worth W. Trammell permitted one of Edgar's attorneys to make irrelevant statements to the jury. The court said the judgment "was grossly excessive."

Some of the testimony about alleged relations between Mallory and Mrs. Edgar early in 1935, said the court, "is contrary to reason and probability."

The evidence, said the court, does not portray the conduct "of a refined woman" and "an ardent lover of less than a week's acquaintance."

Edgar's former wife, Kathryn Crawford, who resumed her maiden name under which she appeared on the stage, divorced Edgar in Detroit on charges of cruelty shortly before the alienation suit came to trial last summer. She denied she and Mallory were intimate and accused Edgar of beating her.

Tom McCarthy

Working For A Former Sheriff.

Stephens, S. Dak., July 17.—After you've been on the road for a while, you don't worry too much about where you're going to sleep, or where the next ride, or meal, is coming from. You find that those details usually take care of themselves.

TOM McCARTHY.

I had been only mildly disturbed about not finding work in Sioux City, Iowa, and when I crossed over into South Dakota and found a wheat field in which to sleep, it didn't occur to me to worry about where I was going to find breakfast.

I had walked out of Sioux City at night and had received a ride for a few miles from the outskirts. In the morning, when I clambered out of my improvised bed of wheat sheaves, I wondered rather vaguely just where I was. I walked down the road and asked two harvesters. They told me that I was just outside a little town called Stephens and only a few miles from the city I had left the previous night.

"Think a man could get work around here?" I asked.

They told me to go up to the house and try. They said that the "boss" would probably hire me. I walked across the field and up to the neat farmhouse, shining in its new coat of white paint.

At the door of the farmhouse I was met by a large vigorous man whose voice boomed out a "Good Morning."

"Need a hand for your harvesting?" I asked him . . . and then started to enumerate my qualifications. He didn't give me a chance to get under way. One large hand brushed back his white hair, his other poised in midair to stop my monologue.

"Don't care where you're from," he boomed. "Don't care who you are! One man's as good as another! All look alike to me! If they work I hire 'em! If they slack I fire 'em! You want a job? You're hired!"

"All right," I started when he cut in with, "Had breakfast?"

I told him that I hadn't eaten, so he waved me into the kitchen, asking, "Ever shocked wheat? You did in Kansas? Well, no matter whether you did or you didn't there's not much to it! Strong back and weak mind! That's all you need."

I didn't hear much more of what my new employer was saying because, I was more than preoccupied with a platter of crisp bacon, well buttered toast, shining bright-eyed eggs, and hot strong coffee.

* * * *

AS I WENT out the door, toward the field, he asked if I had any gloves. I told him I didn't need them, and we compromised so I left the house with one glove. Arrived in the field I discovered there were now three shockers, and the addition of myself made a division into two teams possible.

I was working with a strongly built boy, who told me that he came from farther west in the State. He came from the cattle country and wore short riding boots beneath his overalls. I asked him about my employer, and commented on how readily he had hired me.

"That's Jim Halliday," he said. "He used to be sheriff around here. He's a good man to work for. But you wouldn't have any trouble getting a job in this part of the State, anyhow. Farm labor is scarce at this time, and the farmers know it. I've had offers for work on at least a half a dozen farms around here, but, of course, I could only take one."

Whether our noon recess was an indication of the willingness of the farmers to co-operate with their laborers, or merely the easy going bounty of Mr. Halliday, I never knew, but to me, it was a revelation.

We went in to dinner, served on a tree-shaded, screened-in porch and, after we had eaten, Mr. Halliday asked us how we were standing the heat of the day. The other laborers told him that they were making out all right, but wanted to take a couple of hours off at noon and come back and work in the late afternoon, and the cool evening. Much to my surprise, that was okay with Mr. Halliday.

I discovered that the "new leisure," or possibly a shred of the "abundant life," has spread to the farm lands of, at least, the eastern part of South Dakota. We all drove into the town of Stephens and spent the greater part of the time from 1 to 3 sitting on the shady side of the main street and drinking beer at one of the local beer parlors. Since I was broke, my fellow laborers had to supply my refreshments, attendant upon repayment later in the week.

* * * *

When, at 3 o'clock, the rural bon vivants felt that they were sufficiently fortified to work for another five hours, we returned to the field, and I had no trouble pacing them for the remainder of the afternoon. They were considerably slower.

After an hour and a half of work, it was time for supper, and this was served in a cool, clean dining room, whose walls had been painted a delicate buff. In the background, a radio played softly and I almost expected a butler to attend our meals. I was having a hard time getting used to this "harvester's paradise," when I was further startled by the voice of Mr. Halliday booming from the porch:

"Turn off that radio," he ordered in a voice which could be heard at least a quarter of a mile. "They'll never go back to work! If they pass their plates around once more, I'll be in debt on my wheat crop! It's not what I pay them that worries me, it's what they eat! They've eaten the profit right out ten acres, already!"

I wasn't at all sure that Mr. Halliday wasn't correct, but nobody paid much attention. They all laughed and the radio continued to play, as hands stretched out for another helping.

"Well, do you think you can make it now," Mr. Halliday asked as we emerged.

"Pretty cool now," one of the farm hands said, "we shouldn't have much trouble." Mr. Halliday boomed laughter. I think he enjoyed seeing them doing their work the easy way.

When we quit at dark, we had scarcely a half day's shocking left. Despite the interruptions and the easy tempo of the work, a good job had been done. On the way back to the house the hands decided to "kid" the boss about how much work remained.

* * * *

"WHEN ARE YOU guys going to get finished?" Mr. Halliday boomed as we came up to the house. "Have it all cleaned up in another couple of days," they told him.

The boss gave out a large, hurt yelp, and looked as though he might faint, so one of them said, "It'll be done by noon tomorrow."

Mr. Halliday went into the house chuckling.

There was a lake near the farmhouse and I learned that "Big Jim" owned many of the cottages around it, which possibly accounted for his ability to remain unworried about the progress of his harvesting.

A swim in the lake finished off an easy day of hard work, and I was furnished with blankets and a canvas cot to place out under the trees.

When the work was finished at noon the following day, I left Jim Halliday's farm almost regretfully. It isn't often that you can couple the hot, dusty work of wheat shocking with hours fitted to your convenience, good food in the pleasant surroundings, and the cool waters of a lake in which to swim.

As I went down the road, rested, refreshed and financially solvent, Big Jim boomed after me, "If you starve to death call me up and I'll give you a meal!"

measure and decisions at a Democratic caucus today.

Senator King said he will be prepared to call up either the tax bill or the borrowing resolution tomorrow or at the first opportunity afforded him by Senate leaders.

Palmisano, who failed to obtain House approval of the resolution on Monday, was critical of the Commissioners in his prediction that the tax bill will fail.

He asserted that they should "stop squawking" and raise the realty tax rate at once.

District officials pointed out that he missed the point, just as he did in pressing the borrowing resolution, that even a hike in the realty rate will not provide the District with needed funds before September.

In fact, the fixing of the tax rate, ordinarily done on July 1, has been delayed so long that it is doubtful that tax payments can be expected before October. It takes the assessor's office 45 days at least to make up tax ledgers and bills.

Civic Groups Appeal.

Two appeals were sent to members of Congress yesterday by Washington civic groups.

Thomas E. Lodge, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, petitioned members to distribute the tax burden equitably rather than place it all on home owners and realty property holders, and urged that the District not be charged interest for any emergency loans it may be authorized to obtain from the Treasury.

The Washington Real Estate Board, through W. C. Miller, chairman of the committee on taxation, sent an appeal to Senators to defeat the $1 land tax reported by the Senate District Committee.

Such a tax would encourage density of population and discourage gardens and flowers and recreational plots for children, the letter stated.

The letter pointed out that real estate already bears 60 per cent of the local tax burden and that the $1 land levy would raise the tax on land 66⅔ per cent.

Plea for "Sunshine."

"If, in your opinion, the city should be developed with a minimum of land and a maximum of housing, thereby increasing the density of population pattern, you can, of course, follow the theories of Henry George, of which this bill is a modification," Miller, said, "but if you believe that every home should have as much sunshine and air as is within the power of the purchaser to own, you cannot but be against this increased land tax."

The letter points out that the increase in the number of Federal employes in recent years has placed a burden on all municipal services. At the same time, it added, the Federal problems have been curtailed and taxable land has been absorbed by the Federal Government.

A memorandum accompanying the letter quoted estimates to show that both the House and Senate tax bills would raise more revenue than the anticipated $8,000,00 deficit in general and gasoline funds. It also cited that $809,003,021 in realty property is tax exempt in the District, as compared with a tax base of $1,144,457,159.

Strike in Newark Ruled Illegal as Closed Shop Move

Newark, N. J., July 10 (AP).—Vice Chancellor Maja Berry ruled today a strike at the International Ticket Co. plant was illegal because its purpose was to compel the company to operate a closed shop.

Amplifying an oral prohibition of picketing, the vice chancellor wrote:

". . . It seems strange that at this late day it should be necessary to repeat that a strike which has for its objects the 'closed shop' is unlawful, and that a contract providing for the closed shop is illegal and unenforceable."

"The tactics pursued by the defendants in support of their activities," he said, "are the natural outgrowth of the so-called liberalism of our courts in labor disputes, a policy which will eventually bring . . . intimidation, violence and the general disregard of the rights of others. . . ."

Court Bill Opposed By Bishop Manning

New York, July 20 (AP).—The Rev. William T. Manning, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of New York, urged Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York, today to "vote and use your influence against the substitute court bill which is quite as bad as the original."

The bishop, in a 150-word telegram to the Senator, said "if the people desire such change in their Supreme Court their will can, and must, be ascertained by the submission to them of an amendment to the Constitution."

Old D. C. Law Invoked in War Upon Abattoir

Gray, director of the PWA Housing Division; Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, assistant District health officer; Horace W. Peaslee, architect and a member of the Committee of 100; Frederick A. Walton, abattoir expert of the Interior Department; John Nolen, planning director of the Park and Planning Commission.

Parran's Report Stressed.

Surgeon General Thomas Parran's report of May 27, which will be sharply stressed from now on by the anti-abattoir group, not only warned against pollution of the Potomac, but also advised that operation of the Gobel plant on the large scale planned would necessitate construction of an addition to the District's new $4,125,000 sewage disposal plant.

Perhaps the most determined opponent of the Benning project, which is scheduled for completion October 1, is Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the Park and Planning Commission and board chairman of the American Planning and Civic Association. Unable to attend yesterday's meeting, he was represented by Miss James, Settle and Nolen.

Although President Roosevelt has not entered the controversy up to now, the aggressive steps taken by Delano, his uncle, and the bitter denunciation of the proposed abattoir by Secreary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes have given rise to reports that the President is on the "antis" side.

130 Colored Persons Defy Klan by Voting

St. Petersburg, Fla., July 20 (AP).—Approximately 130 colored persons voted in a special city referendum here today despite a march of 200 Knights of the Ku Klux Klan through the colored district last night.

Klansmen said their march was made as evidence of disapproval of alleged efforts to obtain a heavy colored registration.

The referendum was on a proposal to repeal the civil service law governing police and fire departments and their chiefs.

Mrs. Sanger en Route To Make Chinese Study

Los Angeles, July 20 (AP).—Mrs. Margaret Sanger, leader of the birth-control movement, arrived here today on her way to the Orient. She said she expected to spend much time in China, "the outstanding illustration of overpopulation."

Fatalities Ruled 'Justifiable' in Chicago's Riot

Jury Holds Strikers Tried to Force Way Through Police Lines.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 20.—Ten deaths in the sanguinary steel strike riot last Memorial Day were termed "justifiable homicide" by a coroner's jury which reported today after 50 minutes' deliberation.

Returning identical verdicts in each of the cases, the jury of six unemployed American Legion members said:

"Kenneth Reed died from a wound of the abdomen caused when the deceased was struck by a bullet fired from a gun held in the hand of an unknown police officer during a riot that started when a large body of strikers and strike sympathizers numbering approximately 1,500 to 2,000 persons, many of whom were armed with clubs and missles, and who attempted to force their way through a police line, apparently intending to enter the plant of the Republic Steel Corporation, located at 117th street and Burley avenue, May 30, 1937, about 4:30 p. m

Justifiable Homicide.

"From the testimony presented, we, the jury, believe this occurrence to be justifiable homicide."

Thurlow Lewis, counsel for the Illinois district of the United Mine Workers of America and one of four attorneys who renresented union interests at the six-day presentation of evidence, commented:

"Chicago still looks on it with different eyes than the rest of the world."

Mal Coghlan, one of the assistant State's attorneys who questioned witnesses, said he "couldn't see how they could return any other verdict."

In addiiton to Reed, the slain men, some of whom were merely sympathizers not employed in the steel industry, were Sam Popovich, Earl Handley, Otis Jones, Joseph Rothmund, Anthony Taglieri, Leo Francisco, Lee Tisdale, Hilding Anderson and Albert Kausey.

Only One Verdict Read.

Only one verdict was read, Deputy Coroner James J. Whalen explaining the similarity. There was no demonstration and the courtroom used for the inquest was emptied quickly.

David Bentall, a union attorney, demanded that police reports of the riot submitted to Police Commissioner James P. Allman be made available to Coroner Frank Walsh. The request was denied.

Charges of Communism were heard early in the inquest from Police Capt. James Mooney, in charge of the 300 officers on duty at the plant.

Several witnesses to the fray testified the first gunfire came from the marchers' ranks and that stones were thrown and clubs flailed before the police opened fire.

A Paramount newsreel of the battle was shown to the jury Friday. The photographer was one of those who testified that strikers started the hostilities.

Film Banned Again.

The film has been barred from Chicago theaters, and today was banned in suburban Evanston by a ruling of Mayor Henry C. Penfield.

Among the last witnesses were two youths, Clyde James, 19, an ice cream vendor, and Wallace Nelson, 17, son of a nonstriker.

James said he saw "300 or 400" demonstrators armed with clubs when the march from the strikers' headquarters to the mill, a quarter of a mile distant, started.

He testified he saw four men tear a fence down to make clubs, and that someone inside the headquarters handed banners through a window to the marchers, while one man said, "break off the bottom parts and use them for clubs."

The sticks were mostly 2 by 2 or 2 by 4 inches, James said.

Union Attorney Booed.

Nelson, questioned by union attorneys after describing the riot, was asked by Ben Meyers, an attorney for the Steel Workers Organizing Committee:

"Are you proud of being the son of a scab?"

Edward Opeer, 6-foot 5-inch policeman, who had been injured in a skirmish at the plant two days before the big riot, said he witnessed the battle in plain clothes.

He testified he saw marchers armed with "vicious-looking clubs" and others carrying loads of coal, rocks, nuts and bolts.

Officer Elmer Kirk was the last witness. He told of being injured in the same fight in which Opeer was hurt.

Verdict Assailed.

Nicholas Fontecchio, district director for the S. W. O. C., said after the verdict any further action would be "up to our attorneys."

"So it's justifiable to kill people," Fontecchio remarked. "We didn't expect any more from that outfit. They kill our people and it's their own court, so you couldn't expect them to convict themselves."

Fontecchio did not explain whom he meant by "that outfit."

The inquest was closely guarded by police, and only persons with proper business at the hearings were admitted.

Murdered Doctor Faked Office Call

Providence, R. I., July 20 (AP).—A police official said today Dr. George W. Webster, slain 39-year-old obstetrician, used the story of an "appointment" at his office the night before he was shot as an excuse to hide other arrangements he had planned for the evening.

Less than 12 hours before he was killed with a .45-caliber pistol in his doorway, Dr. Webster told Dr. Richard Arlen at Jamestown, R. I., he was forced to go to Providence last Thursday night to keep an 8:15 o'clock appointment.

He made the statement, Dr. Arlen said today, in explanation of his inability to go to Watch Hill and be with his family at their summer home overnight. Police said the physician did not go to his office or have any appointment there.

N. Y. Couple's Mystery Deaths Blamed on Gas

Open Windows Baffle Police; Servant Woman's Body Found Shot.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 20.—Detectives of the homicide squad were confronted with a weird mystery tonight when a medical examiner reported a young couple found dead in their Queens apartment may have been killed by carbon monoxide poisoning.

The victims, George Chinery, 28, and his wife, Ella, 25, had not been seen since last Thursday. Their partly clad bodies were found when police, relatives and neighbors broke into their second-floor apartment last night.

The body of the woman, a bride of five months, lay in bed. Her husband, an employe of a Brooklyn warehouse, was sprawled on the bathroom floor.

Police said all the windows of the apartment were open, a circumstance that puzzled investigators when the carbon monoxide theory was voiced by Assistant Medical Examiner Howard W. Neail.

Gas Is Mystery.

"An opinion based upon the autopsy," Dr. Neail said, "indicates that both may have died from carbon monoxide poisoning. The windows were open. How they could have been killed by gas which did not affect tenants in the first-floor apartment is a deep mystery, as is the source of the gas."

He added there was no evidence of external violence or strangulation.

Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless gas found in the exhaust from automobiles and in the gases caused by the detonation of explosives.

There was a gas range in the apartment, but all the burners were turned off. There also was a gas refrigerator, but police said it was operating normally when they entered.

When the couple did not report for work Monday—Mrs. Chinery was a clerk in the Federal Reserve Bank—relatives were notified. They called police, who forced the door.

Vital organs of the victims were sent to Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, chief city toxicologist, for further study.

In another part of the city police sought some clew to the slaying of a French servant woman, who was shot twice at close range and apparently tossed out of a moving automobile in gangland fashion. The body was found beside the Harlem River Speedway, near 165th street.

Detectives, tracing a label in her clothing, announced she had been identified as Irma Louise Pradier, 35. Her last-known employment was as a domestic at the New York Institute for the Education of the Blind, from 1930 to 1932.

The body was found by two men taking an early morning stroll along the speedway, a motor highway. There were two wounds, one in the left breast and the other in the abdomen under the heart, either one of which would have caused death.

"WHEELBASE started me wondering!"

"When one car has a longer wheelbase than another, it's natural to ask, 'Is it bigger and better in other respects?' In checking other moderate-priced eights against Oldsmobile, I found the answer is 'Yes!' Oldsmobile is superior not only in wheelbase, but in power, tire size, brakes, cooling and many other quality features. You certainly get more for your money in Oldsmobile!"

IT'S SWELL TO FEEL SWELL!

Demand Fresh cigarettes!

It's swell to know, after a long day of hiking, that the Old Gold you light will be fresh as a daisy. It's the one cigarette we've found that doesn't go stale and get on the nerves.
Howard A. White (Editor) and J. Bohannan (writer), Columbus, O.

A "one brand cigarette" girl... I really didn't believe that an extra jacket of Cellophane could make me a "one brand cigarette" girl, but Old Golds are so fresh and delightful I've been won completely. They're a joy to smoke.
Mrs. Earl J. Neff (jewelry designer) Cleveland, Ohio

They Stay Fresh . . . We keep a carton of Old Golds on our boat, and the last pack is always as fresh and delicious as the first, thanks to your double Cellophane wrapping. Their freshness, we think, makes Old Golds more wholesome.
Frank Hovey Smith, New Haven Yacht Club, New Haven, Conn.

Seashore-proof . . . that's what we've found Old Golds to be! That double Cellophane wrapping keeps Old Golds fresh and untouched by the dampness that makes other cigarettes soggy and unfit to smoke. Fresh Double-Mellow Old Golds are our choice!

YOU CAN'T BUY A STALE OLD GOLD

FINE TOBACCOS are like star athletes. When they go stale . . . both fail to deliver top performances.

And it takes so little to spoil a cigarette's condition! A slight change in weather, an overlong wait on a dealer's counter! Then dampness, dust and dryness get in their work. Flavor and aroma disappear. Tongue-bite and throat-irritation creep in. The cigarette neither tastes good nor is good for you!

That is why the initial freshness of the rare prize crop tobaccos, blended into every Double-Mellow Old Gold, is safeguarded by a special weather-tight package. Two jackets (instead of one) of finest moisture-proof Cellophane keep this package weather-tight.

Thus, every Old Gold cigarette reaches your lips as fresh as the minute it was rolled. Rich in flavor. Mild and mellow. Cool and soothing to your throat.

An Empire Builder Passes.

Guglielmo Marconi, dead in Rome at the age of 63, was in a very real sense one of the great empire builders of modern times. But the domain he conquered was non-terrestrial and invisible.

When he began his epoch-making experiments at the end of the last century, much of the spade work in the field of wireless telegraphy theory had already been done by Clerk Maxwell, Hertz, Lodge and other physicists. It was Marconi's contribution to put the findings of these pioneers to practical use.

Only five years elapsed between the time he received the first basic patents for his sending and receiving apparatus and the successful transmission of an electrical impulse through the ether across the broad expanse of the Atlantic. Further developments in the field have been equally rapid. Hundreds of other scientists, inventors and engineers continued where Marconi had begun, although Marconi himself remained throughout his life the unchallenged leader in the field.

It was a breath-taking avalanche of achievement which Marconi had set into motion. Civilization has undergone in recent years a series of rapid changes that are intimately related to Marconi's discovery.

It is a sobering thought that the revolution in communication brought about by wireless telegraphy and telephony has by no means been an unmixed advantage for mankind. Radio has brought the remotest ends of the earth very near to each other, as near as the speed of light permits. But the device has also been distorted into an instrument of propaganda and used to deny that very interdependence among nations and peoples which it so clearly demonstrates. If it has become a useful instrument of popular education, it has also multiplied the potency of demagogues, war-mongers and purveyors of misinformation and malevolence.

Like a great flood, the radio has destroyed as well as fertilized. But for these undreamed consequences of Hertz's discovery of the ether waves and Marconi's transmission of symbols over those waves the scientists and engineers of the world, including Marconi himself, cannot be held responsible. They gave us a new and powerful instrument and it was not their fault that mankind, with its strange propensity for transforming a benefaction into a curse, has not permitted that instrument to be used for constructive purposes alone. At any rate, the world is a very different place to live in because of Marconi's efforts.

Dangerous Loopholes.

Two points in the Federal reorganization bill have brought protests from the National Civil Service Reform League. Its officers have asked for an opportunity to "make constructive suggestions" before the special Senate committee on Government organization and, to judge from published reports of their criticisms, this may fairly be granted them.

First, they note that the bill would exclude from the civil service act all positions in "temporary" emergency agencies. The possibility of abuses under this proposal is obvious. Except in cases of emergency, there seems no valid reason why employes for any Government office, temporary or otherwise, should not be chosen for their ability and training rather than their political influence. But the more important objection is that no authority is designated in the bill to determine which Federal agencies shall be considered "temporary" and which permanent. It is to a large extent the confusion of temporary and permanent organizations which encouraged such a flourishing development of the spoils system in most of the New Deal agencies. Without a strict definition of a "temporary" agency, regularization of Federal employment would be seriously thwarted.

The second point raised by the reform league is the desirability of that section of the reorganization bill which would exclude from the civil service all positions now filled by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate, whether or not they involve policy determining duties. Not only would this leave a long list of postmasterships and internal revenue offices outside the merit system, but it would frankly designate as political plums most high Government offices. Few greater blows could be dealt the idea of a real career service. For unless the possibility of advancement to the top ranks can be offered by the Federal service, it will fail to attract the most capable men and women.

Both these weaknesses, if Congress should fail to remedy them, would effectively blast the President's hope for an extension of the merit system "upward, downward and outward."

The Battle For Madrid.

Whatever its outcome, the titanic battle now raging in the vicinity of Madrid is likely to prove the most decisive of the Spanish civil war.

For a year the tide of war has swung now this way, now that. But neither side has been able to break the stalemate which followed the initial failure of the insurgents to carry through their attempted coup d'etat.

To be sure, Gen. Franco and his followers can point, as evidence of their success, to the fact that the entire western part of Spain except for a narrow strip of land along the Biscay coast is now in their hands. They have successfully resisted attempts to dislodge their forces from strategic points deep in loyalist territory. Indeed, on paper the showing of the insurgents is as impressive as was that of the German armies in France in the spring of 1918. But even as victory for the Kaiser was out of reach unless the armies of the Allies could be effectively smashed, so ultimate victory for Franco will be impossible so long as Madrid remains in loyalist hands.

The struggle for the capital is now in its ninth month. It was in November that Franco's legions reached the Manzanares River and expected within a few hours or days to be in possession of the city. But Madrid did not fall then and has not fallen since despite almost daily bombardments that have reduced much if it to a shambles and despite several frontal and flank attacks that ultimately spent themselves. Now, however, the insurgents have massed a greater aggregation of manpower, artillery and airplanes than ever before.

This rebel offensive had been expected for some time. But when it came the loyalists had already succeeded in driving a salient west of Madrid, thus giving evidence of an offensive power hitherto lacking on their part. For two reasons, therefore, Franco is under compulsion to smash loyalist resistance at this time. If he does not, the advance of the government armies may be resumed and the gains he has made at such great cost may be imperiled. And secondly, the loyalist offensive has made it clear that a powerful army has been built up by the Valencia government which may, by the sheer force of numbers, be able to dominate the situation.

If Franco now succeeds in breaking through the loyalist lines Madrid may be open to him and his principal goal may be reached. That is why he has depleted his forces on all other fronts to strengthen his army in the Madrid sector. It is now or never for him. For with the French attitude on nonintervention stiffening and Great Britain again demanding a withdrawal of all foreigners from the combatant armies in Spain, the continuation of the recent stalemate is likely to work against his interests and in favor of the government.

Should he fail, the back of the insurgent movement would be broken even if the loyalists should then be too weary speedily to follow up their victory. Already for seven days the loyalists at Madrid have shown their capacity to fight back. Their lines have held. But whether they will continue to hold is not yet clear. In any event, the fate of Spain is now in the crucible.

Strikes On Public Projects.

Construction labor on Federal and District building projects is supposed to be protected against exploitation by statutes limiting hours of work, requiring payment of "prevailing" wage rates, and otherwise safeguarding conditions of employment. Since the wages paid to union labor in the building trades are accepted as the local "prevailing" rates, complaints of so-called wage chiseling by contractors are chiefly directed against the practice of substituting unskilled nonunion workers for higher-paid journeymen and apprentices. There are also allegations that the evils of the "kickback" still remain.

It is not at all certain how far violations of the law account for suspension of work on District projects and strikes of painters on Federal projects, with threats of a general sympathetic strike on all Federal construction jobs. Since workers are free to join or not to join a union, there cannot be any doubt as to the right of contractors to employ nonunion labor. However, many questions arise as to the proper interpretation of the law, as shown by the disputes over the classification of building labor employed on District projects.

Public officials are not concerned as to whether workers belong to a union, but they are concerned to see that the laws regarding the hiring of workers on public projects are not circumvented by clever subterfuges. Only impartial inquiry in each case can determine the facts and lay a basis for satisfactory settlement of disputes.

Commissioner Sultan has intervened in the District disputes in a very judicious and practical manner. He has persuaded the unions to call off sympathetic strikes and at the same time he has undertaken to probe charges of unfair dealings on the part of certain contractors. In that way he indicates that coercive strikes directed against fair employers will not be officially condoned, while showing that the District authorities are ready and eager to proceed against lawbreakers." For investigative purposes, the Commissioner has established a special board consisting of three District officials. Its function will be to hear testimony and on the basis of information thus received to adjust the local dispute, if possible.

It is not indicated whether the threatened tie-up of Federal projects resulting from the employment of nonunion painters likewise involves questions of law violation or whether it is a drive to force employment of union labor only. But in any event the services of the conciliators attached to the Department of Labor might well be employed. Certainly, every effort ought to be made with the machinery at command to put an end to controversies that result in stoppage of public construction. If these troubles cannot be dealt with under existing laws, then legislation should be passed speedily to correct the law's deficiencies.

Bungling At Its Worst.

Ineptitude in handling the District's fiscal problem has reached a point where local citizens have ample cause to throw up their hands in despair. The House, in a stubborn and spiteful mood, has refused to authorize loans to save the city from insolvency. The chairman of the House District Committee has forecast failure of the local tax bill. And the impotent local government stands by, unable to avert a financial crisis.

Representative Palmisano's criticism of the District Commissioners for "squawking about the financial situation," and for refusing to raise the real estate tax under present conditions, is merely the climax to an amazing series of events. For months the Commissioners worked with House and Senate committees on tax legislation. It was generally agreed that new sources of revenue must be tapped to meet the prospective $7,000,000 deficit. Accordingly, the House passed a new revenue bill, and the Senate District Committee has reported out a somewhat different measure. In spite of these facts, Mr. Palmisano has taken the Commissioners to task for refusing to solve the problem by a drastic increase in the real estate tax.

No imagination is needed to visualize the uproar that would have been aroused in Congress if the Commissioners had attempted to upset a tax bill on its way to enactment. Such action would have been considered a flagrant challenge to the right of Congress to legislate for the Capital City. Screaming denunciations would doubtless have been heard on the floor. And both houses would probably have joined in putting the Commissioners in their place.

Yet when bungling procedure in the House brings the District face to face with a crisis, Mr. Palmisano pretends that local authorities have been remiss in waiting for Congress to act. That sort of leadership, coupled with the misinformation given the House by the District Committee chairman, leaves very little hope for effective handling of District affairs at the south end of the Capitol.

The simple fact is that Congressional muddling has left the District in a very serious predicament, and leaders on Capitol Hill would like to place the blame for that situation upon local officials. Representative Thompson, for example, complained that Washington people "do not do everything they can to help themselves." Any Congressman with the slightest understanding of the local government knows that citizens of the District are not permitted to help themselves, so far as their acute municipal problems are concerned. In short, the local community is kept in a state of political impotence; the neglect of District affairs by Congress creates serious problems, and then the community is blamed for the failures of Congress.

The exhibition of ignorance and prejudice in the House on Monday offers a full explanation of the District's plight. Congressmen cried out against lending money to the District despite the prospect of payless paydays for police, firemen and other municipal employes. They feared that the money might never be returned, in spite of the fact that Congress has full control over the District's purse. Mr. Palmisano, who was in charge of the loan bill, told the House that the prospective deficit for the current year had been incurred last year, and then cut short his explanation by saying: "I really do not know anything further about it."

Several members assumed that authority to borrow funds is essential only because of delay in the tax bill. Careful explanations that in any event the District will have insufficient funds to last until taxes are collected in the autumn have fallen on deaf ears. Representative Shafer frankly told his colleagues that "many of them do not know what they are talking about." But the most distressing fact is that, apparently, they do not care to be accurate or fair when dealing with District affairs.

In spite of Mr. Palmisano's willingness to surrender to this orgy of prejudice, Congress has a real obligation to pass an equitable tax bill at the earliest practicable moment. And unless Congress wishes to advertise its mismanagement of the District throughout the Nation, it must provide loans to save the helpless Capital City from bankruptcy. The House's selfish revolt against the income tax has not yet been forgotten. Another major fiasco of that type at a time when a real crisis impends would offer rather conclusive proof of the inability of Congress to manage the affairs of the District intelligently.

On Stealing Scrap.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since the appearance in The Post of yesterday morning of my letter in re the desirability of the United States Government's scrapping their own obsolete ships, several of my friends have accused me of undue exaggeration because I used the old saw, "stealing a red hot stove."

Now, as a matter of fact, I do not know of an authentic instance where a stove in the condition of temperature mentioned has been stolen by the Scrap Iron Enthusiast. But I will quote these other occurrences, which will demonstrate, I hope, that the stove incident is not so far-fetched as it may seem.

During the tercentenary year in this State, 1934, several very handsome markers were erected and placed at various historical homes. These were quite large—more than 36 inches square—and cost something over $60 each.

Three of these markers (possibly more of them which I know nothing about) have been since stolen. The one at Araby, the home of the Widow Eilback; the one at the crossroads pointing the way to Smallwood's Retreat, the home of William Smallwood, a general in the Revolutionary War and later Governor of Maryland, and the marker at Rose Hill, the home of Dr. Gustavus Brown, a close personal friend of Gen. Washington, who, with Gen. Craik, was one of the attending physicians during the last illness of that great man.

The Historical Society of Maryland can testify as to the truth of this statement, as well as the sheriff of Charles County.

I have been informed, although I cannot affirm that the cases I am about to relate are facts, that the State Highway Department of Maryland lost a steam roller, which was dismantled, broken up and removed between dark and dawn some few months past. There is also an incident, I have been advised, where a small steel bridge across a small stream on a secondary road was carted away.

I have an idea that there have been several other instances that will go to show that some people for some reason or other are interested in scrap-iron, and also steel.

This enthusiasm seems to be general with the United States Government.

Undemocratic, I suppose, for the Government to save money.

Mr. Morgan's Speech.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A big majority of the citizens of our State will fully agree with the criticism in Mr. Berry's letter in your paper a few days ago of a speech made before the Virginia Bankers Association by M. R. Morgan. Morgan struck a sour note when he opposed bigger and better banks for our State.

There is something radically wrong when one sees dozens of small-loan and finance companies successfully operating all over the State.

Loans by these companies are well secured either by indorsement or collateral; little or nothing is lost from such loans; yet 40 per cent interest is collected from a class of our citizens least able to pay such an exorbitant charge.

A more able and more liberal banking setup is the imperative need of the State today. If Mr. Morgan and his cohorts of the Virginia Bankers Association and the small-loan companies can't stand such competition, then their misfortune will be the public's gain.

If the present banking system of the State has through its ineptness in matters of finance come to the point where it cannot stand the competition of modern banking technique, then the sooner it is replaced by the new system of branch banking backed up by ample capital and a desire to serve the needs of the small borrower at a fair rate, all the better for everyone.

Eternal Vigilance Needed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Communism is a false doctrine and is contrary to the principles of our free government as laid down in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. This, however, does not justify the vicious statements that are frequently made concerning communism by those apparently having "an ax to grind." The basic principles of the American Government are: Freedom of thought and speech and right of private judgment in all matters; freedom of worship, complete separation of church and state; free, nonsectarian public school education, and others of equal importance. The founders of our government wisely provided against ecclesiastical domination of any sort.

No system, political or ecclesiastical, based on imperialistic rule, is suited to the free American mind. The idea of religious freedom in America was born in the cabin of the Mayflower, in the midst of a company of God-fearing men and women escaping from religious persecution and seeking a land where they could be free to worship God. Compare this with South America and Mexico, and even Spain, now struggling to throw off the incubus that for centuries kept the people in darkness and superstition, and under despotic rule that bred anything but the Gospel light of truth. Little did Martin Luther know, when he nailed his 95 theses to a church door, of the far-reaching effects of the great Protestant revolution, which has encircled the globe, carrying with it enlightenment and the uplift of mankind.

There is no room in this land, dedicated to human freedom, for religious or political autocracy. No system, whatever its pretentions, should be permitted to gain so strong a foothold here as to be able to control the minds and actions of the American people, or to dictate the policies of our Government. To prevent such a catastrophe all right-minded people must be on their guard, remembering that "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

The System To Blame.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Dr. E. B. Henderson's communications always reflect the courage and character of a citizen who believes much more in the defense of our democracy than the majority. If this were not so it would not be necessary for Dr. Henderson to point out the glaring defects in our social and economic system. However, Dr. Henderson's last communication fails to give either the cause or cure for racial segregation.

The student of history or politics cannot agree that: "The purpose of segregation in a democracy can only be defended as a temporary expediency necessary for the social welfare." True, the above is generally the excuse offered for segregation—from colonial times to the present, but it is a flimsy screen for demagogues to hide behind. In every nation, Poland, Palestine, Italy, Germany, Rumania, Japan, England, Cuba or North America, the basis for racial segregation and its attending racial hatred, is the demand for cheap labor—and cheap labor means unorganized labor. Therefore the basis for racial segregation is economic, and the issue cannot be settled except by the establishment of a social system dedicated to use instead of profit. An examination of the histories of nations and peoples of the past would lead us to believe that such harmony, such a Utopia, is not possible under capitalism.

Wilson And Roosevelt.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: That our Democratic Presidents commit some serious errors does not alter my adherence to the principles of democracy.

Mr. Wilson killed himself fighting for an unsound cause. The difference in Mr. Roosevelt's case is that he is killing his friends in a useless battle in behalf of an unsound contention.

Mr. Roosevelt has a firmer grasp than Mr. Wilson possessed of the first law of nature.

The Wagner Housing Bill Defended.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Referring to your editorial of July 19, 1937, "Unfinished Business," in which the statement is made "The housing program appears to have been tossed about by expert consultants who were unable to agree upon a compromise plan," let me say for your information that all the housing authorities in the United States, State boards of housing, as well as the unofficial agencies interested in obtaining actual low-rent housing for the people in the income group under $1,000 a year are in complete agreement with respect to the Wagner bill as being the best type of legislation to meet a highly critical situation, which is hourly growing worse.

Of course, these practical and experienced men who make up the housing authorities and their staffs and the State boards of housing and their staffs do not claim to be "expert consultants." As practical men and experienced men they base their claim to speak with some degree of authority with respect to housing upon actual experience rather than theory and upon their intimate knowledge of the tragic situation confronting thousands of families in the great industrial centers of the United States.

Early in the spring it had become necessary in some of the smaller cities of Michigan to house not only the poor but employed workers in tents. At the present moment in the great City of Detroit, the city council has legislation before it proposing the immediate purchase of tents to house the dispossessed Detroit families who at the present time are living in public parks without any shelter.

In the States of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio the Governors of the States and the mayors of the cities are considering the use of State armories and of vacant industrial plants, theaters and auditoriums for the housing of people during the coming winter. Mass herding of population in this manner can only be justified for a temporary period as the result of some public catastrophe such as the recent floods or the city-wide destruction of homes by earthquakes, fire, or similar calamity. In passing, it might be remarked, also, that there is a shortage of tents and that even this inadequate substitute for a house is impossible to obtain in the volume required to establish tent cities.

It might also be stated that at the hearings before the Senate Committee of Education and Labor on the Wagner-Steagall bill, Mr. Stewart McDonnald of the FHA and representatives of the Housing Division of the PWA testified in favor of the Wagner-Steagall bill and that Secretary Ickes of the Department of the Interior, who is certainly entitled to speak with authority on the subject, also filed a memorandum in favor of the Wagner-Steagall bill. According to press reports both the President and Senator Wagner, the sponsor of the bill, are in agreement on the bill in the form in which it is expected it will be reported by the Senate Committee this week.

It may be pertinent, then, to inquire who are these so-called "expert consultants" who are said to be in disagreement over the terms of the bill. What is their experience with respect to the creation of low-rent public housing and what is their knowledge of the extent of the grave situation confronting the country?

If the present Congress should adjourn without enacting the Wagner-Steagall bill it is not exaggerating the situation to say that it will probably be necessary to summon Congress in special session to meet a crisis which will then no longer be possible to ignore.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

Uncle Sam And The Future

Uncle Sam is now asked to take up in a big way the business of looking into the future and taking care of things that may never happen.

• • • •

A Committee on National Resources has just filed a 450,000-word report on technological trends and national policy with special attention to the Social Implications of New Inventions. A great many new inventions are bound to develop in the future and Washington should do something about 'em now, the committee thinks.

• • • •

Maybe what we need is a Department of Predictions and Forecasts and a new Cabinet officer to be known as the Secretary of the You-Never-Can-Tell Department.

• • • •

The country is charged with failing to give proper attention to inventions and new ideas of past history. The minute it heard Hank Ford was out behind the barn tinkering with a horseless carriage, this development should have been referred to a Federal Bureau which would have taken up immediately the problem of how this might affect livery stable attendants, harness makers, buggy whip designers and blacksmiths.

• • • •

And years ago when the Wright brothers made that first airplane flight down Kitty Hawk way Washington should have put the matter in charge of the Bureau of Crystal Gazing, with instructions to drop everything and make a few preliminary arrangements for a Lindbergh flight.

• • • •

Away back when Signor Marconi first flashed radio signals, a smart and alert government would have turned all the facts over to some million-dollar bureau with a suggestion that the day might come when the country would sit in an easy chair in front of a $30 set and listen to a 60-piece orchestra advertise a washing powder.

• • • •

When Thomas Edison succeeded in producing a flicker in an incandescent bulb the President of the United States should have been notified at once, so that he could get a Federal Commission on Imagination at work finding out what the ultimate loss would be to the sulphur match industry and what would become of gas jets.

• • • •

All these inventions changed the pattern of life in America and the Government went on just trying to take care of the current troubles without reaching out for distant worries.

• • • •

But no more. We're going to wake up now and start reaching out for our headaches in advance.

• • • •

Okay, Washington. And while you're at it will you look up the matter of where we will be 20 years from now if we have to go on using paper towels?

Ah, those waggish cameramen!

Representative Scott, of California, suggests legislation preventing the use of the "navy and other costly Government agencies to search for publicity stunt flyers." This would seem to establish a new low for the year in misdirected energy and entitle him to the Pettiness of the Month prize.

The National Resources Committee is somewhat alarmed by trailers. It thinks they may mean smaller families on account of cramped quarters. Haven't they heard of the combination quick reversible radio, cradle and icebox?

The Saratoga racing season is near at hand and in anticipation of it we understand a couple of those old-time Saratoga hotels have gone to the trouble of repairing the doorknobs, putting handles on the sink faucets and, in certain exceptional instances, plugging up leaks in the roof.

"Old-Fashioned Business Man."

In his speech when he laid the cornerstone of the new Federal Trade Commission Building the other day, President Roosevelt referred to himself as "an old-fashioned business man." What he meant is hard to see, unless he was spoofing, as he did when he termed his Supreme Court packing measure a step to lessen the onerous duties of the justices.

If the President is an old-fashioned business man, heaven be our helper if we ever get an honest-to-goodness spendthrift in the White House.

The Nature of Insanity

By Nell Nifong.

"THE Mentally Ill in America" deserves reading if for no other reason than that it is the first history of its kind. In the wider aspect of American history, which includes sociology, the madhouse has been tactfully overlooked. Americans who are accustomed to think of "Bedlam" in England with refined horror will be surprised to read Dorothea Dix's report made in 1836:

"Lincoln—A woman caged.
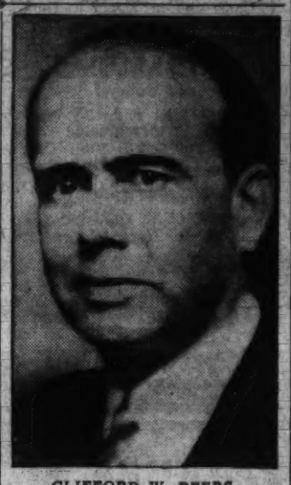
Savoy. One man caged . . .
Concord . . . Lenox . . . Dedham . . . Franklin . . . Taunton . . ."
And so on.



CLIFFORD W. BEERS.

At the beginning of the report, which was read to the Massachusetts Legislature, she exploded:

"I proceed, gentlemen, briefly to call to your attention to the state of insane persons confined within this Commonwealth, in cages, closets, cellars, stall, pens; chained, naked, beaten with rods and lashed into obedience!"

This was nearly 50 years after Pinel, the great French reformer, struck the chains from the mad in the Paris asylum, the Biceyre.

The extent of Miss Dix's efforts, and the manner in which she relentlessly pushed her cause, is indicated in this brief summary of her first three years of reform work, in a letter which she wrote to a friend:

"I have traveled more than 10,000 miles in the last three years, have visited 18 State penitentiaries, 300 county jails, more than 500 almshouses and other institutions, besides hospitals and houses of refuge. I have been so happy as to promote and secure the establishment of six hospitals for the insane, several county poorhouses and several jails on a reformed plan."

And all this in spite of the fact that she confessed "I am naturally diffident and timid, like all my sex!"

• • • •

THERE were two principal causes for this shameful condition, which existed all over America well through the last century and into this one. The first was the Yankee cult of economy, which prompted the dropping of insane persons into other counties, their indiscriminate herding in jails and poorhouses, and, worse yet, the "auctioning" off of the pauper insane to the lowest bidder. A man might keep a harmless lunatic for five cents a week, meanwhile working him in the fields or penning him up in a little stall like an animal.

The other cause was the abiding ignorance of the nature of insanity. During the days when the devil was an important figure in public life, superstitious ignorance prompted the witch-hunting craze, and many a demented old woman was burned at stake. Even the hospitals of the last century, well-meaning as they were, underwent a vicious circle of fads. Dr. Benjamin Rush, "the father of American psychiatry," who wrote the first American pathological treatise, invented the "tranquilizer"—a chair which held the patient absolutely immovable and blind. Other men, equally well-meaning, invented the water cure, which consisted of holding a patient under water for three or four minutes, and then resuscitating him—if he were still alive—in the hopes of his awakening upon a new life. Imagine their consternation when one fellow sat up briskly and asserted: "You can't drown love."

In the hospital records of those days one finds the causes of mental aberration listed, "disappointed affections, "too much novel reading," "tobacco," "ecclesiastical difficulties." During the period around 1830, when everyone very suddenly began to believe insanity to be "90 per cent curable," there was a wonderful bolstering up of records, and one hospital proudly measured its benefits according to the number of pounds of weight the mass body of patients had gained. With such diagnoses and theories, what could one expect?

Even as late as 1900 institutions for the insane were conducted on cruel and inhumane lines. It was during this year that Clifford Whittingham Beers entered a mental hospital in Connecticut to be transferred at various times to two others also in that State. He was beaten mercilessly, choked and reviled by the attendants, imprisoned in dark padded cells and forced to wear a straight jacket for as many as 21 consecutive nights.

In 1903 he emerged ready to take his place again in the world of mentally competents. But he did not forget what he had been through. The result of his suffering was that remarkable classic, "A Mind That Found Itself." It created a profound impression and thus was started the mental hygiene movement.

• • • •

DR. DEUTCH has done an admirable job in showing how the currents of history have touched that backwash of human affairs—the occasional village idiot and the poorhouse epileptic. Rousseau, Thomas Paine and the rise of rational humanitarianism in the late 1700s had their echo in a greater emphasis on nonrestraint for the insane and an excessive use of blood-letting and other "rational" medical treatment. Similarly, Miss Dorothea Dix was a typical product of her age—a New England old maid with a deep sense of duty and morality. The entire reform movement of the eighteenth century was away from the medical and toward "moral" treatment. The Civil War brought with it neurology, just as every war brings some renewed interest in hygiene, and the criticisms of neurologists gave superintendents of mental hospitals something to fight with—and for.

with the publication of Clifford Beers' book. This work did not stop with a mere indictment. It concluded with a concrete program for the amelioration and prevention of the evil conditions it described . . .

Given this new impetus, mental hygiene pushed on into the field of the social sciences and identified itself with the case-worker. It probed into the life of the school child. It branched off into behaviorism and psychoanalysis and struggled with job adjustment.

Dr. Deutch has taken an encyclopedic scope and attention to detail. He ranges from the finding of a savage idiot in the woods of France in 1798 through an extraordinary history of institutions, men who founded institutions, philosophers, statesmen, social reformers, theorists, politicians, villagers, reporters . . . He discusses, finally, the modern theories of psychology, the growing rate of insanity, and the social and economic strain which causes it. Unless that strain can be somewhat eased, we face the prospect of a world of the mad. And, even now, there are confining apparatus in use in asylums in the United States. There is much to be done in the field.

Stranger in a Strange Land

By Howland H. Sargeant.

World War years were a precarious fitting school for the Americanization of a young German, still in his 'teens and fresh from a "very alone growing-up" in the small villages of Tirol and the lakes of Upper Austria. Yet that same freshness of mind which led Ludwig Bemelmans fervently to expect the New York Elevated to be a sort of glorified roller coaster, dipping and rising with every Manhattan housetop, carried him serenely through the trying years of 1914-1918 as a member of the United States Army—first at Fort Ontario at a field hospital; then at a Hospital for the Insane at Fort Porter in Buffalo, where most of the action of the book takes place; and last, at an officers' training school at Camp Gordon near Atlanta.

Today, Ludwig Bemelmans is known as restauranteur, short story writer and experimenter, author of childrens' books, illustrator, interior decorator, and creator of stage decor. In those early days, however he was simply a German youth, an object of laughter because of his accent and his inability to conceal his sense of shock at the lack of Teutonic order and discipline in the American army. He was gifted however with visual imagery of a high order, and with a rare sympathy for what he saw about him. He kept a record in his German diary of this strange world about him, and this book is a translation of excerpts from that diary, faithful even to the author's delightfully eccentric pencil sketches.

The thread of drama which gives some unity to these separate sketches is the emotional experience which the author undergoes in his work with the insane. From the first, he wrote in his diary of the patients that "the transfer of their misery makes me limp and terribly tired." The time comes moreover when he realizes that some of the attendants have themselves become deranged, and that the danger even threatens his own mind. This is the second bead on his rosary of dangerous living. After days of struggle, he finds that by conjurging up scenes from his childhood, like the walk from the Castle Tirol, or a performance of the Munich Peasant Theater, he can create "mental pictures luminous, alive, and real," scenes to which he can escape instantly when the danger is imminent.

Later, he found that he had almost conquered the fear, save for occasional awakenings in the middle of the night, trembling and wet from head to toe. In time, he even grew so bold because of his "Islands of Security" that he constantly tried to "walk out further on the thin plank of reason, to gamble with the chance of not being able to come back." Although the physical sensations of the appearance of the danger never changed, his mental attitude could quite control the fear. His nearest approach to a sociological comment from this experience is his feeling of the hopelessness of the asylum. The patients, he thinks, would find a cure in "some one thing they can love outside of themselves. But of course I cannot see myself how this could be put into practice."

Drawing by Bemelmans.

"Summer Sprouts."

Of more general interest is the delicate whimsy which permeates the book. Bemelmans is a master of contrast, and he excels in descriptive writing. For this reason he achieves effects which give relief to even the most distressing situations by sudden alternations of the tragic and the comic. The author, convinced his mind is loose from its moorings, and grimly determined to end his life, walks toward the guardhouse to secure a gun—and on the way stumbles over an ether-stupefied cat. "It is so strange and funny, everyone laughs; so must I, and it seems so silly and useless to think that one might want to die."

It is just because Bemelmans is so good a descriptive writer, and so sensitive to impressions of this strange and bewildering country, that the reader can apprehend more than a fragment of his mind's quality. He is an innovator, too. He supplies a name for much of our bitter industrial landscape — our "railroad tracks, signal masts, coal sheds, a factory building and some freight cars, a gas tank, and manufacturing plants, black with soot." This is "Beautiful Dreck"—and it is remarkable not simply that he describes it so well, but that he does convey the impression of the stark beauty in such typical scenes.

He is able to analyze foibles of both countries impartially. There is the criticism of typical American faults in speaking German—"the mouth too hollow and in back of the teeth." There is also this comment on his native land: "The thought of German children is one to weep over . . ." "I always feel bad when I see many people do the same thing, that is, marching, playing, singing, particularly marching; and when I see children marching, and certainly so with a band, my eyes fill with tears, why, I don't know." Of his German people, he says; "The brutality comes from the uniform, the policeman, the official. I love half of them, the other half I detest." Many a tourist will bear him out in this feeling.

Bemelmans had a good reportorial ear, and some of his dialogues are character vignettes, well worthy of Hall or Overbury or any of the seventeenth century masters of this seldom-attempted art. Readers will find, however, that the sketches have the strength to stand by themselves. Occasional flavor of German idiom (such as speaking of Niagara Falls as "where the water turns down") are pleasant to the ear, and convey none of the grotesqueness of Mark Twain's parodies. It is the freshness of mind above all that will delight most readers. When a German youth clears himself of suspicion of being a spy with so altogether whimsical a story as that of the Elephant Cutlet, which concludes the book, even those most intolerant of whimsy must succumb to its charm, on the pen of Mr. Bemelmans.

While abroad last year on a Guggenheim Fellowship, John Bakeless uncovered what he claims are six years of Christopher Marlowe's life about which no previous writer has known anything at all . . . According to Mr. Bakeless, newspapers helped the poet write at least one of his plays, "The Massacre at Paris" . . . It must have been a dreary business waiting for newspapers to come out in those days because they were only printed whenever a really interesting story broke . . . The printers brought out an issue whenever they had such a story and between times they suspended publication . . . Them was the good olde days . . .

The Oxford University Press has just published David Baird's "The Thane of Cawdor" which is nothing more or less than Macbeth presented as a detective story . . . The detective problem of Macbeth is: The King of Scotland was found murdered in his bed in the castle of Macbeth, in very strange circumstances . . . Could this crime have been brought home to the Macbeths by evidence, before Lady Macbeth walked in her sleep and revealed the truth? . . . Are they also proved guilty of the murder of Banquo, by the facts surrounding that deed? . . . Baird's book is a narrative as it might have been written by Lady Macbeth's physician before the sleep-walking had confirmed the suspicions which he had formed on evidences (reported in the play) left by the Macbeths . . . I don't know what classic they'll be fooling around with next . . . A likely candidate is "Black Beauty, the Autobiography of a Horse" . . . Lush Fiction

"NO MORE REMAINS," by Leonard O. Mosley. (Doubleday, Doran, $2.)

Take any triangle story of young lovers and a middle-aged husband, add that one of the lovers is entangled unwillingly, throw in a judicious amount of suspense due to the impermanency of the lady's face, and you have "No More Remains."

Leonard O. Mosley, a young Englishman, served his apprenticeship as a writer covering crime stories for a New York paper. His first novel "So I Killed Her" ignored the usual detective story methods and projected itself into the mind of a murderer with a view toward psychological analysis. Reviewers hailed it variously as "lurid and lush" or "brilliantly devised, bitingly written." Be that as it may, in his second novel, "No More Remains" the author has left the scene of crime and produced a book not lurid, but definitely "lush."

The oft told tale of the ugly duckling did not explain the psychological reaction of the swan on discovering its beauty. This is what the author attempts to do in the story of Elizabeth Scott. Hideously ugly as a result of a motor accident, Elizabeth spends her girlhood hidden from the world by a veil, waiting for a doctor able to restore her beauty. She regains it at the age of 23 through the skill of Franz Rhinehart, a plastic surgeon. Believing her great gratitude a sufficient substitute for love, and wishing to repay Dr. Rhinehart, Elizabeth marries him despite the disparity in their ages.

The character of Elizabeth does not change with her face. Her new found beauty merely makes possible the release of her smouldering vanity and sensuality. After her first burst of gratitude, she finds that Franz's dog-like, fumbling devotion irritates and bores her. A young lover enters the scene in the form of Rolf West, a newspaper columnist. Elizabeth's age-old choice between duty and love brings on a tragic denouement through which she discovers that she will always be a prisoner to her synthetic face.

The theme, while not brilliantly devised is clever, but in the handling does not achieve its potential dramatic possibilities. It is, as Shakespeare would have it, "indifferent well made." The characters seem to lack a third dimension. A pencil sketch rather than an oil portrait, the outline is good but not filled in.

Rolf West approaches a living personality. Perhaps this is due to Mr. Mosley's intimate knowledge of young newspapermen. You will add none of these characters to your gallery of famous persons. They are adequate but short-lived—interesting only in so far as they advance the plot. Except for a few dull moments spent reviewing the past life of Franz Rhinehart (and here the details of plastic surgery may interest some readers) the story unwinds with restrained melodrama to its inevitable conclusion. Although certainly not a book deserving a permanent place on your bookshelf, "No More Remains" is capable of livening a few dull hours.

Short Stories

"I ASKED NO OTHER THING," by Cora Jarrett. (Farrar & Rhinehart, $2.50.)

No, this volume of short stories by Cora Jarrett—some of them new and others reprinted from an earlier collection—is not a series of case histories, as her novels might lead one to expect. Instead, she has here confined herself to brief studies of ordinary people. Some of them are small, mean, and at times a trifle dull—as mental cases are. Each she has pinned neatly to his card, and in a copperplate hand written in the identifying label.

Obviously, characters which can be so treated could not have been complex to begin with. Then, too, Mrs. Jarrett portrays them with an economy that allows no superfluous detail. In consequence, her people here never quite come alive. They are used too neatly, each to express a human characteristic Mrs. Jarrett is bent on pinioning for the moment.

To readers with a relish for neatness—for women, say, without a hair out of place—these stories will seem wholly admirable. But to those who like "a sweet disorder in the dress," these tales will seem juts a little too pat. This patness is particularly characteristic of her plots in this volume. Each is rounded out with a completeness that leaves no room for speculation. Some of them, indeed, are old favorites, refurbished by Mrs. Jarrett, given a touch of sophistication, all loose ends tucked into place. Many of the plots hinge on an inanimate object, easily spotted even without Mrs. Jarrett's pointing finger in such titles as "The Screw," "The Map," "The Shadow and the Crack" and "The Latch-Key."

The reader knows, for example, that the story teller in "The Man With the Nine Fingers" will turn out, by the light of a match, of course, to have nine fingers himself. The jacket blurb calls such devices conventionalized surprise endings that are no surprise at all. "You see the end coming; it advances with fatality." Let us say with inevitability, at any rate. What the wife will do in "The Second Impulse" is readily guessed before that second impulse rolls around. Its appearance would have fatality if either the wife or the husband really mattered. But they are not people with whom one can become involved. They are merely a sensitive wife and a bullying husband, and their respective fates do not greatly concern us.

Ordinarily, one would not expect profound character studies in a summer volume of short stories. Unfortunately, however, Mrs. Jarrett has been compared to Henry James by some of her adherents—who are many. Then, too, she has chosen to point her stories and to title the volume with quotations from Emily Dickinson. On both counts her work invites strictest inspection. This examination leaves one with the feeling that in these stories she is no female James, but rather a Vanity Fair edition of O. Henry, which comparison is praise enough for many.

Summer Fiction

"TIME PIECE," by Naomi Jacob. (Macmillan, $2.50.)

"MAGNIFICENT" may be high sounding, but no other word will qualify for the spirited heroine of "Time Piece." Here is a fast moving novel by an English authoress, admirably written and entertaining from start to finish.

As a child, the dynamic energy and determination of Claudia Marsden was already a recognized force. People said it was a pity she hadn't been born a boy, but Claudia acknowledged no handicap attached to her sex. She was a pioneer back in the days of Queen Victoria, claiming woman's right to work.

NAOMI JACOB.

London with her husband's parents, an old Jewish couple. Ferdinand Coster, her father-in-law, named her as partner in the firm and heiress to the business. Hard working by day and scintillating by night, Claudia quickly becomes a person of importance. Then David Betterton arrives with the first bottling machine and love.

The story continues with Claudia dominating every scene. The subordinate character she sets spinning about her. After her second marriage she returns to Yorkshire and enthusiastically superintends the restoration of her old home. She takes over the management of the Bower Machine Factory and buys more land for a dairy farm, but that's not all; twice a week she commutes to London to supervise the Coster Wine Business. The book covers more than 50 years of continuous activity. Finally with her children and grandchildren about her, Claudia still sets the pace and paradoxically reprimands her nephew for timing the piece work at the factory from the fastest worker.

THERE are occasions when Claudia appears more officious than efficient and her fiery bursts of temper relegate her to a class with the proverbial "fish wife," but there is no pigeonholing a woman who can address a group of striking factory workers, when the news of her son's death (killed in action) has just been made known to her by the telegram still crumpled in her hand. " . . . Then her tall figure dominated the crowd and she stood facing them in silence . . . she spoke to the workers in their own dialect, the language of the Broad Acres . . . 'Bower's on strike!' she said. 'That's pretty! That's t'kind of news to 'ear when you cum back fra' Lundon, where everyone's talking of the need fur sheils.'" . . .

The success story of Claudia Marsden will appeal principally to women. Few men will appreciate the early crop of male weaklings (the average improves later in the book) or take kindly to the emphatic denial of male superiority. Miss Jacob expresses herself voluable concerning the double standard and aims particular venom at so called "wild oats." She lashes out at the hypocrisy of some members of the clergy and carried on a bitter campaign against war. The story might have been stronger if Miss Jacob hadn't tried to put quite so much across.

MARY LOUISE JOHNSON.

"STAR-BEGOTTEN," by H. G. Wells. (Viking, $1.75.)

THIS original book has been written before.

Now in case that sounds too much like a smart-aleck book reviewer, we mean—this book is about still another "Utopia," of which we have already had hundreds (to read about), but H. G .Wells does such a smart job of it that it seems like a new idea. Even Mr. Wells, however, has some pretty thick going in places and there are pages where he depends more on wit than he does on contents to hold your attention. It's hard to pump new ink into an old story.

Joseph Davis, a successful novelist and writer of Pollyanna, suddenly wakes up one foggy morning to wonder if, after all, this is the best possible of worlds. Then he stumbles on a quasi-scientific discussion at his well-upholstered club. You may stumble on this part, too, for it is a glorious complication of chemistry, physics, biology, astronomy and what's next, all leading to the harum-scarum hypothesis that perhaps the people on Mars are sending light rays to the earth and creating new types of humanity. Davis, who is about to become a father, is pretty much upset by the idea.

HE is so much upset by it that he begins to believe it. How others around him sense it and carry it farther is the gist of the "plot." Nothing ever really happens, but there is an awful lot of talk.

The new Martian will be more alert, more intelligent; he will seek and bring about vast upheavals in social reform, and so forth and so forth. He will make new scientific discoveries; he will enlarge the scope of his activities; he will ask questions and answer them.

And then, Wells slaps your face. For when Keppel, the scientist, is pinned down to the absolute possibility of the things that he and the others are foretelling he replies, "Yes—and no."

"Star-Begotten" is actually nothing but a clever and fanciful essay, and if you pick it up expecting to be plunged into the midst of an exciting adventure story of the Buck Rogers school, you'll be disappointed.

There is always a chance, however, that you may interpret Wells as meaning, particularly in the last chapter, that all of us are Martians, and that Martians are just people. If you can take this last little joke in the friendly manner in which it is intended, then all the rest of the tongue-in-cheek circumlocutions that led up to it will be worth the $1.75 you pay for the book.

Captains of Early Maryland

"CAPTAINS AND MARINES OF EARLY MARYLAND," by Raphael Semmes. (Johns Hopkins Press.)

When "captains and mariners" ventured from England's shores in 1633 to help settle Maryland, the distress of meager craft and angry sea were fit ritual for the more rigorous tasks here. Troubles beset them at all turns, but in their triumph over adversity, they wrote a stirring saga into the situs of what now is Maryland, part of northern Virginia and the District.

No scores of pioneer narratives indicate, and the essence of fact from varied sources as distilled in histories, affirms. Now, much of this narrative and fectual data has been collated into a gigantic tome, titled "Captains and Mariners of Early Maryland," by Dr. Raphael Semmes of the Johns Hopkins, whose press issues the work.

Too diffuse in character to make its context unusual as Americana, the book, nonetheless, narrows a vast field and for immediate readers serves dually: it is regional history dissected and served-up sans coloration or condiment, and its fact is forceful and fascinating; so much so that it obscures the pedantic edges of an often arid prose style.

These mariners arrived in the "Dove" and the "Ark," but here was no ready haven. They contended with Virginians who soon objected to the closing of the upper Chesapeake Bay region to their trading, and Gov. Bradford had, finally, to lead them to their share of the choice Indian barter. Delaware had to be checked, with warnings to the residents from the Governor to respect his jurisdiction, and later, William Penn was involved in this controversy with the Dutch. Internally, William Claiborne challenged the Calverts' jurisdiction in 1632, claiming priority, in his effort to retain Kent Island.

Yet these were not all the major aspects. Having won the first brushes with the Indians, the Maryland settlers were not yet free from sporadic attacks. Women and children were continual victims, as the chapter headed "Tomahawks, Liquor and Provincial Justice" recounts; it is, indeed, a blood and thunder epic in miniature, with heroic rescues and Algerlike daring by these hardy males—for those were the days when men were men and there was no doubt about them.

And amidst their many trials, the transplanted Englishmen had to overcome Gallic craftiness, for here the French took Indian wives to "better adapt themselves" to the way of life, and the French Government nodded. Religiously, Maryland was not without its struggles: the Jesuits, striving and suffering to convert the savage hordes, had yet a left-handed struggle with the Protestants, and each of the three factions used ruses to fuel the fears of the others.

There is extended consideration of the original Americans. The largest chapter is one headed "Vanished Tribes of Southern Maryland," and it is to these that Dr. Semmes has dedicated his work. It is clear that he has felt the impress of their simple honesty and courage as deeply as ethnologists and historians of other periods.

The fact and incident pertinent to them is treated with a commendable detachment. Perhaps it was such spirit of genuine co-operativeness with no hint of preconceived antagonism that helped white man accomplish more with the Indians than frequent unfounded and cruel onslaughts upon their lesser numbers.

'Stan' Gordon Perfect Host At Hamilton

By Chanticleer

Personal nomination for one who has a real conception of the true meaning contained in the word "host," Stanley S. Gordon, manager of the Hamilton Hotel. "Stan" is more worthy of this designation by reason of the manner in which he so easily manages to carry over a good deal of the personal element of true hospitality into the commercial realms of providing entertainment for those who nightly throng the ever-popular Rainbow Room of his hostelry.

No reason for us to expand on this, for those of you who have been there (and who hasn't) recognized in the general air of the place the hand of one who knows and likes his business. Take the music of the Meyer Davis unit batoned by singing Milton Davis . . . it's good, it's different, and it's the type that will bring you back for more. Isn't that an indication of the management's attention to the details? And in the person of Ginger Lee, the young and very beauteous young lady (wno warbles pretty ditties) we find another example of "Stan's" attention to detail. We could go on and on, but this should be enough to give you the general idea that Chanticleer takes this opportunity of doffing his topper to one who is tops in hospitality. Best of luck, "Stan," and we mean it.

There is a matinee performance at 1 p. m., then again at 7:30 p. m., and the last during the supper dancing at 11:30 p. m. The Lotus is air-conditioned and is one of the most popular places of dancing and dining in downtown Washington. Featured on this week's program are Jordan and Grace, in something new in novelty; Guido and Eva, in Creative Dance Moods and a fast and difficult Adagio Acrobatic; Marion Dawn, singing the latest song hits; the Franklin Sisters, rhythm queens of th revue, and Sue Harmon, doing individual acrobatics. Al Norton is master of ceremonies and Bill Strickland and his Capitolians are playing for dancing and accompaniment of the show.

Also, if you do not care to take our word for it, just ask someone who has experienced what we are about to tell you. Located on that highway is the Nightingale Club, and within this spot is one of the best dance floors in this locality, and we don't mean mayhap. It's a real dance floor, with plenty of room, and the music of Watson Powell and his ten-piece "Moods in Blue" orchestra is a revelation to all doubting Thomases. Combine this information with the added attraction of popular prices that prevail at this spot and you have the answer to why this place is rapidly climbing the ladder of night club fame. It is more than worth your visit, and there is no cover.

Merit System Ruling Sought By Montgomery

O'Conor Opinion Awaited on Department, Commission Employes.

Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland will be asked to render an opinion regarding the status employes of three county departments and two bi-county commissions will have under the new merit system of appointment to become effective in Montgomery County October 1.

County commissioners and Col. Harry C. Jones, State employment commissioner, who will supervise the examination and classification of candidates for positions under the new setup, conferred for several hours at Rockville yesterday on plans for the installation of the merit system. They were unable to decide, however, whether the employes in the ve agencies will be affected by the law.

Included in the doubtful group are those employed in the office of the county sheriff, the register of wills and the Circuit Court clerk and the Montgomery County employes of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning and Washington Suburban Sanitary Commissions which serve both Price Georges and Montgomery Counties.

Welsh Gives Opinion.

F. Barnard Welsh, attorney to the county commissioners, said that on its face the merit system law probably includes the appointees in offices of the sheriff, register of wills and Circuit Court clerk, but he doubted whether the system would affect the two bi-county groups.

He pointed out that the employes of those commissions do not come under the direct supervision of the county commissioners, and that the only connection with the commission is that the county collects the suburban district and metropolitan area taxes for the planning board and the sanitary department.

The merit system bill was passed by the Maryland General Assembly in April, and Montgomery is the first county of the State to adopt such a system for appointment of its employes. Members of the police force and school teachers, principals and the superintendent of education will not be affected by the measure, as they have been under a similar service for some time.

Exams in September.

Jones said, however, that all of the janitors, bus drivers and the superintendent of school property, desk clerks in the police department and all other county employes that come under the law must take the examination for county employes in early September.

Incumbents must take the examination, but will be allowed credit for previous service at the rate of one point on their examination for each year they have been employed, the total points, however, not to exceed five. Some 300 jobs are affected by the law.

During his conference with the commissioners Jones asked that the county appropriate approximately $2,000 annually for the next two years toward employment of additional examiners and clerks whom he will need to conduct the system. The county board took no action on the request.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Farmer was appointed secretary to County Treasurer J. Forest Walker, succeeding Mrs. Doris Starkey, who has resigned.

The board passed a resolution authorizing the election supervisors to obtain quotations upon the rental of automatic voting machines for use in county elections.

New York, July 20 (AP).—Five hundred draftsmen today began the 14-month task of designing plans for the first battleships to be built by the United States since 1923.

The ships, identical in design, will cost approximately $60,000,000 each. The North Carolina will be constructed in Brooklyn, the Washington at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

Note to Madeline from "On the Air" . . . "There are no irate listeners in Washington" . . . tsk . . . Ted Husing dropped in the WJSV studios yesterday and told about his experiences in the church steeple outside Marquette University, where he broadcast the A. A. U. track meet that was an N. B. C. "exclusive" . . . the Variety Club charity boxing show will be held tonight, same time, same place . . . you have another chance to get your tickets.

Dr. Edwin Franke Goldman, American bandmaster and composer, will be honored on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his founding of the Goldman Band during a special broadcast from his present concert series on the Mall in Central Park tonight over WMAL, at 8 o'clock. For the special broadcast, Dr. Goldman will lead his musicians in many of the original compositions and arrangements introduced by the band during its 25 years.

• • • •

Herbert Emmerich, deputy governor of the Farm Credit Administration, will be heard over WJSV today at 9:45 p. m., when he will speak on "How the Farm Credit Union Helps." Emmerich has been devoting all his time to Farm Credit Union work since the Federal Credit Unions were established in 1934. More than nine-tenths of the 200,000 persons now saving money in these organizations are city people.

Jessica Dragonette and Charles Kullman will prove that America can be as romantic a setting as any mythical kingdom when they present a musical love story from Victor Herbert's "The Princess Pat" on the "Beauty Box" theater tonight at 8:30. Songs included in this operetta are "Love Is the Best of All," "All for You," and "I Need Affection." The station is WJSV.

Walter O'Keefe will welcome lovely Patricia Ryan, song stylist and comedienne, as guest star of Town Hall tonight, which also includes Alice Frost, the Town Hall Quartet and Peter Van Steeden's orchestra. The Dixie Debs, the Southern Trio and Jack Berch, barytone, will be present as guests, too. WRC, at 8 p. m.

As a special feature of the inaugural programs that are being offered by WRC from their new studios, the Roadside's melodramatic hit of 1936, "Among the Moonshiners," will be broadcast this evening from 5:30 to 6 over WRC. Virginia True, Eugene Kressin and Ralph Fowler will play the original roles, with Richard Kreuzberg, Marvin Beers and Milton Freedman also in the cast. Margaret Osterwald, Roadside's performer, will sing between scenes, accompanied by Betty Gray at the piano.

Here and there . . . When the announcer at "Town Hall Tonight" refers to the summer headliner as Michael Walter O'Keefe . . . he's not kidding . . . for that is the Irish wit's complete and formal moniker . . . Johnny Green does a stunt which always baffles guests at his parties . . . he has two pianos put alongside of each other so he can reach both from one chair . . . then he sits down and plays one tune with his right hand on one and a completely different number with his left on the other keyboard . . . This Friday's Life Magazine will carry a two-page picture layout of W. C. Fields, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy . . . Charlie calls them "character studies."

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

"Haven't I the Right to Say Whom I Shall Marry?" Asks Girl Whose Family Opposes Her Choice.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl of 18 and my problem concerns my love for a young man of 20, who also loves me, but who is strongly disapproved of by my family; especially by my mother. Her only objection is that she doesn't "trust" him. She gives no reasons. Several years ago she had a nervous breakdown and had to go to a sanitarium. Afterward she was pronounced cured but she has never seemed quite the same since and is fanatical on some subjects, especially religion. I have been reared in a strict religious faith and live according to Christian morals. To add to my mental turmoil, I fear that my mother prays against our love and that she may be instrumental in wrecking our lives.

I started going with this boy in high school. Soon we loved each other and he was a most faithful suitor. But my family was prejudiced against him. Then about a year ago we had a misunderstanding, and didn't see each other for nine months. He tried to patch things up but I turned down his appeals time and again, and each of us started going out with others.

• • • •

Then we met at a party, and he made it a point to talk with me off-handedly. Later he called and asked for a date, which I refused. But he persisted and finally came to the house to see me. I realized all the time I loved him, but I am not the type who wears her heart on her sleeve, and I could not and would not pursue a man or solicit his attentions. Naturally, the family has done everything possible to kill our love once more. And now I'm driven to the point where I'm thinking of disregarding their wishes and commands.

• • • •

I am determined to see this boy and would gladly bring him to the house if I could. But they don't want me to see him, so I meet him outside. My family has often said, "If you must have company, bring your friends home." But when I bring someone they don't like, I am severely threatened and reprimanded. They are quite anxious for me to tie myself down to another man whom I like fairly well; but his attentions are somewhat repulsive, because I don't love him and do love another.

• • • •

Now, Miss Haworth, since this boy and I really love each other and since both of us are decent and clean-living and willing to do everything within reason to please my parents, don't you think we have the right to marry, when we are old enough? After all, my mother, my aunt and my grandmother—in fact, all my relatives—married the person of their choice, whether or not the marriage turned out successfully. Haven't I the same right?

• • • •

Sometimes I think if the family continues to make life so miserable for me that I may get married soon, just to get away from home. On the other hand, if they would be more reasonable, I would gladly wait in patience until our education is finished. Please give me your best advice.

UNHAPPY EIGHTEEN.

What to Believe.

DEAR UNHAPPY EIGHTEEN: A girl of 18 and a boy of 20, neither of whom has finished his education and neither of whom is self-supporting (and I assume this to be true in your case) are in no position to think seriously of marrying. I believe the best thing to do here is to effect some sort of compromise with your family, whereby the boy is permitted to call at your home occasionally. I believe it is better to have him call in the face of the family's strong disapproval than to meet him by stealth away from home.

• • • •

Since your family is "quite anxious" for you to "tie yourself down" to another man, why not use that fact as a wedge for driving a bargain with them? You might tell them that you refuse to see that man, or any man, for that matter, unless they give you the right to see the one boy you really care for. You might tell them you are willing to make concessions to their preference if they will only make the same concession to you.

• • • •

I agree that you should not be denied the right to say whom you shall marry. But I doubt very much that you are old enough or wise enough, just now, to be entrusted with a decision which vitally affects one's whole life. If you are really prudent and stable of character, you will wait a couple of years, at least, before emancipating yourself from parental government.

• • • •

It's just possible, you know, that your family's objection to the boy has made him appear more desirable, more necessary to your happiness, than he really is. If you were privileged to see him as often as you willed, the attraction he holds for you now might gradually (or even speedily) evaporate. If you were profoundly in love with him, it is doubtful that you would have spurned his overtures to peace for nearly a year.

• • • •

It is my opinion that you can dismiss altogether any fear that your mother's supposed prayers against your love may have any disastrous effect either on your life or the boy's life; or on any joint future life you might have. I believe you may safely assume that God in His wisdom knows which supplications to grant and which to deny. M. H.

• • • •

Noisy Gum Chewers.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: What do you think of a business man who chews gum long and loud almost every day, not even stopping (apparently) for lunch? And what do you think of a girl stenographer who never stops chewing and "popping" her gum, day after day and year after year? What would you do if you were secretary to the business man, or in the same office with the girl stenographer? If you can suggest some method by which to convey distaste of this habit without offending the "chewers," this writer will appreciate your column more than ever. Sincerely yours,

DISTRACTED.

• • • •

DEAR DISTRACTED: Never having lived within earshot of noisy, inveterate gum chewers, I really have no opinions about the breed, I imagine, however, that my reaction would range from amusement to irritation, to disgust and back again. Since your employer during office hours is monarch of all he surveys, and you one of his economic minions, I can't see that there is much you can do to correct his gum-chewing idiosyncrasy. Since to criticize the girl stenographer is to criticize, by implication, the boss, it seems you are likewise stalemated there. I suppose it is easier said than done, but my only suggestion for warding off a nervous breakdown, if their audible mastication is driving you to distraction, is to find ourself another job.

Black Best Color For Autumn Shoes

There's plenty of interest in the fall panorama now unfolding. Fall shoes are naturally more subdued than this summer's breath-taking footwear but many of the styles are just as striking. Silhouettes are boldly distinctive. Colors for the most part are vital and warm. Although patterns are more important than trimmings, pert accents add novelty without marring the smart new glove-fitted look that is achieved by flexible insets and the revolutionary new elastic leather.

Black comes first on the list of fall colors favorites with rich tones of mahogany, billiard green, wine, gray, and multicolor combinations close runners-up. Suedes for daytime and satins for evening wear are expected to highlight early fall wardrobes while satin and suede form a smart combination.

A Cool Girdle, Yet It Supports Figure

For the necessary slenderizing effect to accompany the new pencil-silhouette midseason frocks, here is a veil of youth girdle of lastex net with side panels of satin lastex. While the materials are porous and cool, it is so constructed that a maximum of figure control is accomplished with a minimum of weight.

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

WITH THE midsummer weather making extra demands on careful grooming, a fastidious woman begins to plan for comfort as well as chic. The answer to this problem is—the coolest girdle or foundation garment that you can find; one that controls the figure and at the same time is as light and comfortable as possible. A sufficient supply of girdles is a "must" in the summer wardrobe. If your budget does not permit of more than two, then wear them on alternate days and launder them frequently.

An ideal girdle for these ultra-warm days is one made of lastex net (open and porous) which stretches both ways for comfort, with front and back panels of satin lastex (stretching only up and down), to assure flatness. Discard the boning for summer, it is cooler, and the newest girdles are so constructed that bones are unnecessary. Brassieres, too, according to the modern scheme of things, are cool and at the same time designed to control the figure; lastex satin, net and mesh are the usual materials employed.

If your figure is not of average or slender build and you are troubled with midriff bulges, the one-piece foundation garment of porous lastex net combined with satin lastex, topped by a lace or net bra, is the proper selection. It insures a streamlined effect and, executed in lightweight materials, possesses only a minimum of weight.

For the new pencil silhouette frocks, now being sponsored for midseason, a girdle or foundation garment is necessary, or the entire smart effect of the costume is lost. This is particularly true of the popular black silk jersey dresses—they need a smooth foundation as a background.

Post Recipe Contest Supplies 5 Palatable Vegetable Dishes

By Rebekah Blake.

FRESH VEGETABLES are plentiful in the markets and should be used while their prices are reasonable and they are in season. There are endless ways to prepare them as evidenced in the suggestions in The Post's recipe contest of last week.

The first prize for the vegetable dish contest was won by Miss Madeline King of 1723 Thirty-fifth street northwest, for her recipe for Cabbage Rolls. This prize was $3.

The second prize, $2, was won by Mrs. Emma Gantt, 339 West street, Annapolis, Md., for her recipe for Stuffed Eggplant; the third prize, $1, went to Miss Mary Graham, 2216 Thirteenth street northwest, for her recipe for Tuna Fish and Vegetable Roll Salad and the fourth prize, also $1, went to Mrs. Merrill Comstock, 4000 Cathedral avenue northwest, for her recipe for Tomatoes Creole. The fifth prize, $1, was awarded to Mrs. George S. Harnsberger, 635 South Main street, Harrisonburg, Va., for her recipe for Asparagus De Luxe.

Here is Miss King's recipe:

Cabbage Rolls.

¾ pound chuck or round steak, chopped
¼ pound suet, chopped
2 tablespoons chili sauce
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ tablespoon pepper
1 tablespoon bottled condiment sauce
2 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons beaten egg
¾ cup raw rice
1 medium head cabbage
8 slices bacon
1 medium onion, sliced
½ cup water
½ cup vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
2 tablespoons minced onion

Combine the meat, suet, chili sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, condiment sauce, milk, minced onion, egg and rice and mix thoroughly. Carefully peel from the head of cabbage 16 leaves as nearly perfect as possible and place them in a large pan. Pour boiling water over them, cover tightly, and let stand 10 minutes. Then drain the cabbage leaves and pare the rib of each leaf. Next place 2 tablespoons of the meat mixture in the center of each leaf and roll and tuck in the ends. Arrange half of the left-over cabbage leaves on top of the bacon and sliced onion, which have been cooked until done in the bottom of a kettle. On these lay the cabbage rolls. Then pour over all the vinegar, water, 1 teaspoon salt and sugar mixed, and top with the remainder of the cabbage leaves. Cover and simmer for two hours. Makes 16 rolls.

Mrs. Gantt's recipe:

Stuffed Egg Plant.

Cut eggplant in quarters lengthwise, boil for 10 minutes in plenty of salted water. Drain, scoop out the middle to within half inch of the rind. Chop in a large wooden bowl and add one onion fried with chopped ham and a sliver of garlic. Add a cup of thick cooked tomato and enough soft bread crumbs to make of the consistency to stuff the skins. Place the stuffing in the skins and shape into mounds. Pat on buttered dry crumbs to make a crust and bake slowly for half an hour. Butter or grease pan well before placing eggplant in it.

Tuna Fish and Vegetable Roll Salad.

1 can tuna fish (½ pound)
¾ cup finely chopped celery
½ cup leftover cooked vegetables as beans, peas, carrots
¾ cup French dressing
1-3 cup mayonnaise
4 long soft rolls
Stuffed olives
Lettuce.

Flake the tuna fish and combine with the celery and left-over cooked vegetables. Marinate with the French dressing, moisten with the mayonnaise and season to taste with salt and pepper. Split and butter the rolls and fill with the tuna fish mixture. Arrange in individual nests of lettuce and garnish with additional mayonnaise and stuffed olives.

Mrs. Comstock's recipe:

Tomatos Creole.

4 ripe tomatoes
1 green pepper
2 onions.

Wash tomatoes and cut in half, (if very large, in three slices.) Put green pepper and onions through meat chopper and season with salt and pepper. Lay tomatoes in buttered pan, spread with creole mixture and dot generously with butter. Bake about 20 minutes in a moderate oven until vegetables are done. Remove from pan and place on rounds of toast the size of tomatoes and cover with sauce as follows:

1 good sized piece of butter
2 teaspoons of flour (level)
½ cup of milk

Take juice remaining in the pan, add butter and flour gradually, add milk and season, pour over tomatoes. If there isn't enough tomato juice in the pan, add a little canned juice.

Here is Mrs. Harnsberger's recipe:

Asparagus De Luxe.

1 large can green asparagus
1 cup grated cheese (sharp)
½ cup chopped almonds
For sauce:
½ teaspoon onion juice (scant)
Salt and red pepper to taste
1½ cups white sauce
1½ cups milk
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour

Stir onion juice and almonds into sauce. Put layer of asparagus in casserole, then cheese, then white sauce until filled and sprinkle top with bread crumbs, rolled in melted butter. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven.

New Fall Colors.

New York (AP).—Tweed coats for school wear will be made up in a new set of colors. Bright red is slated to replace wine. A new light brown, with more red in it than last fall's brown, is also planned.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Medical Complexities.

THIS DEPARTMENT has not previously dealt with the devious pathways of the law. But the law and health matters frequently come into juxtaposition (there is in all medical schools a course in legal medicine which aims to teach doctors their rights, privileges and responsibilities in a constitutional community) and I have recently been reviewing some decisions which I think will be of interest to some of my readers.

In most insurance policies against sickness or accident there is a clause which states that benefits will be paid while the beneficiary is "necessarily and continuously confined within the house" by the illness.

There has been much discussion and difference of opinion in various courts as to the interpretation of this phrase. For instance, it may be necessary for a sick person to leave his house to go to a hospital or doctor's office for treatment, or for diagnostic test with apparatus too cumbersome to be moved.

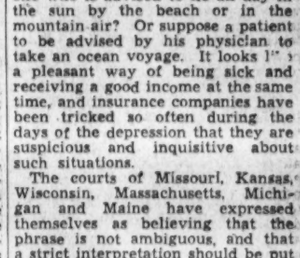
That would probably be contested by any insurance company, but what of a patient for whom a daily drive or walk is recommended, or one who is advised to lie all day in the sun by the beach or in the mountain air? Or suppose a patient to be advised by his physician to take an ocean voyage. It looks 1" a pleasant way of being sick and receiving a good income at the same time, and insurance companies have been tricked so often during the days of the depression that they are suspicious and inquisitive about such situations.

The courts of Missouri, Kansas, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Michigan and Maine have expressed themselves as believing that the phrase is not ambiguous, and that a strict interpretation should be put on it.

The courts of Illinois, Colorado, Washington, New York, Louisiana, Ohio, Iowa, Kentucky and Texas are among many who have taken a liberal view of the matter and allowed the invalid to take his ride or sunbath and still be considered "confined within the house."

Courts have unanimously held that confinement in a hospital is equivalent to confinement within a house.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."



A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, July 20.

NEW YORK'S current purity wave in the entertainment field has just about completed its present cycle. As I've said before, one of these clean-up manias strikes the town every few years, the latest thing to fall under the ban being the foul undressed exhibitions called burlesque.

Fourteen of these theaters were deprived of their licenses, throwing several hundred chorus girls out of their $20-a-week jobs. Most of the poor girls were utterly without dancing talent, and their jobs consisted chiefly of walking around with practically no clothes on. Now a couple of hundred have gone back to work in a carefully laundered and fumigated type of revue entertainment in several of the old burlesque theaters, though that horrid word "burlesque" has been utterly banished from use.

ALICE HUGHES.

The new shows are so harmless they will not attract former audiences, and the girls practically wear Mother Hubbards. Moreover, the jokes are even older. Overseeing them to keep them chemically pure is a huge gang of censors, both official and volunteer. I am sure you will be glad to know that Broadway now is painfully clean—and especially that so many of these poor little girls have got their miserable jobs back. The general opinion seems to be that we are much better off without burlesque, but have gained pratically nothing with this weird type of entertainment—at 55 cents top.

• • • •

GIRLS ABOUT TOWN—When we want to see the smartest thing in spectator sports clothes in the heart of summer, we go over to the platinum belt of Long Island and peer at the high society gals who are watching the young millionaires play polo. Linens still are a dominant feature of the polo sidelines.

Stepping out of my class as a slaving reporter the other afternoon, I gazed at the handsome young centaurs and at the pretty girls looking on. The neatest outfit I saw was worn by Mrs. Raymond Guest, wife of one of the players, who sported a navy-and-white scroll pattern linen dress with short puffed sleeves.

The horrible hay fever season now is zooming into high, and the Nation will soon resound with terrific sneezes. I happened to hear recently of some intellectual, if not physical, relief for people so tormented. The learned doctor, Beno Paul, pioneer European allergist from Budapest, told me the other day that "only cultured people, in general, suffer from hay fever and other allergic diseases."

The medico admitted he could not explain this. But he said further that a college degree does not guarantee hay fever as a byproduct. So, alas, sneeze on, you cultured folk!

One of the most striking covers yet published on Life Magazine was that of the handsome head of the mannequin modeled by Lester Gaba, Hannibal, Mo., boy. She was a brunette Garbo, with all the Swede's allure and mystery. Lester created this stunning head from a beautiful young woman named Cynthia Well, until recently a living clothes horse in a famous Fifth avenue store. She left her job to marry a rich man, who now is said to be unhappy because his wife's beautiful face adorns the composition women who spend their days in store windows.

• • • •

When you visit us, you may want to see the busiest street intersection in this human ant hill. No, it is not Fifth avenue at Forty-second street, but Thirty-fourth street and Sixth avenue, according to the newest statistics. At this point is a cluster of the Nation's most famous department stores, and the pedestrian push there is unbelievable, even when you are in the midst of it. Beth Brown, the novelist, now is bent on being a successful playwright. She helped write "Behind Red Lights," a fairly successful show of last season, and now has finished one called "Three in a Bed." Cute titles, but a little risky.

• • • •

A great department store mystery now is raging in town. A "Jack the Slasher" is running amuck in a famous and enormous emporium. He does not slash shoppers, but choice merchandise, such as fine upholstered sofas, costly draperies, etc. Rewards have been posted, and the place is alive with store "dicks" in derby hats, but so far the villain still is at large. How is your detecting this season? Come on over and join the hunt.

Cut four slices bread 2 inches thick and 3 inches in diameter. Remove centers from each. Dip in top milk or cream, put on buttered baking dish, break 1 egg in center of each, sprinkle with salt and pepper, cover with 1 tablespoon paprika sauce and sprinkle with ½-half tablespoon grated cheese. Bake 8 minutes at 375 F. and serve with paprika sauce.

Paprika sauce.

Melt 2 tablespoons butter, add 3 tablespoons cornstarch and when smooth add 1½ cups milk. Stir until sauce boils, add ½-teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons paprika and lemon juice to taste.

Switzerland, Peru Prepare Celebrations

South Americans Will Mark Anniversary Informally.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

On the heels of America's Fourth of July and France's Bastile Day comes two other independence days of interest to many persons in Washington.

Peruvians here, as around the world, remember with a thrill that on July 28, 1821, the famous South American revolutionist, Jose de San Martin, proclaimed Peru independent of Spanish domination. They remember also—that is, if they know their history—that exactly a year later, in 1822, San Martin held a mysterious interview with another noted leader, Simon Bolivar, which resulted in the former's withdrawal and Bolivar's assumption of leadership of the patriot cause. The following December independence was formally won by the defeat of the Spanish forces at Ayacucho.

Peruvian Celebration To Be Informal Here.

With the Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander, spending the summer at Eagles' Mere, Pa., there is to be no formal celebration at the Embassy on Massachusetts avenue next Wednesday, but the Peruvian flag doubtlessly will flutter full-staff throughout the day and members of the Embassy staff who are still in town will observe informally and privately—according to word from the Embassy yesterday—Peru's independence day.

With more fanfare will Switzerland's "Fourth of July" be celebrated on August 1. Although the Minister and Mme. Marc Peter are vacationing in Europe, the occasion nevertheless will be observed according to traditions Swiss residents of Washington learned in their native land.

This year, as last, there will be a celebration at the Bieber Farm at Four Corners, Md., under the sponsorship of the Swiss colony of Washington. Some of the guests will attend in native costumes, play native games and participate in native dances.

Colorful Program Planned for Event.

There will be speeches and songs and merrymaking until late in the evening, and to round out the program there will be a number of yodeling selections presented by Otto Korber, and a marksmanship contest to determine how many potential William Tells are present.

Godfrey L. Munter, native of Berne, Switzerland, who has practiced law in Washington for a number of years, will be master of ceremonies, and the Counselor of the Swiss Legation, Eduard Feer, who was formerly Counselor of the legation in Berlin, will be one of the principal speakers on the program. According to present plans, he will present the compliments of the Swiss Federal Council and discuss briefly the current economic situation in Switzerland.

Fred Widmer, president of the Swiss Club, and A. G. Hauser, chairman of the entertainment committee, have worked with John Kirchhofer and Mrs. Ruth L. Pryor, vice president and secretary of the Swiss Club, and Mrs. John Brasser, to make it one of the biggest and best of the annual celebrations of Switzerland's Independence Day.

Declared Freedom On August 1, 1291.

The outing will mark the formation of the Everlasting League by the Swiss people, who in 1921 decided to free themselves of Hapsburg domination. From that day they have held their own as a nation, first as a free member of the empire and then as an independent confederation. For centuries their cities have been a refuge for men and women desiring freedom from tyrants.

Newly-Wed Couple Motoring in West

Now on a motor trip to Stillwater, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. Ben Davis Mills were married July 17 in the Lincoln Memorial Chapel of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. On their way to Oklahoma they will visit the bride's sister, Mrs. H. H. Dodge in New York City; from there they will leave for Denver, Colo., to visit another sister, Mrs. Don Fellows, and just before arriving in Stillwater they will visit in various places in Iowa.

Mrs. Mills, before her marriage, was Miss Helen C. Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd D. Richardson, of this city. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Mills, of Stillwater, Okla.

The Rev. Albert Evans officiated at the ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of white marquisette over taffeta and a large white hat. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and bride's roses. Mrs. A. J. Dodds, of New York City, was matron of honor, and Miss Roberta Van Epps, of Iowa City, maid of honor.

Newcomers to Leave Capital Soon for Month's Vacation

Harris & Ewing.

Mrs. Noble Cilley Powell, wife of the dean of the Washington Cathedral, and her two sons, Philip Noble, 7, and Thomas Hooker, 5, recently posed for this picture at their home in Cathedral avenue. With her husband, who was installed as dean of the cathedral in May, Mrs. Powell and the boys will leave the Capital about August 1 to spend a month in their camp on the Blue Ridge, not far from Waynesboro, Va. They moved to Washington from Baltimore last month.

Briton Is Moved To Persian Post

Another recent shift in the foreign diplomatic service will take one more popular person from Washington. Philip Broad, Second Secretary of the British Embassy, has been transferred to Teheran, the capital of Persia, where he will serve again as Second Secretary.

Mr. Broad, who has been in Washington little over a year, is very popular with the younger set. He is not to be confused with the First Secretary of the Embassy, Philip Broadmead, although the similarity of their names has frequently caused mix-ups at Capital parties. Mr. Broad is at present vacationing, but will not go to his new post until some time in October.

In Washington he occupies the house at 2910 Cortland place, owned by Amory Lawrence, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lawrence, of Boston and Topsfield, Mass. Young Lawrence spent a year here as correspondent for a Rhode Island paper, and is now working for the Boston Transcript in Boston. He hopes to return to the Capital some time next winter.

Picturesque Ireland is attracting several Washingtonians this summer. Among those sailing for a sojourn there are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Block, who will leave on Friday with their two children on the City of Newport News from Baltimore. Eugene O'Dunn, a New Dealer who has many friends in Washington, is sailing on Saturday to spend his vacation there.

Mr. and Mrs. Block will go first to London, where they hope to visit Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Miller, of our foreign service. However, they have just heard that the former has been ordered to Cuba, so they don't know whether their prospective host will be in the English capital on their arrival. Nevertheless, Mr. and Mrs. Block will remain in the English capital for a short stay.

In Ireland they will stay with Mr. and Mrs. Seagrave Daly, Irish friends of theirs who have a house in County Kilkenny. They will take a motor trip to the west of Ireland before returning to this country September 15.

William Robin to Wed.

Of interest to a number of Washingtonians was the announcement made in Warrenton, Va., yesterday of the engagement of Miss Lucille Le Cocq, daughter of Mrs. Alfred Jacque Le Cocqu, of Buffalo, and the late Alfred Jacque Le Cocq, to William Randolph Robbins, of Baltimore, son of Mrs. William Randolph Robbins, of Brotton Hall, Warrenton, and the late Mr. Robbins.

Marta Aspegren Wed in Norfolk To Dr. Parker

Bridesmaids Wear Yellow and Blue, Swedish Colors, for Ceremony.

The national Swedish colors of blue and yellow furnished the motif for the bridesmaids' frock at the wedding yesterday of Miss Marta Aspegren, daughter of the Swedish Vice Consul and Mrs. Herman Aspegren, to Dr. Ralph Chandler Parker, jr., of Batavia, N. Y., and Boston, son of Capt. Ralph Chandler Parker, U. S. N., and Mrs. Parker, also of Batavia, and recently of Newport.

The Church of the Good Shepherd, Meadowbrook, Norfolk, was the scene of the ceremony, which was witnessed by many prominent in Norfolk society as well as from out of town. The Rev. George Purcell Gunn, rector of the church, officiated, assisted by the Rev. James DeWolf Perry, robed in the surplice which he wore as a church delegate to the coronation last May. Mr. Perry is curate of Christ Church at St. Luke's Church in Norfolk, and a son of the Right Rev. James DeWolf Perry, presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church of America.

Wore Mother's Wedding Gown.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown worn by her mother at her marriage—a princess model of ivory taffeta with a deep bertha of old lace and short puffed sleeves, the fullness of the skirt ending in a slight train. Her veil of rose point lace over tulle was arranged from a cap of the same lace caught with clusters of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and gardenias.

Mrs. E. Jacques Bloom, the former Mariesta Dodge Howland, of Boston, was maid of honor, wearing a frock of ciel organza made in bouffant style, with a coronet of the same material, and she carried yellow daisies. Bridesmaids were Miss Aspegren's two sisters, Mrs. Edward H. Eckelmeyer, jr., of Drexel Hills, Pa., and Miss Ingrid Aspegren, of Norfolk. They also wore gowns of ciel organza, simliar to that of the matron of honor, and carried bouquets of yellow daisies.

Washingtonian Is One of the Ushers.

Porter Chandler, of Geneseo, N. Y., and New York City, was best man. Ushers included the bridegroom's uncle, G. R. Parker, of Washington, and Lieut. Edward H. Eckelmeyer, jr., brother-in-law of the bride. Following the ceremony there was a reception at Sunny Court, home of the bride's parents. Later the couple left for a Northern wedding trip.

The bride was introduced to society several seasons ago at a ball of the Norfolk German Club. A descendant of H. G. von Mullern, Swedish Minister of Finance during the reign of Charles XII, she also is a niece of the late John Aspegren, of New York, one-time president of the Swedish Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Parker finished Harvard Medical School this year. Previously he was graduated from the Deane School of Santa Barbara and Union College. He is a member of Sigma Phi fraternity, the Boylston Medical Society and the Lancet, Serpent and Stork clubs. A descendant of the Parker, Redfield and Chandler families of New England, Dr. Parker is a great-grandson of Rear Admiral Ralph Chandler, U. S. N. His father formerly was attached to the War College at Newport.

Announce Marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Rent, of Lynchburg, Va., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Ruby, to Mr. Dante T. P. Stanford, also of Lynchburg, which was celebrated here Saturday by Dr. W. L. Ware, pastor of Trinity Mthodist Church. Mr. and Mrs. Stanford will make their home at 611 Seventh street after a trip to Washington.

Okazakis Give Farewell Tea; Will Quit Washington Aug. 12

By Dudley Harmon.

THE SECOND SECRETARY OF THE JAPANESE EMBASSY and Mme. Okazaki, who will leave soon for Amoy, China, where Mr. Okazaki has been made consul general, entertained yesterday at a farewell tea in the Carlton Hotel.

Among the many guests who arrived to say good-by to the Okazakis was the Japanese Ambassador, Hirosi Saito, who was the center of attention throughout the afternoon.

A most gracious hostess, Mme. Okazaki welcomed her friends in perfect English and saw that everyone was served from the lavish buffet.

The Okazakis leave this country in October, but before that they will go to Hot Springs to say good-bye to Mme. Saito, who is spending the summer there. Also, Mme. Okazaki has always wanted to see Niagara Falls, so they will visit there en route to the West Coast. "You know it is the biggest falls in the world and I wouldn't want to leave America without seeing it," she said. They will bid good-bye to Washington August 12.

State Department officials and fellow diplomats prodominated among the guests yesterday. The Canadian Minister, one of the few envoys remaining in Washington this summer, was there was Lady Marler, who wore a red and white print frock and a large white hat. Others present from the foreign diplomatic corps were Frau von Boetticher, wife of the German Military Attache, in beige; the Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, the Marquis of Sant' Orsola, and the Air and Military Attache of the Embassy and Signora Coppola, the latter in a dark printed chiffon with a matching hat.

William Turner, of the State Department, was accompanied by his bride of a few weeks, the former Florence Green, of New York. They are spending the summer at the Middleburg estate of Mrs. Turner's aunt, Mrs. D. C. Sands. Mrs. Wilbur Carr dropped in, looking very chic in a black redingote frock with a black hat and a string of pearls. Others there were Mrs. Fred Britten, in black and white; Mrs. George Holmes, and Mr. and Mrs. John Farr Simmons. The latter returned to Washington yesterday from a sojourn in Nantucket.

* * * *

Representative and Mrs. Paul H. Maloney have as their guest in their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel for several days their son, Mr. Paul H. Maloney, jr., of New Orleans.

* * * *

The Third Secretary of the Canadian Legation and Mrs. Mrs. Ronald Macdonnell will return at the end of the month from Kingston, Ontario, where they have been visting the former's mother.

* * * *

Ditlef Knudsen, Attache of the Westfelt, Attache of the Swedish Legation, are entertaining at a cocktail party this afternoon at 3402 Garfield street, the home of Jorgen Galbe, Counselor of the Legation, which they have taken for the summer.

Marriage Announced.

Announcement has just been made by Mr. and Mrs. Manuel B. Montes of the marriage of their daughter, Lolita, to Mr. Mortimer Hudson Naff, jr., of Deland, Fla.

The wedding took place on April 2, 1937, in St. Petersburg, Fla., where Mr. and Mrs. Naff, jr. plan to make their home.

Informal Meetings Will Provide Opportunities for Round-Table Discussion; Miss Luella P. Chase Elected President.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Regents of the 60 D. A. R. chapters of Washington have formed a club of their own—something they have never had before—with the purpose of promoting co-operation and closer friendly relations between the groups they head.

There will be but three regular meetings a year, set for October, January and June, with occasional others called if a necessity arises. No programs will be presented; those will be left to the individual chapters. When the regents meet together they will simply have a round-table for the informal discussion of questions of general interest to the D. A. R.

Only Members May Attend.

If a regent finds it impossible to be present at a meeting of the club no one can substitute for her; neither will State officers attend. This is to be one organization for chapter heads alone. Their duties require attendance at business sessions and social functions of their own and other chapters as well as at dedication ceremonies and patriotic services during the year, all occasions invested with more or less formality. Their new club is to initiate a departure from formal restrictions and its meetings will be gatherings where all but one of their number can feel free from the responsibility of presiding.

The one exception is Miss Luella P. Chase, regent of Susan Riviere Hetzel Chapter, who has been elected president and therefore will be obliged to act as the presiding officer. Those serving with her are Mrs. Arthur C. Houghton, regent of Continental Dames Chapter, who has been named vice president, and Mrs. Eugene Lewis Culver, regent of Martha Washington Chapter, recording secretary.

The Service Council of the Jewish Community Center is having its second summer formal tonight at the National Women's Country Club, with Mr. Henry Salus as chairman. Dancing will begin at 10 o'clock.

Assisting on the committee are the Misses Dorothy Grossman, Sophie Caplan, Rose Shantenstein, Rae Soloman, Rose Plotnick, Rose Furr, Sadie Edlavitch and Mr. Max Neuwirth.

Here From Chicago.

Mrs. A. G. Davis arrived in Washington yesterday from her home in Chicago, Ill., and has joined Mr. Davis at the Carlton Hotel. They will be in town for several days.

Woman Arbiter Of Dance Here For Convention

Mrs. Montie Beach Gives Reception for Normal Course Students.

MRS. MONTIE BEACH is not a club woman but she is head of an organization whose dictates keep us all on our toes—the Dancing Masters of America. She is now in Washington for the normal school and convention of the organization she has guided for four years and of which she is the first woman president.

The value of dancing in the education field is receiving increasing recognition, says Mrs. Beach. Invitations to participate in the sessions of the American Council on Education here last May, and in the Inter-American Conference on Education to be held in Mexico City, August 15, are indicative of the growing importance it is achieving.

The normal course being conducted by the Dancing Masters preceding their convention at the Mayflower, includes all types of dancing—ballroom, tap, modern—and is being attended by a serious group of teachers from all parts of the country.

Entertains Whole Class At A Reception.

Mrs. Beach entertained the whole class at an informal reception in her suite at the hotel last night. Her home, in Houston, Tex., is always a gathering place for those interested in dancing and includes a large ballroom where she teaches.

Her home was completed in April four years ago and the following August she was elected to her present office, which has meant she has had less time to spend in it than she had expected. It is a log house, built in the center of a large tract about seven miles from the city. At one corner of the estate is another little log house, just finished, which she built in memory of her husband, Monta Beach, and gave to Boy Scout Troop No. 17, of Houston.

She designed both her own home and the lodge to fit the rustic setting in which they stand. the entire lower floor of her home is of early American design with gum walls to which she has added a tone of red, giving the warmth of color to be found in Indian blankets. On the floor are hand made colonial rag rugs and, at the doors and windows, transparent draperies embroidered in peafowl, hollyhocks and wisteria. Over the fireplace of the ballroom is a replica of "The Pioneer Woman," and the ceiling beams are hand-hewn.

Decisions on Dancing Come from There.

In this room are often made decisions which determine what dancing will be seen in other ballrooms throughout America. Any dance which oversteps grace and dignity is "out" as far as Mrs. Beach is concerned.

She has been teaching dancing since she was 17 years old. Her husband and she taught together during his lifetime. Curiously, their names are almost alike. He was christened Montraville, and called by the abbreviation, Monta. She was named for Dr. LaMontie, and thus is Montie Beach, the smiling white-haired person who puts her foot down on steps which are out of step with the standard of the Dancing Masters of America.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

THE ZONTA CLUB is planning some "fancy" meetings for August. There will be the party at Annapolis Roads Club on Saturday, August 7, in which the Washington Zontians will join those of Baltimore and Annapolis. On August 11, the members will meet at Vacation Lodge, Y. W. C. A. summer residence at Cherrydale, Va., and August 18, they will have luncheon in the garden of Allies Inn, which is owned by a Zontian, Miss Emma T. Hahm. On August 25 there will be a closed meeting for members, all devoted to business, after the series of more festive occasions.

Plans for the month were made by the executive board Monday night at the home of the treasurer, Mrs. Alfred L. Taylor (Marian Hines Taylor to the Zontians), who entertained the board at a buffet supper. Her mother, Mrs. Jane Lucy Hines, received with her and Mr. Taylor was there also to welcome the guests.

Board members present were Mrs. Anne Harding, Dr. Frances Marshall, Miss Frances Powell Hill, Miss Mary Sigman, Miss Anna Muddiman, Miss Ruth Sheldon, Miss Josephine Prescott, Mrs. Louise Stambaugh, Miss Nannie Meem, Mrs. Sarah Sumner and Mrs. Ann Preston.

SPEAKING OF ZONTIANS, Mrs. Emily G. Dickinson, another member of the club, is leaving today to spend two weeks at Woodberry Forest Inn, Woodberry Forest, Va. Mrs. Dickinson, as of course you know, is organist at Grace Episcopal Church.

MRS. FRANK A. LINZEL, president of the Federated Church Women of Washington, has been keeping an eye on their summer activities from Ocean City, N. J., where she is spending a few weeks' vacation.

However, after a needed rest following the close of her busy year as president of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase and assuming her new office as head of the Federated Church Women, she plans to return to the Capital the end of this week. Then she will plunge into programs for the fall.

In addition to other offices, Mrs. Linzel holds that of motion picture chairman for the Maryland State Federation of Women's Clubs, of which Mrs. Frank Hoadley, of Chevy Chase, is president. Mrs. Linzel is also head of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase Building Company, which has under way plans for a new clubhouse.

MRS. EDWIN B. PARKER, a member of the national board of the Y. W. C. A. and chairman of the national music committee, is sailing from New York tomorrow for a trip through Germany, Sweden and Russia. Mrs. Parker is chairman of the suburban committee of the National Symphony Orchestra and also chairman of the music committee of the local Y. W. C. A.

Miss Elsa M. Peterson, who is sailing with her, was chairman of the building committee that supervised the construction of Strong Residence, the new Y. W. C. A. dormitory erected through the generosity of Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong. Miss Peterson is chairman of Strong Residence committee and an active member of the executive committee of the board of directors of the Y. W. C. A. and the Instructive Visiting Nurses Association. Miss Peterson has always been greatly interested in work with young girls and was for many years chairman of the Girl Reserves.

Chi Sigmas Off To Convention

ANOTHER NATIONAL CONVENTION is attracting Washington delegates—this time to the cool regions of Canada. Miss Mary Lou Colliflower, who is national treasurer of Chi Sigma Sorority, heads a delegation leaving today for Toronto, where the convention sessions will be held at the Royal York Hotel.

The delegates will travel by special train. Those from Washington will be joined by a group from Baltimore. The local delegates include Miss Josephine Sullivan, president of Alpha Province; Miss Esther Beale, Alpha Chapter; Miss Doris Judge, Beta Chapter; Miss Connie Cooksey, Gamma Chapter; Miss Mary Columbus, Iota Chapter; Mrs. Lydia Monaghan, Delta Chapter; Miss Eileen Hayes, Theta Chapter; Mrs. Helen McAinish, Lambda Chapter; Mrs. Melba Stewart, Alpha Gamma Chapter, and Miss Dorothy Luckett, Alpha Zeta Chapter.

Beads for Coolness.

New York (AP).—"Snowball" bead costume jewelry is a smart new summer accent. Necklaces, bracelets and earclips are made of clusters of composition beads finished with a coating resembling whitewash. They make cool-looking accessories to dark frocks and are especially effective on sun-tanned skins.

New Jersey Governor Greets Business Women

World Leadership Urged On U.S. Business Women

What They Do Becomes Pattern for Sex Abroad, British Visitor Tells Delegates at Atlantic City Convention.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 20.—Business women of America must come out on a leadership program not only for their own country but for the world, says Miss Gordon Holmes, of London, chairman of finance for the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Miss Holmes is here with Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, president of the International Federation, for the biennial convention of the national federation of which Miss Charl Ormond Williams, of Washington, is president.

"Business women of the United States must stop being so absorbed with inter-organization problems and even with national problems; they must realize that what they do is held up as a pattern for club women in all other countries," declares Miss Holmes.

She is joint managing director of the National Securities Corporation, Ltd., of London; a director of the City Savings Bank of Budapest and holds several other directorships, but says "the decoration of which I am proudest is that of chairman of finance for the international federation."

She commends the three-year objective of the international organization: to put more women in executive positions, in public work and public office, and to remove such fallacies about women as that they work only for pin money and are too emotional to fill executive positions.

"We want all the money we can get to do all the service we can do for women in Europe, where service is so greatly needed," declared Miss Holmes.

"During the war it was: 'Women, get out of your homes and into men's jobs for the common good.' Now it is: 'Women, get back; you are not wanted in the labor market.'"

Back-to-the-Home Idea Exploded.

Dr. Robert Hoppock, assistant director of the National Occupational Conference, who addressed the federation today at its program on "Vocations," declared the "woman's place is in the home" idea is just a gag men have been putting over all this time. They probably won't get away with it much longer, he told the business women.

Now, he said, a definite shortage of competent women has begun to show up in the work-a-day world, and soon the girls will be flying the coop.

"Marriage no longer means permanent removal from the employment market," he said. "There is no sound psychological reason why women should cook meals, wash dishes, launder clothes and clean houses.'"

Long-established tradition and the deep?seated desire of men to perpetuate their own special privileges is about the only thing that keeps woman in the home, said Dr. Hoppock.

Housework belongs more logically to men, he said, since it frequently involves physical strain which men are better able to endure.

Mrs. Grace Loucks Elliott, a writer on psychological subjects, likewise tut-tutted the idea that married women shouldn't find jobs outside the home.

"The theory that a man's ego can't stand the effect of his wife working outside the home is at once suspicious," said she. "Has he never been aware of her working in the home, or is he unwilling to have his control of her activity thus diminished?

The apparent magnanimity of men in insisting on supporting their wives or families has too frequently been overshadowed by accompanying subjection and domination.

"The objection to women's working outside the home, made in the interests of children, likewise needs examination. If there are on an average 2½ children to a family, the question must be faced for how long and at what hours are those children at home."

Manassas Club Holds Summer Festival Today

Gay Nineties Fashion Show and 'Manless Wedding' Are on Program.

A SUMMER FETE has been planned for today by the Manassas Junior Woman's Club, which is sponsoring a Gay Nineties party at Annaburg, the Portner estate in Manassas, Va.

The party will begin at 4 o'clock this afternoon and continue through the evening. One of the features is to be a fashion show of the Gay Nineties era and another a "Manless Wedding," which will be presented by members of the senior woman's club, all in costumes of the period.

The entire function is to be in the spirit of 40 years ago. Games popular when mother was a girl will be played and the songs she sang will be sung and played by club members. All of the girls of the Junior Club who act as hostesses will wear costumes.

Miss Mary Lynch, who is serving as chairman of arrangements will be assisted by Miss Mary F. Cocke, Miss Jane Lynn and Miss Lucy Gibson, who head the committees in charge of the program, games and refreshments.

During the evening there will be general dancing, in which old-fashioned steps will be featured.

Bob Burns Says:

I don's suppose my Aunt Netty would have a coat today if it hadn't been for wanting' to get back at Mrs. J. Wellington Potts. Mrs. Potts had a tweed coat and she was always talkin' about it.

Mrs. Potts use'ta come over to visit Aunt Netty in the afternoon and along about 4:30 she would get up and say, "Well, I'll have'ta go home because I didn't bring my coat with me and it might turn off chilly." Aunt Netty didn't say anything, but after a while she started savin' coupons.

Finally seven years later she had enough to get a fur coat and she sent away for one. The first day she put it on she met Mrs. Potts on Main street. Mrs. Potts' coat had gotten a little bit frayed around the edges in the meantime, but when she saw my aunt she says, "It's a little chilly today, isn't it?" Aunt Netty pulled her coat up around her neck and says, "I wouldn't know about it—I I haven't read the weather report."

The Federal Diary

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

William E. Gladstone once said:

"In order that the public service might be, indeed, the public service; in order that we might not have among the officers of the state that which we have complained of in the army, namely, that the service was not the property of the nation but of the officers, we have now been enabled to remove the barriers of nomination, patronage, jobbing, favoritism in whatever form; and every man belonging to the people of England, if he so pleases to fit his children for the position of competing for places in the public service, may do it entirely irrespective of the question what is his condition in life, or the amount of means with which he may happen to be or not to be blessed."

Local No. 2, U. F. W. A., is claiming a growing support in its fight on behalf of Louis Matosoff, chairman of its grievance committee, who was dismissed by the Agriculture Department allegedly because of his union activity. To date, the lodge wrote this column, it has support of lodges in Securities and Exchange Commission, Social Security Board, WPA, Labor, Resettlement, Loans and Currency (all of which are in the U. F. W. A.), the Committee Against False Economy, the Women's Trade Union League and the Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians. Many of these units have made financial contributions toward the case, it is stated.

Three Activities.

Three major divisions of activity are open to members of the recently organized Interior Department Recreation Association.

Under the head of athletics there will be the following competitive sports to choose from: Softball, baseball, basketball, handball, tennis, volleyball, bowling, golf, horseshoes, pistol shooting, swimming—track and kindred activities. Horseback riding and bicycling will draw many.

Those artistically inclined will have wide range of selective activities. Listed among the arts are dramatics, music, voice, esthetic and tap dancing, radio technique, and philately.

For those who care for purely social contacts, camaradie, and fellowship, there will be bridge, modern dancing, hiking, and general pastimes of lesser effort.

Various groups are now being formed, the names of the leaders to be announced later. The officers of the association are: President, Hillory A. Tolson; first vice president, Charles E. Pynchon; second vice president, Pierce M. Rice; secretary, Wesley R. Nelson, and treasurer, E. J. Armstrong.

* * * *

Nelson, secretary of the association, is well experienced in conducting employe groups. At Boulder City, Nev., where he was an engineer on the construction of Boulder Dam, he was active in the promotion of social, educational and athletic activities among the several thousand employes. Boulder City sprang up overnight into a city of 5,000 when work was started at the dam. The employes were without social contacts and it was Nelson—in addition to his regular duties as an engineer—who formulated and set in motion association is fortunate in having a number of group activities. The him as its secretary. Popular Michael Straus will handle publicity for the association.

Stout Stomachs.

Stout were the stomachs of our forebears. The Home Economics Bureau makes the conclusion after reading "The Art of Cookery," a book once owned by George Washington's father and displayed by the National Park Service. Commented Miss Helen Hostetter, of the bureau: "The Father of Our Country must have been a hardy youth to have survived those meals" For example a recipe called French flummery: "You must take a quart of cream and ½-ounce of isingless, beat it fine and stir into the cream. Let it boil slowly over a slow fire for a quarter hour—sweeten it to your palate and put in a spoonful of rosewater and a spoonful of orange water." Then, it went on: "You may eat it with cream or wine. Lay around it baked pears. It both looks very pretty and eats fine."

But we'll have the swiss on rye, thank you!

* * * *

Other oddly named dishes in the book: "Pocket soop, soop meagre, everlasting syllabubs, cowslip pudding, furmitry, salup, panado, vine leaves fritters, olive pye, trifle, pigeons transmogrified and water sokey."

The dinner was lovely—you serve such excellent panado!

Woman's Death Raises '37 Toll In Traffic to 60

Passenger in Careening Car Succumbs; Youth Held in Another Death.

The death of a colored woman yesterday raised the District traffic toll to 60 for this year, and a coroner's jury held a 22-year-old youth under the negligent homicide act in connection with another death.

Rachel Alexandria, colored, 19, 408 Massachusetts avenue northwest, died in Gallinger Hospital of injuries suffered Monday night in a collision on Klingle road near Cortland place northwest.

The girl was riding in a roadster with four friends when the driver, Howard Brown, colored, 21, 815 Fourth street northwest, lost control. The car careened to one side of the road, back to the other and then overturned.

Police are holding Brown, who received a possible skull fracture, for the action of a coroner's jury. The others in the car were not injured seriously.

Robert D. McMasters, 22, 1607 U street southeast, was held for Police Court action under the negligent homicide act after an inquest in the traffic death of Bertha Gross, 55, 1219 Sixth street northwest.

Witnesses testified McMasters' automobile struck the woman as she was crossing Fourteenth street at Independence avenue southwest last Friday. She died in Gallinger Hospital Sunday.

Passengers in McMasters' car told the jury the car was traveling at a moderate rate of speed in the center of the street on the car tracks.

Meanwhile, Arthur O. Fowler, 58, 1826 Seventeenth street northwest, was reported slightly improved in Casualty Hospital. He suffered a fractured skull in a collision in the 1900 block New York avenue northwest, yesterday.

Police said Fowler's car was in a collision with a truck operated by Albert H. Fairly, 27, of Barrington, N. J.

Mrs. Janie Lee, 51, of Alexandria, Va., suffered a fractured skull in an accident at Bailey's Crossroads, Annandale, Va. She was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Julian Garrett, 12, Hyattsville, Md., was struck while riding his bicycle on Defense highway and seriously injured yesterday by Stanley Jennis, 522 Sixth street northwest. Garrett was rushed to Casualty Hospital by the Prince Georges Rescue Squad. He received a possible fractured skull and his condition is undetermined, according to hospital officials.

Maryland National Guard Unit Commences War Games Today

By a Staff Correspondent.

Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., July 20.—Pouring rain confined the Fifty-eighth Brigade, Maryland National Guard, to tents this morning. All training schedules were canceled and inspection of equipment in tents was ordered.

Brig. Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock and his staff and regular Army instructors inspected equipment of the men to make sure every one is prepared properly for the strenuous battle training schedule which begins tomorrow.

The sun came out in the afternoon and several athletic events were staged as well as infantry drill and other practice work.

Gen. Woodcock and his staff were on reconnaissance this afternoon in the several areas to be theaters for the battalion problems scheduled for tomorrow.

The six battalions of the brigade will each stage a separate problem tomorrow in areas near the encampment.

Kitchen honors were divided today between Company K of Centreville and Company M of Annapolis in the first formal inspection of the year.

2 Bandits Rob Aide Of Representative Out With His Dog

Joseph Healey, secretary to Representative Duncan, of Missouri, took his dog out for exercise last night and for a time it looked as if he would get a better workout than the pup.

That was because of a couple of colored holdup men and the traffic at Fifteenth street and New Hampshire avenue northwest where they robbed him.

One of the holdup men stood in front of Healey with a .22 caliber pistol. "Stick 'em up," he said, then, as a car went by, "Put 'em down."

This went on for several minutes while a second holdup man standing in back of Healey went through his pockets, taking $4 in cash and the key to Representative Duncan's office.

Cancer Institute Bill Is Introduced

Representative A. L. Bulwinkle (Democrat), of North Carolina, yesterday conferred with President Roosevelt on the proposal to establish a National cancer insitute here. He is chairman of a House sub-committee which, with a Senate committee, held hearings on a number of bills to establish such an institute.

After talking to President Roosevelt, Bulwinkle introduced a bill approved by his committee which would authorize a $750,000 appropriation for a cancer institute and $700,000 annually to carry on its work.

G-Men Return $7 for Each $1 Spent in a Year

For every dollar spent for operating costs, the Federal Bureau of Investigation saved or returned to the Government or individual citizens $7 in property recovered or fines imposed, the F. B. I. disclosed last night in a report on "accomplishments" of the last fiscal year.

The total value of recoveries, fines and savings was put at $41,438,370, as compared with $35,148,287 during the fiscal year 1936. Operation expenses were placed at approximately $5,800,000.

The G-Men at the same time boosted their conviction record by 619 over the previous year with resulting 2 death sentences, 13 life sentences and more than 13,322 years in lesser convictions. At the same time the batting average of convictions jumped to 94.67 per cent of all cases investigated and tried. The 1936 average was 94.35 per cent.

Mattson Case Unsolved.

Only the Christmas holiday kidnaping of the son of Dr. W. W. Mattson, of Tacoma, Wash., remained unsolved among the 100 cases in this class of crime handled by the bureau. The F. B. I. reported conviction of 205 kidnapers or their assistants and said it was holding 40 more persons for trial or sentence.

Since adoption of the national bank robbery act of 1934, bank robbery has decreased 75 per cent, the bureau reported. Convictions in 78 bank robbery cases were obtained and sentences imposed totaled one life and 1,293 years, 7 months and 6 days.

The bureau's drive on violators of the Mann act almost doubled the number of white slavery convictions over the previous fiscal year. The score in this crime category was 479 convictions, $131,104 in fines and a total of 1,097 years in jail. For 1936 the conviction total was only 298, with sentences amounting to 834 years and 8 months.

Smashed Biz Rings.

"Special activities," the report said, "resulted in the smashing of several large well organized white slave traffic rings throughout the United States. In Connecticut, for instance, in one case 38 persons were convicted. This gang received over $1,500,000 a year through its traffic in women."

Some 6,000 Boy Scouts voluntarily added their prints to the F. B. I. collection, which, the report said, totaled 7,360,458 on July 1.

Inquiry Clears Garbage Chief Of Dishonesty

Board Disbelieves Charges of Unfairness to His Subordinates.

A special board of inquiry yesterday recommended to the District Commissioners, that William R. Wood, superintendent of garbage collectors, be completely cleared of charges brought against him by his subordinates.

The subordinates charged that Wood had forced them to contribute to an "Aunt Mary" fund for the support of an aged colored woman who lived near the garbage station. They also charged he had compelled them to work on his farm, to buy groceries from him at exorbitant prices and had otherwise taken unfair advantage of his position as superintendent.

Immediately after receiving the report of the board of inquiry, the Commissioners directed Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal to appoint a second board as "a sort of court of appeals." Duty of the second board, to be composed of three of Seal's assistants, will be to "review the record in the case and determine whether the testimony and the record justify the finding."

A Double Check.

Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan made it clear that the Commissioners were not dissatisfied with the original inquiry board's report and that the second board was to be set up merely to place the Commissioners' final action beyond criticism.

In its summary of testimony, the inquiry board reported:

"The board has reached the conclusion that no charges of dishonesty on the part of the garbage superintendent have been sustained. It is further the opinion of the committee that no testimony presented during the hearing has indicated any dishonesty or misfeasance on the part of the superintendent either now or in previous years."

The board reported that after "careful consideration" it had concluded "that the present superintendent is in every respect a proper employe not only to remain in the District service but to continue in charge of the garbage service.

Sure of Fair Treatment.

"The board is satisfied that the activities of the superintendent of the garbage service are and have been at all times subject to supervision and control of his superiors.

"The board is satisfied that the employes of the garbage service are fairly treated and that no discrimination is or has been shown."

It also was recommended in the report that any garbage service employes who fear discrimination because of their testimony against Wood may, if they request, be transferred to other branches of refuse disposal work at no loss in salary.

The board which reported yesterday comprised J. B. Gordon, director of sanitary engineering; Stanley De Neale, assistant corporation counsel, and William A. Xanten, city refuse supervisor. Hearings began May 4.

Leading the attack on Wood was James Kimbro, business agent of Local 466 of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union. Kimbro last week threatened a garbage collectors' strike if the inquiry board's report was longer delayed.

Capitol Fountain Blood-Red—Just Potassium Permanganate

Pink Spray Startles Strollers, but It's Only the Park Department's Precaution Against Anaerobic Bacteria in Pipes, Pools.

A rainbow, the Communist influence, or just the park department going artistic?

Washingtonians who walked in the rain on Capitol Plaza wondered yesterday when they viewed the big Capitol Fountain—which was spouting water the color of a judas tree in full bloom.

Perhaps the fountain lions had ben wounded, some of them reasoned, as the pretty red liquid poured from six stone mouths. To reach this conclusion was to change it the next minute, for upon closer inspection the fountain water looked more like that in which someone had been dyeing pink Easter eggs.

Just about this time the plaza policeman was sure to come along and offer the real scientific explanation.

National Capital Parks did it with no thought of how the rose sprays would look when edged in water-white against the blueish District sky. They did it with potassium permanganate, and it was for the sole purpose of killing any anerobic bacteria that might be lurking in the fountain's pipes or pools.

It took approximately a pound of the chemical salt to turn the whole fountain tank the color the park officials wanted it and to assure that the oxidation would be sufficient to eliminate the possible bacteria.

Although the same water is used over and over in the fountain and its lower pools, the color will not remain. Potassium permanganate (KMNO4 to you) will "go away," leaving only an indiscernible brownish precipitate.

Rally Demands America Cease Aiding Fascists

A plea for straight thinking on the subject of Spain's civil war was sounded last night before 1,100 persons crowded into the Belasco Theater to mark the first anniversary of the struggle. Sponsored by the American Friends of Spanish Democracy, the mass meeting attracted a crowd as enthusiastic as it was motley.

Stretched across the front of the auditorium was a huge banner which read, "Spain! America greets you after one year of heroic anti-Fascist struggle."

"It can happen here" was the theme introduced by Mauritz A. Hallgren, the first speaker. He pointed to tendencies now existing in this country which he believes will encourage a Fascist regime here if Spanish democracy is defeated.

The Rev. Herman F. Reissig, executive secretary of the North American Committee to aid Spanisch Democracy, spoke in terms of what he feels a Fascist victory would mean for Spain, Franco and his supporters, he said, will do nothing to improve the lot of the small land-owners, to establish public schools, to relieve the army's strangle-hold on the civilians or to establish religious freedom.

"I am no red!" he declared. "You don't have to be a red to sympathize with the Spanish loyalists. If you believe in a modified capitalism or the New Deal or freedom of religious and speech and assembly, you oppose Franco."

Admitting uncertainty as to what type of government the Loyalists will set up if victorious, he maintained that anything would be preferable to a regime headed by Franco.

By denying Germany and Italy the right to buy arms here, he said, we could not only maintain a true neutrality, but also "scare the warmongering Fascists."

Representative John T. Bernard, of Minnesota's Farmer-Labor Party, concluded the meeting with another attack on the present neutrality.

"We want peace, not neutrality," he said.

"It is time we brought the Kellogg pact and the nine-power pact of 1922 out of the archives and took them seriously."

District Building Sit-Down Strike Halted by Police

Another Workers' Alliance sit-down strike was ended here yesterday when eight policemen filed silently into the District Building boardroom and 26 sit-downers as silently filed out.

The sit-down came when District Commissioners Hazen and Sultan refused immediate action on demands voiced at a public hearing by David Dixon, Workers' Alliance leader.

The Workers' Alliance chieftain shouted to his followers, most of them colored: "Are you going to tolerate getting the run-around?"

"No!" they chorused.

Dixon and his group had demanded that need rather than employability be used as a criterion in giving relief, that relief funds be distributed without race prejudice and that relief station supervisors stand ready at all times to hear grievance committees.

Client of Woman Released on Bond

Vivian Simpson, 94-pound lawyer of Rockville, Md., yesterday won another round in her battle with State's Attorney James H. Pugh when Circuit Judge Charles W. Woodward reduced the bond of Charles Pinkett, colbred prisoner, from $5,000 to $750.

A Rockville woman for whom Pinkett had worked furnished the bond, and the colored man, a prisoner since June 26, was released. Miss Simpson contended a charge against Pinkett of embezzling $100 was a subterfuge; that the police were trying to connect him with a murder.

She contended the $5,000 bond for an embezzlement charge was ridiculously high, and Judge Woodward agreed. Pugh was not in court, and it was explained he was on vacation.

Auto Drivers' Course Asked By Palmisano

Bill Proposes Training Ground With All Hazards Except Walkers.

Traffic Policemen Would Give Both Instruction and Tests.

A training course for would-be auto drivers, equipptd with everything except pedestrians, was proposed yesterday in a bill introduced by Chairman Palmisano, of the House District Committee.

Should the training ground be developed in accordance with the plan of a New York engineer, who is sponsoring it, there would be roadways, stop signs, signal lights and even traffic cops to harass the learner.

Model for Citits.

The sponsor foresees the experiment as a model for cities throughout the country. He is W. Hamilton Owens, who has already explained his idea to Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

An elaborate design for carrying out the idea has been prepared by Owens and copyrighted.

Two Courses Planned.

Two courses will be laid out: One for beginners and one for inexperienced drivers.

"It is suggested that the personnel be made up principally of traffic officers and rookie traffic policemen who will give them the test," a prospectus says.

"In this way the rookie traffic policeman will receive valuable information themselves, bringing them into closer touch with the drivers and thereby enlighten them on the point of view of the driver."

Among the hurdles the beginner will have to clear before he obtains a driving permit, under the Owens plan, are the following

Take tests for reactions on various machines.

Practice driving on the course.

Pass a test involving 35 points, such as "alertness and observation on starting off," "shifting gears," "parking ability," " use of the horn," "backing up," "coming out of alley," et cetra.

Malaria Mosquito Will Bite Even 2 Miles Above Sea Level

As though the world does not have enough trouble with the shooting in China and Spain, labor unrest and declining birth rates, a Gauatemalan named Romeo now reports to Washington that you can climb practically two miles above sea level and still get bitten by a malaria carrying mosquito.

The United States Public Health Service was sufficiently disturbed by the discovery of Dr. Romeo de Leon to broadcast a warning yesterday in its weekly Public Health Reports.

Capped by a "scare head" in very black, 14-point type (all caps) which reads, "Anopheles Mosquitoes Found at 10,500 Feet Elevation in Gautemala," the announcement follows:

"Dr. Romeo de Leon, of the Guatemala Department of Health, has recently reported the finding of Anopheles mosquitoes at an altitude of 10,500 feet in the Huehuetenango region of the Republic of Guatemala. This discovery was made while Dr. de Leon was on a two-months trip through that region in western Guatemala.

"The greatest altitude at which these mosquitoes had previously been found in the republic is reported to be 8,500 feet, at which elevation they had been observed in the Quezaltenango region, which is also in the western part of the republic."

The implication seems pretty clear that one has to climb mighty high to make certain of escaping the bite of the Anopheles mosquito, carrier of malaria.

Luise Rainer Chose Acting as Quickest Route to Self-Expression.

By Luise Rainer.

Hollywood, July 20 (U.P.).—What a relief it is to be myself. For two years I have been playing other people, wearing either dirty or extremely elaborate clothes, being restricted to the limitations of other periods and countries. Now I can breathe!

In "Big City" I am playing a simple, normal girl, a Rumanian immigrant who comes to America and marries a New York taxi driver. It is a sweet and simple story, and to be truthful it is far more enjoyable than anything I have done in pictures so far.

Can you realize what a relief it must be from the months of sun and dust in "The Good Earth," where grime and sadness clung to one long after the last scenes were "shot" at night? Imagine being able to shake your head gaily as you walk, instead of having to walk as though a book were on your head as I had to do with the elaborate coiffures and tight bodices in "The Emperor's Candlesticks."

Fascinating Profession.

But that is the job of an actress—to bring to people the different characters of the world. And so, I am not complaining. It has been fortunate that they allowed me to portray so many different types of girls. Each of them was a new experience. Acting brings this to a person, and that is why it is a fascinating profession.

When I first thought of a career, there were several things I might have done—write or paint or act. I chose acting because it seemed the way to express what I felt and saw. You see, I was impatient. I did not want to wait for years. Acting seemed the quickest way. And it was never hard for me. I had experienced many different things. Working this way is satisfactory, because I know by instinct what might take years to learn from experience.

Fun to Let Down.

Even though portraying people other than myself is exhilarating, it is fun to let down and be just plain Luise Rainer. The dresses I wear in "Big City" are similar to those I would wear in real life. In fact, I had a white sports coat copied in black for one of the scenes. And my hair flies around in the film, unruly as it is any day when I'm not working.

Now that I have been in Hollywood for more than two years, it seems about time to leave and get a fresh viewpoint. Not permanently, but my mother is in Switzerland, and there are many friends in Vienna whom I have not seen in so long that it is best that I return. It is never good to stay in one place too long a time, so after a few months in Europe, I shall be eager to return to Hollywood, which has become my permanent home.

Gracie Has Dance With Fred Astaire

Can you imagine Gracie Allen, crack comedienne of radio and screen, as the dancing partner of Fred Astaire?

The Pandro S. Berman production, which George Stevens will direct, is almost ready for the cameras with a top-notch cast that also includes Miss Allen's partner, George Burns, and the noted English orchestra leader, Ray Noble. The music, by George and Ira Gershwin, was completed shortly before the former's recent death.

Fred Stone Saves Boy From Bad Fall

The action called for Tommy to lean excitedly from a second-story window holding up a heavy rifle he had found there. The boy thrust the gun through the window with such enthusiasm that he started headlong after it.

A sudden leap by Stone and he had Tommy by the seat of the trousers just as the lad was vanishing over the window sill—and it was a drop of 16 feet to terra firma.

Edward Arnold Has Hair Curled

Having his hair curled each morning was a part of Edward Arnold's regular routine while portraying Jim Fisk, spectacular financier of the '60s, for the new picture, "the Toast of New York."

Fisk, biographical sketches and portraits testify, had curly hair which he wore rather long, in the fashion of the period. Consequently a studio hairdresser had to impart the proper kinks daily to Arnold's thatch.

Marion Ainslee Pens Screen Tale

Marion Ainslee, whose name has been associated with "The Good Earth," "Our Dancing Daughters" and many other outstanding pictures, has been signed by RKO Radio to write an original story for the next filmusical to co-star Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. Irving Berlin will write the musical score of the Pandro S. Berman production.

Miss Ainslee's work for ten years was closely identified with the production genius of the late Irving Thalberg. In Europe at the time of his death, she was induced only recently to return to the motion picture scenes.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

'The Road Back' Not Altered as a Sop to Europe; Comedy Scenes Cut to Enhance American Enjoyment

BELL.

THE persistent rumor that Universal's picturization of Erich Maria Remarque's novel of "The Road Back" was recalled by the studio for certain revisions, calculated to placate foreign powers antagonistic to the film in its original form, by now have pretty thoroughly dissipated. It is, nevertheless, an open secret, I think, that "The Road Back" was subjected to additional editing after its first public showing, not with any idea or playing international politics, but merely in the interest of a more perfected entertainment for the mass public.

The first thought of the studio, one is given to understand, was that the sequel to "All Quiet on the Western Front," was a little too grim for peacetime consumption and that comedy interludes would do much to lighten the somber mood of the story. When the picture, as originally previewed by studio and West Coast audiences, was thoroughly appraised by the high command, it was concluded that too much comedy for the good of the story had been injected and that a "tightening" of the dramatic movement of the narrative of the lads from the front line trenches trying to adjust themselves to the pursuits of peace would be greatly strengthened by the elimination of much of this inappropriate levity.

That is what was done and only that. It follows, therefore, that when "The Road Back" is accorded its Washington premiere tomorrow night at RKO-Keith's, with all of the pomp and circumstance of a Hollywood opening Capital theatergoers will see a much closer approximation of the Remarque work then viewed on the West Coast.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the local "permeer"—flags will fly, bands will play and a typically distinguished first-night guest list will be in attendance. To make this possible, there will be only one screening of the picture tomorrow night, beginning at 8:45. The final projection of this week's regular attraction, "The Girl Said No," will begin at 6:30 and end at 7:45 p. m. At that hour the house will be closed, to reopen at 8:30 for the paying customers and the management's invited guests.

"The Road Back" is interpreted on the screen by a notable cast, some members of which also were seen in "All Quiet"—John King and Barbara Read in the principal romantic roles; "Slim" Summerville, Andy Devine, Richard Cromwell, Louise Fazenda, Noah Beery, jr., Etienne Girardot, Lionel Atwill, Spring Byington, Frank Reicher, Laura Hope Crews, Arthur Hohl, William B. Davidson, Al Shean, Samuel S. Hinds, Robert Warwick and Jean Rouverol.

James Whale, who directed "All Quiet," also directed "The Road Back," which was adapted to the screen by R. C. Sheriff, author of "Journey's End," and Charles Kenyon. It is hailed as one of the "big" pictures of the year.

* * * *

Yesterday morning at 11 Joseph Kaliska, Washington Branch Exchange manager for Gaumont British, proffered exhibitors and the press a preview of "King Solomon's Mines," one of his company's most pretentious and most spectacular melodramas, which traces the desert trek of a small group of intrepid Englishmen and a spunky little Irish girl to the legendary land in which was supposed to repose the world's most fabulous wealth in gold and diamonds. Adapted from Sir H. Rider Haggard's fanciful book, this subject accomplishes what the film version of the same author's " She" failed utterly to do—create a weird spectacle of impending doom by means as realistic as they are mammoth. The closing scenes of "King Solomon's Mines" is something of a triumph for both Nature and the technicians. Sir Cecil Hardwicke, Roland Young, John Loder and Anne Lee are conspicuous in the cast, but billed over them all is Paul Robeson, whose magnificent barytone voice is heard in several songs written especially for this release by Mischa Spolliansky. Lovers of bizarre and thrilling screen diversion will eat this one up, as the saying goes

* * * *

Since we are on the topic of previews, we might as well go the whole distance. Yesterday afternoon at 1:30 Division Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, Inc., and his associate executives spun off "Saratoga," Jean Harlow's latest picture, before a considerable projection-room audience.

First of all, let it be said that the casual observer never will be aware that Jean Harlow did not appear in every scene of this picture, in which she was co-starred with Clark Gable. There are a few substitutions of a "double"—in the person of Mary Dees, whose likeness recently adorned this page—in the later scenes of the picture, but they have been so adroitly handled that they never will be noticed and the sum total of effect is as if the lamented Miss Harlow had not been snatched from the picture by what proved to be her fatal illness.

The story is one of the race tracks, bookmakers and a few wealthy "suckers" who add zest to a love story that ought not to be revealed in advance. It will suffice at this time to say that the action abounds in the running of some thrilling races, the last of which utilizes the "photographic finish," for the first time, I believe, on the silver sheet; is punctuated with occasional bursts of song, some of which are introduced against novel backgrounds, and quite catches the excitement and tension that grip those who "follow the horses" either as a profession or a pastime.

In addition to the stars, the cast numbers among its considerable roster Lionel Barrymore, Cliff "Ukulele Ike" Edwards, who has his ukulele with him for the first time in several pictures Frank Morgan, Una Merkel, Frankie Darro, Hattie McDaniels and a host of others.

Until the opening of the Maryland tracks, "Saratoga" will be the next best thing.

* * * *

From the billing that has sprung up all over town, it may be gathered that Tom Mix is bringing his own circus to town for a three-day stand, beginning Monday, July 26, and continuing through Wednesday, July 28—just as exclusively announced in this space several weeks ago. It is a real circus that Tom is to present here, with some of the finest of "big top" performers on his payroll, in addition to his own 45 minutes or so of personal activity in the ring. It also still is true that a new spread of canvas is to be broken out for the first time in honor of the Washington engagement—all of which ought to provide an exciting three days for all of these proverbial "kids" from 6 to 106!

* * * *

There will be two new musical compositions on tap, so to speak, in Capital theaters next week. At the Earle, Mady Correll, recruited from the Broadway stage, will sing "The Plain Old Blues," a new composition by Johnston and Burke, the team that gave the world "Pennies From Heaven," popularized by Bing Crosby.

At Loew's Capitol, Phil Lampkin will incorporate a new work by a resident composer in his overture. This is "Viennese Waltz," similar in style to the "Blue Danube," and was written by Robert H. Greenwell, employed by Woodward and Lothrop's Department Store, who studied music at the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore as a hobby. The orchestration was made by Mr. Lampkin and is expected to score a hit.

Enticed From Stage to Cinema

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, July 20.—Personal Observations: Sylvia Sidney is so tiny that she has acquired a permanent habit of looking up when she talks. Gypsy Rose Lee's voice has the same timbre as that of Kay Francis. Clark Gable always hitches up his belt before facing the cameras. Since "Seventh Heaven" most young extras and bit players have developed a Simone Simon pout. Lee Tracy has a nervous habit of rubbing a small scar on his right cheek.

SILVIA SIDNEY.

Off-screen or on, Akim Tamiroff always looked as though he is about to say, "Off with his head!" Sonja Henie drives that low, rakish white car of hers as though she really enjoys it. When talking with anyone, Luise Rainer always sits with her right leg doubled under her. Don Ameche draws pictures on the tablecloth with the handle of his spoon. Before drinking a highball, Dick Powell always touches the glass with his cheek.

Leo Carillo invariably executes a debonair two-fingered salute when saying hello. The "doodling" champion of Hollywood is Fred MacMurray; he can't talk without drawing intricate designs. Dolores Del Rio and her husband, Cedric Gibbons, are inveterate hand-holders-in-public. Gary Cooper often sprawls, but never sits. When Carole Lombard laughs, everyone within hearing (and the Lombard laugh carries vast distances) always smiles.

I discovered one of the reasons for John Boles' charm. A newspaper woman who prides herself on being "hard-boiled" dropped in on the stage where he was working, and he immediately left the set and greeted her. I was eavesdropping (as usual) and heard this conversation: "Why, how do you do—I haven't seen you for some time," Boles said. "Just a few weeks, I think," replied the already flattered woman. "No," John ruled, without a moment's hesitation. "We were introduced exactly two months ago in the Brown Derby."

When the woman left the set, she was starry-eyed.

I'll lay a bet that if you stand long enough on the corner of Hollywood boulevard and Vine, you will see every famous psychoanalyst in the world. I checked up the other day and learned that 52 "mind doctors" have hung out their shingles in Hollywood and I am told that each one is doing a land-office business curing the imaginary ills of super-imaginative stars. I'll also lay a bet that if it were not for "ethics," the psychoanalysts of Filmtown could tell some interesting stories.

Frances Dee confides to me that she is disgusted. For years, Joe McCrea has been singing the praises of Hawaii—and for years they have planned a vacation there. Each time a studio call has made them abandon the trip. On the last occasion, this spring, they had their trunks packed and were buying their tickets when Paramount ordered Frances back for retakes.

"I give up," she said. "The only way I'll ever see Hawaii is to have the islands moved over here and anchored off Catalina. Then I might be able to steal a couple of days and run over in a speed boat."

The next time I hear some defeatist singing the blues about "no opportunities left in Hollywood," I am going to introduce him to Bill Friendling, a boy who had an idea. He stood on the movie sidelines and observed how much vegetation was required to dress the outdoor sets, which, for the most part, are now constructed indoors on the sound stages. And he saw how difficult it was to get, so he promoted a few hundred bucks and started a nursery that is designed to cater to movie needs only. Any other nursery man would sneer at his stock, for it includes no exotic or fancy plants. But Bill gets fancy prices for his English ivy and his oaks and his eucalytis trees because he knows exactly what the studios want and can deliver in a hurry. His only worry is his income tax.

Tracy, who loves to read drama notices, missed the reviews. On the train leaving Glens Falls, he saw a man opposite us reading the local paper. Tracy stepped up and asked, 'May I see the paper, please? I want to see the drama notice on the back page. It's about me' . . . 'Okay, buddy,' the man answered, 'but please return it. I got a notice, too—on the front page.' Tracy looked at the front page and read about that guy. There was his picture. He was on his way to Auburn Prison—for a robbery!"

Steele and Williams on Edge for Bout Tonight After Postponement

BUDGE DEFEATS VON CRAMM IN FIVE-SET NET DUEL

The Washington Post Sports

* X WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, JULY 21, 1937 17

15,000 Fans Expected to Attend Bout

Entire Card Intact; Pair in Best Condition for Colorful Struggle.

By Bob Garrison.

Forced to wait 24 hours before stepping into the ring to do battle for Washington's underprivileged children, Middleweight Champion Freddie Steele and Contender Charlie "Hobo" Williams, are set for their fight tonight at 8:30 p. m. at Griffith Stadium. Intermittent showers forced postponement last night of the Variety Club's charity show, sponsored by The Washington Post.

After both Steele and Williams startled bystanders by balancing the scales within ½ pound of each other at the weighing-in ceremonies at the boxing commission's office at noon yesterday, the entire show had to be delayed until tonight by the sprinkling of rain which was still falling at 5 p. m.

Steele weighed 161½ pounds and Williams was nearly the same, being recorded at 161¾.

15,000 Expected.

A crowd of 15,000 is expected to pour at least $25,000 into the box office for the privilege of witnessing one of the few shows ever arranged here strictly for charity. All profits—and everyone concerned with the promotion of the massive card is working without recompense—will be used to send underprivileged children and their mothers to summer camps.

The fighters are taking considerably less than they usually accept. Steele, who demands a $50,000 guarantee, consented to take 35 per cent of the gate. Williams, who has been rising steadily and who welcomes a chance to display his caliber against Steele, although it is a non-title scrap, will leave the park with a 10 per cent stipend. Other battlers are working on salary basis.

Although all other wegihts recorded yesterday by the commission will stand for the bouts tonight, both Steele and Williams will be required to mount the scales again at noon today, as Williams is working under a contract agreement that will force him to remain under 163 pounds for the fight. Steele, appearing in perfect condition, will enter the ring weighing 4 pounds more than in any previous fight.

Not Fatigued.

Williams did not appear to be fatigued in any way although he is as much as 6 pounds under his usual fighting weight. He followed Steele upon the scales and carefully watched Bill Blake maneuver the balances into position. Utterances of surprise filled the darkened room when his weight was announced.

Steele's trainer, Ray Arcel, nodded satisfaction when Steele's weight was recorded at 161½. For days the Takoma, Wash., battler has been at approximtaely the same weight and it was feared that he might not be able to hold the much-needed poundage. A touch of humor was added by the correspondence of weights, as each had been working toward the other's bulk from their 15-pound difference. Steele ate heartily to put on beef, and Williams drilled incessantly to reduce.

Steele and Williams, as well as every one of the preliminary performers, were declared physically and mentally able to compete on the card by the commission physician.

The semifinalists, Joey Archibald, Providence, R. I., featherweight, and his foe, Harry Gentile, Hartford, Conn., battler who holds two wins over the adopted local favorite, also weighed within a half pound of each other. Archibald weighed 124¾ and Gentile, 124½.

Like the feature attraction, their bout is scheduled for ten rounds. The winner of this event has been promised a match with Lou Gevinson, reputed featherweight contender whose rise in the local ring was halted recently by a training camp injury, and who is reported to be ready to go again.

Buck Everett, scheduled to fight Eddie Hogan, of New England, Jack Dempsey's No. 1 contender for the crown now worn by Joe Louis, spotted his opponent over 50 pounds and seemed not perturbed by the difference in size. The traveling Washington heavyweight remarked that "I can't miss this time—he'll be all over the ring. Remember the old Fitzsimmons slogan!" This is scheduled for eight rounds.

Fail to Show.

Max Roesch, Texas youngster, weighed 191½ pounds for his bout with Eddie Caddore, of Providence, R. I., who weighed 178¼, for their six-round encounter.

Walter Woods, of New York, will carry 163½ pounds into the ring against Mickey Flannegan's 157¾ in their six-round fight. Billy Bullock will weigh 129¾ against Frankie De Angelo, Washington boy, in a comeback role, who weighed 131 pounds. They are listed for four sessions.

The colored middleweights who are to appear on the card did not show up for the scheduled weighing-in. Prince Albert, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Kayo Moseby, Atlantic City, were due to report today to the commission for examination.

New York Archer Leads in Tourney

By the Associated Press.

Lancaster, Pa., July 20.—Dorothy Budd, of East Rockaway, N. Y., scored 458 with 72 arrows today to win the first heat of the National Archery Championships from the defending titlist, Mrs. Gladys M. Hammer, of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Hammer shot 71 arrows for 453. Last year she won the crown with 471 on 71 shots. Miss Clara E. Richter, of Washington, D. C., scored 251 on 57 arrows and Miss Myrtle Lynch, also of Washington, shot 173 on 37.

Cliff Spencer Definitely Out At Beaver Dam

Resignation Is Beyond Recall; 200 Members Petition Stay.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Cliff Spencer, the lanky Beaver Dam professional, stormy petrel of the local Middle Atlantic pro ranks, is definitely out of the Landover Club, as President Edward S. Brashears refused to accept the recall of his resignation.

Spencer resigned Monday, July 12, prior to playing in the Shawnee Open, and after rumors as to his successor had included virtually every local golfer of note, he recalled his resignation in an exclusive story carried by The Post last Monday morning.

In a letter to Spencer, dated July 20, President Brashears said, "I regret the necessity of advising you that your resignation as pro at Beaver Dam is beyond recall. You submitted your resignation on the fifteenth day of July.

"Pursuant to that resignation, we discussed the matter, and accepting it, I released you from any necessity for accounting for your time.

"We have under consideration a number of applications and the name of your successor will be determined in the near future."

Among the rumors concerning the Beaver Dam pro post after Spencer's resignation was one to the effect that some 200 members had signed a petition agreeing to resign from the club if Spencer left. A like number also signed a pledge, it was reported, to leave the club if an amateur, prominently mentioned for the job, was appointed.

Spencer, who played in the Philadelphia Open Monday and yesterday, will spend a few days in New York prior to returning to the city. He is expected to stay at Beaver Dam until the end of August and then make the winter tour with the professional group, starting with the Glen Falls and Hershey Open.

Fischer Is Sent To Oriole Club

Chicago, July 20.—Pitcher Carl Fischer, the southpaw bought by the Nats from Cleveland at the waiver price of $7,500 six weeks ago, today was released to the Baltimore Orioles.

All major league clubs waived their claims to Fischer and the Nats took a loss on the deal. Baltimore is believed to have paid $5,000 for Fischer's contract. The curly-headed left-hander, who won two games for the Nats but failed to go the route in any of his starts, was a big winner with Buffalo in the International League last season.

Red Parker to Rejoin A's in Philadelphia

Manager Connie Mack recalled the rookie infielder from the Atlanta Crackers because of an injury to one of the Athletic infielders, it was understood. Parker was optioned to the Crackers early in the season and has been used in a utility role.

Tenth Game Dropped by Nats, 4 to 3

Chisox Win in Tenth as Ferrell Weakens; Stone Is Goat.

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, July 20.—An improved Washington ball team lost its tenth straight game today. If that sounds incongruous, well, it can't be helped, because the Nats were truly improved today.

It all ended in the agony of a 4-to-3 licking by their age-old oppressors, the White Sox, but the Nats didn't accept defeat until the tenth inning—a comparative triumph.

For Wesley Cheek Farrell it was a galling experience. The handsome hurler was deprived of a richly deserved victory in regulation innings because of an ugly error by Outfielder Johnny Stone that directly produced two vital Chicago runs.

Gain 2-to-0 Lead.

That occurred back in the fifth inning, when the White Sox took a 2-to-0 lead, but in the tenth, Ferrell weakened suddenly before the concentrated strength of the Chicago batting order. Three singles rocketed off the White Sox bats and they won the ball game.

Ferrell struck out Mike Kreevich to start that tenth, but he pitched a left-field single to Dixie Walker. Husky Zeke Bonura pushed Walker around to third with a hot-shot single to center and strategy then called for a deliberate pass to Radcliff. But Lucius Appling spoiled the Nats' little game with a well-tagged single past Kuhel and Walker was home with the winning run.

Until that tenth, Ferrell had slightly the better of a duel with young Thornton Lee, the left-hander who has beaten the Yankees three times this season. Lee began with a flourish, striking out eight Nats in the first five innings, but then he stopped striking 'em out and the Nats began to make some runs.

They muffed a chance to score in the first when Joe Kuhel, who later in the day was to be advised that he was the father of a bouncing boy, calmly looked at a third strike with the bases full.

The Sox finally broke the scoreless deadlock in the fifth when, with one out, Appling bashed a single to center. Then took place a sorry performance. Johnny Stone, for no reason at all, permitted Bozie Berger's tame fly to slip out of his hands and the Sox had two on base. Ferrell then walked Luke Sewell and Lee surprised everybody by driving in a run with a single past Bluege. The Sox scored another when Hayes squeezed Berger home from third with a bunt to Kuhel.

Sox Lead Again.

Al Simmons, who collected three of the Nats' ten hits and was something of a batting hero today, launched the Nats on a score-tying rally in the sixth with a scorching single past Berger. Johnny Stone breathed some life into the uprising with a single to right but the tension was eased for the Sox when Kuhel, attempting to duck a pitch, bumped a soft bounder back to Lee. Mihalic, though, drew a walk and Rick Ferrell wiped out the two-run deficit by smashing a single through the box to score a pair of his colleagues.

As if that kind of a situation were untenable, the Sox surged right back and got into a lead again. With one out in their half of the inning, big Bonura thumped a triple out of Almada's reach and with one out, Appling ushered him home with a long fly to Simmons that put Chicago in front, 3-2.

But the Nats, who were showing more spirit and get-up today than

Dodgers Take 2-1, 10-Inning Win Over Cubs

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 20.—The Dodgers, after dropping four straight decisions to the Cubs, came back today to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 2-1, in a ten-inning series opener.

Heinie Manush, who doubled off the right field wall with one out, crossed the plate on Jack Winsett's single with the deciding run. Max Butcher, winning his fifth of the year, held the Bucs to eight hits while Brooklyn got six of Cy Blanton, the big right-hander.

A walk, a single and an outfield fly scored Lloyd Waner in the first with the losers' lone run. Brooklyn picked up an unearned run in the third on three walks, a stolen base and two errors, both by Pittsburgh Catcher Al Todd.

With both Arky Vaughan and Lee Handley on the sick list, Manager Pie Traynor played third base for the Pirates for the first time in two years. He handled four chances and failed to get a hit in four times at bat.

Tigers Defeat Bosox, 10 to 9 In 10 Frames

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, July 20.—The Detroit Tigers defeated the Boston Red Sox, 10 to 9, in the tenth inning of their free-hitting game today. The teams collected 32 hits—16 apiece—for 60 bases.

Jimmy Foxx scored four Boston runs with two four-baggers, while his mates, Colonel Mills and Eric McNair, also got round trips. Gerald Walker got one for the Tigers and Rudy York hit a homer with two runners ahead of him to tie the score at 9-all in the ninth.

Hank Greenberg broke the deadlock with a single which sent Billy Rogell across the plate. Roxie Lawson, who pitched to Boston the last inning, was credited with the victory.

Giants Purchase Two.

New York, July 20 (AP).—The New York Giants today took steps toward strengthening their 1938 mound staff when they purchased Hy Vandenberg and Bill Lorhman, both right-handed pitchers, from the Baltimore Orioles of the International League. They will report to the Giants at the end of the International League season.

Californian Rallies, Wins Three Straight

By Scotty Reston.

Associated Press Staff Writer.

Wimbledon, England, July 20.—Don Budge, leanest and bravest of America's tennis greats, climbed back from apparent irretrievable defeat on Wimbledon's center court today, defeated the gallant Teuton baron, Gottfried von Cramm, in five sets, and gave the United States a dramatic 3-to-2 victory over Germany in the Davis Cup interzone finals.

With Budge's sensational triumph the United States qualified to face Great Britain's weakened cup-holding forces in the challenge round, starting Saturday. And unles the experts are all wrong, the Americans should score decisively over the British and take the cup back to the United States for the first time since it was lost to the French at Germantown in 1927.

There may have been more stirring Davis Cup matches in the past than the duel Budge and von Cramm fought today, but nobody could remember them.

Reaching the very pinnacle of his form, yet beaten in the first two sets by the inspired German, Budge simply conjured the next three sets out of the hat and left the famed court with the crowd of 5,000 shouting his name and cheering just as loudly for the handsome, lion-hearted lad he defeated.

Henkel Beats Grant.

Trailing, 2 to 1, at the start of the final day's play, Germany drew level at 2 to 2 when Heinrich Henkel trounced Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, in the opening singles duel, 7—5, 2—5, 6—3, 6—4.

So the outcome of the series rested with Budge and von Cramm and when the Oakland (Calif.) redhead finally whipped the titled Teuton after a 2½-hour struggle, 6—8, 5—7, 6—4, 6—2, 8—6, there were some strange scenes among the ivy and geraniums of this famous court.

In the first row, Suzanne Lenglen, five times winner of the Wimbledon women's championship, stood for ten minutes applauding even after the two rivals had disappeared. Farther back, Big Bill Tilden, who has been saying that the German was the best amateur in the world, all but cried when the fair-haired lad was beaten.

And in the press box, silent old gentlemen who have come to expect brilliance after watching such stars as Tilden, Ellsworth Vines, Henri Cochet and Fred Perry, stood up in their seats and pounded their hands raw at the sparkling exhibition Budge and Von Cramm put up.

May Change Line-Up.

Budge and Von Cramm hardly had left the court before the experts began speculating on what chances there were of Capt. Walter L. Pate changing the American line-ups before tackling the British.

There is no doubt, of course, that Budge will handle two singles matches and the doubles along with blond Gene Mako, of Los Angeles. But it appeared likely that Grant would yield the second singles assignment to Frankie Parker, of Milwaukee.

Grant, as a matter of fact, was so heartbroken over losing both his singles matches against Germany, that he declared he was through with cup competition and wouldn't play against Great Britain even if chosen.

"I turned yellow," he said bitterly, "and almost lost the cup for us. A guy who hasn't got any more guts than I have ought to quit for good. Think how I feel quitting like that and then watching Don fight his heart out to win. I shook like a leaf all through my match with Henkel."

All attempts at consoling the tiny Atlantan failed.

Parker Playing Well.

Even if Grant, when he has had time to get over his disappointment, should reconsider his decision about retiring from cup competition, some critics thought it would be good policy for Pate to switch to Parker. The Milwaukee youngster played brilliantly in the All-England championships, reaching the semifinals before bowing to Budge, who then went on to whip Von Cramm in straight sets for the title. Parker, as a matter of fact, won one set from Budge, the only one the Californian had lost during his British campaign this year until today.

The British team is definitely settled with Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin and young Charles Hare handling the singles and C. R. D. Tuckey and Frank H. D. Wilde playing doubles. Hare replaces Fred Perry, now a professional, while Wilde owes his place on the team as a result of the illness of George Patrick Hughes, Tuckey's usual doubles partner.

He came out for the crucial match in white flannel trousers and white jacket touched with scarlet, took off the jacket, folded it carefully, strode out and took the first game on his own service at love.

Budge came within a point of breaking through in the fifth and finally did smash the German's service in the ninth, after the game had gone to deuce five times, for a 5—4 lead.

Batters Budge's Service.

That was what the crowd had expected, only most of the spectators thought it would come sooner. But the German immediately battered Budge's cannonball service in the tenth and won it at love. Von Cramm kept playing deep shots to Budge's forehand, racing in to bounce the returns high into the stands. Finally he broke through the American again to win the fourteenth game, and with it the set at 8—6.

In the second set the German introduced Budge to his backhand passing shot—a beautiful stroke which usually sent the ball deep into the corners. Games followed service in this set to the twelfth, although Budge had to overcome a 15—40 deficit to save the sixth.

But in the twelfth Von Cramm, trailing 0—40, hit one of these passing shots deep for 1 point, cut a perfect drop shot just over the net for another, lobbed one to the baseline for another and struck the final blow with a forehand cross-volley for the game and set at 7—5.

Von Cramm's victory in the first set was a near miracle, but the second, gained with such grace of motion and with such daring length and pace, was enough to shatter staid Wimbledon's calm composure.

Most of all, however, it stirred up the tall, red-haired Californian. Don broke through the baron's "kicking" whistler in the first game, and though the German came right back and took Budge's service at love in the fourth game, Budge went back in front by cracking Von Cramm's delivery in the fifth and then served two aces to take a 5—3 lead in the eighth. Then the American held steady to take his own service in the tenth game for the set, 6—4.

Middle Atlantic Net Entries Due Today

Entries for the Middle Atlantic Doubles Tournament scheduled for tomorrow at the Army-Navy Country Club will be received by Gene Herman, club pro, as late as 6 p. m. today.

The tournament crown will not be defended by last year's winning team, Gil Hunt-Ralph McElveny as Gil Hunt is participating in the Longwood Bowl tournament in Massachusetts. McElveny, however, is entered with Tom Mangan, local veteran.

Herman can be reached by calling Jackson 2150. The winning team will be the official representatives of the Middle Atlantic section in the National Doubles Tournament at Longwood, in August.

Girls Playground Wet; Play Semifinals Today

Play in the Department of Playground's annual girls' tournament which has reached the semifinal round will be continued today at Chevy Chase playground after rain forced postponement of both matches yesterday.

In matches listed at 5 p. m., Hazel Bishopp meets Mary Gray and Lucille McDowell plays Helen Miller. Final will be played tomorrow at the same time.

Suburban's Invitation Golf Listed

August 19, 20, 21 Date of Baltimore Club's Tournament.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

The Suburban Club's invitation tournament, one of Baltimore's pioneer amateur golf events, will be revived after a nine-year lapse on August 19 to 21, it was announced yesterday by Nate Kaufman, chairman of the committee.

At least five 18s will qualify for match play on Friday and Saturday after the qualifying round. If the field justifies another medal play day the added entrants will play on Wednesday.

All member clubs of the Maryland Golf Association, prominent District linksmen and out-of-town golfers will be invited, including simon-pure golfers throughout the East and Midwest.

The 1928 event included Jesse Guilford, D. Clarke Corcoran, Francis Ouimet and other prominent linksmen. The event is being held on request of the host club members and other Baltimore member clubs.

The course is in excellent shape and the August date will be a welcome addition to a slack golf schedule that faces the Middle Atlantic golfers. A large contingent is expected to play from Washington and vicinity.

A committee, composed of Nate Kaufman, Nate Kaufman, jr., George Hess, Milton Halle, Arthur Reis, Robert Goldman and Howard Schloss, have been appointed to handle the affair and they will, in turn, appoint sub-committees from the club members.

Baltimore public links players, including Otto and Walter Greiner, will participate in the event with invitations extended through the officers of the various municipal groups.

Repaired Park To Be Opened At Bel Air, Md.

July 28, Date Set to Open Revamped Track; New Starting Time Set.

Chicago, July 20.—Marmara, from the Lemar Stock Farm, owned by Leo Marks, of Columbus, Ohio, won the 7-furlong Marquette Purse at Arlington Park today, in a close finish with H. H. Cohan's Pompa.

One-half length separated the thoroughbreds as they passed the judges. Jockey Glenn Smith rode the winner. Pompa, ridden by Jockey R. Dotter, battled it out with the victor from the head of the stretch to the wire. Mrs. F. M. Grabners' Spanish Babe, favorite, finished third.

Marmara ran the distance in 1:23 4-5, paying $9.80 in the mutuels.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, July 20.—Two Cleveland home runs—one of them Hal Trosky's twentieth of the season—were wasted today as the Philadelphia Athletics won the hard-slugging opener of the four-game series, 7 to 5.

The visitors overcame a three-run Cleveland lead and climaxed a 15-hit attack off four pitchers with a three-run outburst in the fifth to hand the Tribe its fourth straight setback.

George Caster was nicked for a dozen blows, but went the route for the Athletics, who first drove out Earl Whitehill and then won the game off Ivy Paul Andrews. Andrews was succeeded by Joe Heving and Lloyd Brown.

Cleveland's other homer was by Bruce Campbell, but both were with bases empty.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TROLIGHT, $12.10, $7.60, $4.20; DARK MAY, $7.50, $4.30; AFFIRMATION, $3.20.

TROLIGHT, steered wide for racing room, was rated along after gaining contending position and answered drive to take command in closing sixteenth. DARK MAY, unable to find racing room in early stretch, closed with belated rush when clear. AFFIRMATION closed gamely between horses after being squeezed back entering stretch. DO IT moved up menacingly on inside, but faltered in closing test. JEN was rushed to front on inside during opening furlong, set a good pace, but tired suddenly midway of stretch. MILK DIPPER stopped after pressing early pace. FORMAX broke poorly.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:40½. Off at once. Winner, M. A. Harris' ch. c. (3), by High Time—St. Theresa. Trained by L. E. Ogle. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:15 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIME SIGNAL, $3.30, $2.60, $2.50; HEARTEASE, $3.30, $3.20; HAPPY HOST, $4.30.

TIME SIGNAL, away slowly, but rushed into contention at once, opened a long lead approaching stretch and easily held away to end. HEARTEASE, hard ridden throughout, moved around horses while improving position and closed gamely, but was no match for winner. HAPPY HOST went to front under hustling tactics and tired gradually through stretch. WHITTLE moved up entering stretch, but tired. DISOWN dropped out of it after pressing early pace. INDIANA went forwardly on outside to far turn and faltered.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 4:11½. Off at 4:13. Winner, H. Bieber's dk. br. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLOWERY LADY, $5.20, $3.40, $2.40; SEA DOVE, $19.80, $6.50; SKYRIDE, $2.80.

FLOWERY LADY, allowed to settle into best stride, circled her field to take command midway of stretch and drew out cleverly. SEA DOVE went to front with sharp move approaching stretch and closed willingly when displaced. SKYRIDE, first away, alternated in settling and pressing pace and tired gradually in final test. HAPPY HOSTESS, rushed to leaders, went to the front briefly approaching stretch and faltered. BALCONY, off in first flight, stopped after opening quarter. INA DEAR could not keep up.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:41½. Off at 4:42½. Winner, Wheatley Stable's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MERRY LASSIE, $3.90, $3.00, $2.60; RED GLARE, $5.50, $3.60; STRING ALONG, $8.00.

MERRY LASSIE, much the best, forged to the front in opening furlong, opened a wide lead and was galloping in hand at the end. RED GLARE, forward factor from start, closed gamely. STRING ALONG, first away, dropped back, saved ground entering stretch and closed full of run. HANDCUFF went evenly. TEDEMA showed a flash of early speed. LAST LAY faltered after chasing the pace of winner.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:11. Off at 5:11½. Winner, P. J. Estes' b. g. by Sand Blast or Don Diego—Jasmath. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAN LU, $5.80, $3.50, $2.70; MAXINE F., $6.20, $3.80; MISS EPE, $2.90.

SAN LU, in the thick of contention from start, shook off early challenge of BRIDE'S DELIGHT on command and under pressure was drawing clear of MAXINE F. at end. MAXINIE F., restrained while forwardly placed to stretch, could not match winner's closing drive. MISS EPE closed willingly. DON MANUEL came through on inside approaching stretch to reach leaders, but tired in closing sixteenth. BRIDE'S DELIGHT outbroke field, but faltered after a quarter.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 5:42. Off at 5:42. Winner, J. McKeever's ch. g. (5), by Transmute—Fortunate. Trained by R. McKeever. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:59 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TREASURE SHIP, $7.60, $3.80, $2.70; FOREIGN LEGION, $4.30, $3.20; POST BRIGADE, $5.30.

TREASURE SHIP, closer than usual while trailing for half, circled field when placed to drive and won handily while going away. FOREIGN LEGION moved up sharply along backstretch, was blocked on swing to stretch and closed with belated rush when clear. POST BRIGADE rallied to punishment to close with good energy. EUDES moved up menacingly near final turn, but faltered. WESTY'S DUKE stopped after setting pace for half. JAMES BOY half early speed. PRINCE PETTIE, closest to pace for half while running on own courage, stopped when placed to drive.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 6:11½. Off at 6:12. Winner, E. N. Mike Kreevich Is New Hero in Chicago.

By Shirley Povich.

Chicago, July 20. — The only known Croatian in baseball, piano-legged Mike Kreevich, who is constructed on the general lines of a kiosk and is almost as easy to step over as walk around, is the newest idol of South Side Chicago baseball fans.

POVICH.

The daily feats of the little White Sox centerfielder who has a .336 batting average to go with his fancy fielding, have captured the fancy of the Comiskey Park customers to the point where he is second in popularity only to loud-mouthed Zeke Bonura, the first baseman, whose constant roaring is forgiven in the light of his extra-base hitting.

This Kreevich is the strongest little man in baseball, Chicago reporters will have you know, and one look at those bulky legs and sinewy arms is convincing. And he came by those muscles honestly.

* * * *

He got 'em down there in the bituminous coal mines of southern Illinois—Mount Olivet, to be exact—loading coal cars 400 feet underground when he wasn't using a pick and shovel. He'd been doing that since he was 15 years old, working side by side with his dad until he discovered he could make more money playing baseball.

* * * *

The Cubs had him three years ago after plucking him from Kansas City, but upon the North Side, apparently they didn't appreciate the talents of the little Croat, because they sent him back to St. Paul where a White Sox scout picked him up. In Chicago's South Side park, Mike was an instantaneous success.

* * * *

But he was forced to play stockingless for the best part of his first week with the White Sox. There simply wasn't any hose around to fit those bulky Kreevich legs and not until a rush-order was sent to the club's tailor was little Mike completely outfitted.

* * * *

He's quick at repartee, too, taking in good style the joshing about little Mount Olivet where the sidewalks are never taken in because there are no sidewalks. The other afternoon the Southern Illinois Croats gave him a "day" at St. Louis and he was asked why it wasn't scheduled for a Saturday instead of a Friday, so the home folks could make a week-end out of it in the big city.

* * *

"That was impossible," said Mike. "You see, the Mount Olivet train goes the other way on Saturdays."

Manager Jimmy Dykes, whose semiretirement from active play has been hastened by a lame leg, boasts the champion bat of all time. It is an old stick that he first gained title to in 1926 and since then, Dykes has compiled a .667 batting average with it.

* * * *

But he only uses the bat on special occasions. He got himself out of a batting slump with it in '26 and never picked it up again until the 1929 World Series. It hit .421 for him in that series and he retired the stick to the Dykes' attic in Philly until another emergency.

* * * *

Dykes brought the bat out again, finally, in the World Series of '30, and again in the series of '31, with very salubrious effects. It lay idle until 1933 when in his only All-Star game, the Sox manager produced two hits with it and retired the stick again after it had produced an average of two hits out of every three times at bat.

Carl Fischer's departure from the Nats came as no surprise to his colleagues on the Washington Club, who heard of his release to the Baltimore Orioles today.

* * * *

Ever since the scene in the Nats' Cleveland dressing room last week, when Manager Steve O'Neill, of the Indians, invaded the place and dared Fischer to fight, the curly-headed left-hander was under a cloud.

* * * *

Fischer's refusal to accept O'Neill's challenge cost him a great deal of respect that he formerly held, and the belief that he would be sold at the first opportunity was openly voiced by his teammates.

Yanks Take Double Bill In St. Louis

Win Opener With Browns 5 to 4 and Nightcap by 9-6 Count.

St. Louis, July 20 (AP).—The New York Yankees ran their American League lead to six and a half games today by winning both ends of a double-header from the Browns. After wininng the opener, 5-4, in ten innings, they came back to capture the nightcap, 9-6. Joe DiMaggio, who hit safely in both games to run his streak to 21 games, clouted his twenty-fifth homer of the year in the first game with two on base.

Giants Lose Dick Bartell And Mancuso

Gus Will Be Out With Broken Finger for Three Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 20.—The New York Giants, one game behind the National League leading Cubs, today suffered two damaging blows to their hopes of retaining the pennant.

An X-ray examination, made only yesterday, revealed that Gus Mancusco, the regular catcher, had broken his right index finger when he stopped a foul tip last Tuesday in Baker Bowl, Philadelphia. At first thought no more serious than a bruise, the injury now is likely to keep the valuable backstop inactive for three more weeks.

In addition, Dick Bartell, hurt on Sunday when he made a throw while off balance, will be out of uniform for ten more days. He has a torn tendon in the left groin. Harry Danning has been filling in behind the plate for Mancusco, with Mickey Haslin taking Bartell's place at shortstop.

Chuck Bond Is Signed By Washington Pros

Charles "Chuck" Bond, All-Pacific Coast tackle at the University of Washington for the past three seasons, has been signed to a Washington Redskins Professional Football team contract and will report here, August 25, for practice.

A regular member of Coach Jimmy Phelan's Huskies for three years, he reached national recognition when he starred in the Rose Bowl game, played January 1, this year, against the University of Pittsburgh. Bond weighs 220 pounds and stands 6 feet 2 inches.

O'Donnell Scheduled.

Stump Talburt will pitch for O'Donnell and Joe Earvey for National Savings as the teams hook up today at 5 p. m. on the North Ellipse in an Industrial League game. The scheduled game yesterday between Heurich and Old Milwaukee was postponed by rains.

Ralph Guldahl Decries British Sportsmanship

Calls Carnoustie Course Unfair, Tour Hurt Him Financially.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 20.—Ralph Guldahl leaned his portly frame against a guard rail on the Berengaria today and said it would be okay with him if he never saw England and a British golf course again.

The bulky Norwegian, who got used to hard knocks as he arose from poverty and despair to win the National Open golf championship, said the British golfers were "poor sports" and Carnoustie, scene of the British Open championship, was "unfair."

"As far as I'm concerned I wouldn't swap a Texas cactus plant for the whole of England," beefed Ralph. "I don't say this to alibi as I think all we Ryder Cup players reached our peak too soon for the British Open. Carnoustie wasn't fair. Why, they had traps in the center of the fairway 230 yards out that would catch a perfect shot. We had to play safely by playing to the right or left. Can you imagine that?

"I don't care for the British sportsmanship I saw in the Ryder Cup matches, either. After winning my match, I went out to watch Henry Cotton and Tony Manero. On one hole, Cotton had reached the green in the regulation two shots, while Tony was short of the green with his second. Tony wanted about 6 or 7 feet leeway so he could swing his club, but the unsportsmanlike galleryites wouldn't give it to him.

"Also I noticed they'd never-cheer us until we made a mistake."

Guldahl, the type of a fellow who always says what he thinks and lets the repercussions take care of themselves, says he plans to play in the Chicago and St. Paul Opens and then go on the Northwest tour.

"Going right over to England after winning the open was a rather tough break for me financially," he said, "but I hope to do well with the title. I should do better than Sam Parks and Manero, as I won in a better year."

"My advice," chimed in Manero, "is to go in for more radio and movie shorts. Exhibitions and indorsements are okay, but they don't bring in enough dough."

The returning Ryder Cuppers—all came back on the Berengaria except Walter Hagen, who is continuing his world tour with Joe Kirkwood, and Gene Sarazen, who came back last week—were not so high on Cotton, who beat them out for the British Open crown.

"He's good," said Guldahl, "but maybe he wouldn't go much better here than we did in the British Open. Courses are different, you know."

Leonard Dodson, Coltart in Tie

Concordville, Pa., July 20 (AP).—Bruce Coltart, Woodcrest (N. J.) professional, who led the field by five strokes at the halfway point, will meet Leonard Dodson, Springfield, Mo., in a play-off tomorrow for the Philadelphia Open golf title.

They ended the 72-hole test today with scores of 284, Coltart posting 73 on the last two laps and Dodson turning in a brilliant 69 and 70. Par for the Concord Country Club, where the tourney was played, is 70.

Dodson made up seven strokes on the early leader over a wet course that threw Coltart back from his par-shattering golf of yesterday. Coltart was two under part for the first 36 holes. Charles Schneider, of the home club, and Matt Kowal, of Philmont, Pa., were tied with 287.

Injured Back Forces Bronko To Cancel Bout

Bronko Nagurski, recognized world's wrestling champion, will be unable to go through with his title one-fall-to-a-finish match with Cliff Olsen tomorrow night, at Griffith Stadium, due to a leg and side injury suffered while diving into a pool at Philadelphia yesterday.

Scheduled to appear in Philadelphia last night before a reported sell-out crowd of 10,000 against Ernie Dusek, and tonight in Baltimore, the former Minnesota All-American football hero was forced to cancel all engagements for this week.

A commission doctor, examining the Bustin' Bronko in the Quaker City a few hours after the mishap, said "it will be impossible for him to wrestle for at least five days.

Immediately upon learning of the cancellation of Nagurski's Washington debut, Promoter Joe Turner signed up Steve (Crusher) Casey, outstanding challenger from Ireland, for the match with Olsen. Casey was to have appeared here last month, but his match was rained out. In his lone appearance this past winter at Turner's Arena, Casey easily pinned Stanley Pinto, the Bohemian Bomber.

The luncheon in honor of Nagurski to be given today at 12:15 at Harrington Hotel by the Touchdown Club, the Minnesota State Society and the Minnesota Alumni Association has been postponed until Nagurski's next match in Washington.

Ernie Sutter Out Of Tennis Play

New York, July 20 (U.P.).—The second upset of the Eastern clay court tennis championships was registered today when Ernie Sutter, national intercollegiate champion from New Orleans, was eliminated by an unseeded player in a third-round match.

Sutter, second seeded star of the tourney, was away off his usual game and committed ten double faults as he lost, 7—5, 7—5, to Jack Mahoney, 22-year-old University of Virginia sophomore from New York.

Top-seeded Johnny McDiarmid, former Texan, living in Princeton, N. J., advanced into the fifth round when his third-round opponent defaulted and he defeated John Nogrady, of New York, 7—9, 6—4, 6—1, in his next test.

Robert Jake Winner In Boy's Tournament

Milwaukee, Wis., July 20 (U.P.).—Robert Jake, Milwaukee, top-seeded in the boys' division, defeated Jack Bremermann, New Orleans, 6—1, 4—6, 7—5, in the Badger State open tennis tournament today.

Walter Pearson, Muskogee, Okla., defeated George Collentine, Milwaukee, 6—3, 6—2, in the men's singles and Grace Markham, Milwaukee, defeated Mrs. Ruth Cain, Beloit, Wis., 6—0, 6—4, in the women's event.

Allison Victor At Brookline In Comeback

Defeats Harty, 6—2, 6—4, in Second Round of Historic Tourney.

Brookline, Mass., July 20 (AP).—Wilmer Allison, the Austin, Tex., tennis veteran, did not appear hampered by his injured right arm today as he opened his campaign to retire the historic Longwood Bowl by defeating Richard Harty, of Brookline and Dartmouth, 6—2, 6—4, in a second-round match.

Six of the other seeded players kept pace with Allison, who topped the draw, and the list suffered a slight denting when Owen Anderson, of Los Angeles, who was ranked fifth, failed to appear.

Allison, who won this tourney in 1929 and 1934, will take the eighth Longwood Bowl—which includes such famous names as Bill Johnston, Bill Tilden, Gerald Patterson, the Australian, and Johnny Doeg—out of competition with another victory.

Bob Harman, of Los Angeles, ranked second to Allison, was the only one of the seeded stars to gain the third round without a contest. He advanced when George Dunn, of Wilmington, Del., defaulted. The third-ranking Dick Murphy, of Boston, the 1933 winner, overcame doughty Everett Collins, of Longmeadow, 6—4, 6—3, and Gardner Mulloy, of Miami, seeded fourth, romped through R. B. Eckman, of Boston, for a 6—2, 6—1 victory.

Alfred Jarvis, Tenafly, N. J., and Paul Guibord, of Melrose, seeded sixth and seventh, had easy assignments eliminating L. B. Gilkey, Chicago, and Leighton Brewer, Boston, by 6—2, 6—4 and 6—3, 6—3 margins. But the eighth favored player, Gilbert Hunt, of Washington, was extended turning back David Burt, of Old Lyme, Conn., 6—4, 7—5.

Washington Fans Honor Tiger Star

Hagerstown, July 20.—Several hundred hometown admirers and baseball fans of Washington County, headed by City Treasurer D. Lee Staley, president of the Washington County Baseball League, are planning to go to Washington during the baseball series between Washington and Detroit August 6, 7 and 8, to stage a "Boot's Poffenberger Day."

The delegation will honor Poffenberger, star rookie hurler of the Tigers, who is a resident of Williamsport, Washington County. Poffenberger will start one of the games against Washington, Staley has been assured by the Tigers management.

Cochrane in Uniform, Indulges in Workout

Detroit, July 20 (AP).—Mickey Cochrane, the Detroit Tigers' catcher-manager, donned a uniform today for the first time since he suffered a skull fracture last May and worked out a short time with his team.

Mickey was careful not to overexert himself, but caught a few balls during the morning workout. After talking with the players, he left before game time to go fishing.

BASEBALL'S BIG SIX/

Two hits in four trips to the plate at Boston yesterday tacked another point back onto the batting average of Joe Medwick, giving the Cardinal cloutter a percentage of .412, 27 points better than that of any other member of the "Big Six."

A new member appeared in veteran Sam West of the St. Louis Browns, who edged the Senators' Cecil Travis out of third place in the American League with a four-for-nine performance against the Yanks.

Billy Dee, Alleged Originator Of Curve Ball Throwing, Dies

By the Associated Press.

Chester, N. J., July 20.—William (Billy) Dee, 73, who often told how he fooled opposing batsmen with what he called the first curve ball in baseball history, died today.

A sandlot pitcher, Dee said he threw the first curve 56 years ago, purely by accident. He was tossing a few fast ones when the seam on the ball cover tore and Dee's finger caught in it. The result, he said, was an amazing outcurve.

Practice enabled him to throw a curve without a torn seam, and Dee showed his stuff in the opening game, June 5, 1881. He retired the batters one, two, three.

"Most batters didn't know what a curve ball was, anyhow," Dee said. "So I used to throw first a wide outcurve and then a close incurve to drive them back. I'd follow this with an 'out' low down and then a fast one close. Then I'd go through the same fuor again in the same order.

Dee pitched for 21 years, but was too small for the big leagues. When he retired he opened a small store here. He was ill only a short time.

on any afternoon since July 5, when they won their last game, came right back against Lee in the seventh to give Farrell a 3-3 tie. Mel Almada singled sharply to right and then scooted to second when Walker toyed with the ball. He languished there while Lewis popped up and Bluege grounded out but Simmons—that man again—belted a single into left and Almada was home.

Newly advised of his fatherhood, Joe Kuhel gallantly attempted to get the Nats in front again. He singled to open the eighth inning and he singled again with two out in the tenth, but no help was forthcoming from his pals and finally the Nats' losing streak reached round figures.

Wheat Prices Crumble Under Heavy Selling

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 20.—Collapsing under a big burden of selling that found buyers relatively scarce, the Chicago wheat market fell 5⅝ cents a bushel maximum today. Much of the selling of wheat was of a stop-loss character, and came from holders who were pessimistic because general public demand for futures had failed to broaden as expected. A reason which trade specialists gave for this failure was talk current that spring wheat crop losses both sides of the Canadian border had been over-estimated.

Persistent heavy marketing of newly harvested domestic winter wheat counted, too, as a factor on the side of lower prices, and so likewise did comparative dearth of export demand for wheat from North America.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 4½@5⅛ cents under yesterday's finish. July, 1.21¾; September, $1.21½@1.21⅝; December, 1.23⅛@1.23⅜; corn, 1 cent to 5 cents down, July, $1.23; September, $1.06½@1.06⅝; December, 76½@76⅝; oats, 1⅛@2⅜ off, September, 34⅛@34¼, and rye showing 3⅜@7⅜ drop, September, 85¼. In provisions, the outcome ranged from 15 cents decline to 25 cents advance.

20 Big Banks Increase Loans Billion in Year

Holdings of U. S. Government Securities Decline by Same Total.

New York, July 20.—The 20 largest banks in the United States, in their current June 30 statements, reveal an increase in their loans since June 30, 1936, of about a billion dollars, while their holdings of United States Government securities, direct and guaranteed, declined in the same period a little over a billion dollars, according to a summary published today in the American Banker.

The billion-dollar increase in loans, therefore, was not attended by an increase in deposits, but rather was financed by funds transferred from the Government securities account.

Comparison of deposits, loans and Government securities holdings as of June 30, this year and a year ago, is given as follows by the American Banker:

(In billions of dollars.)

The Market

Stocks Advance Further in More Active Trading; Wheat Breaks; Sterling at New High.

New York, July 20.—Grain prices cracked under the strain of an uproarious speculation and in the Chicago market the wheat futures fell the limit of 5 cents a bushel. September wheat closed at 121⅛ cents. Other commodities were steady and dull. Bonds hardened, beginning with the Government list, and the stock market looked more like a bull affair than it has in weeks. With a turnover of around 1,250,000 shares prices moved up in all directions, closing near the best with gains of 1 to 3 points among the favorites.

In its general outlines the stock market was similar to that of yesterday. Improvement is based on a sounder foundation. The gold scare has vanished. It looks as though a lasting brake on radical legislation will be placed upon the Administration, and good crops promise to make up the stimulation to trade missed this summer by the decline in high Government spending. Under those circumstances the advance in stocks is likely to gather momentum.

From the bullish view the most promising feature of the recent markets is the rise in trading volume with hardening prices. Sales turnover today advanced well beyound a million shares for the first time in two weeks. As usual, United States Steel common stock gave the market its tone. Virtually the same performance in the shares was givn as was seen yesterday and, in fact, for several days. The opening price was a fraction higher with a block of 4,000 shares. After a further advance the stock backed and filled, with a revival in the last hour.

Chrysler Strong.

Another feature of the trading was Chrysler, which was shoved up 3 or 4 points in exurbant dealings which looked somewhat to be a contest with Steel for supremacy. General Electric again was steady to firm, but its pace slackened. As a replacement for that industrial issue traders found much life in New York Central, regarded as rather a dead one for several weeks.

Other railroad stocks managed to continue the climb begun a day or two ago. At their best the group moved up 1 to 3 points. Southern, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe and Pennsylvania were strong. Railroad stocks are now on the average at about the price level occupied on June 12. Industrials on the other hand have, since June 29, recovered all ground lost in the retreat beginning April 23.

Public utility shares, also a much neglected group, were heartened by market developments and some of them looked almost buoyant. Consolidated Edison was a favorite. Utilities Power & Light softened. Western Union climbed more than a point on the opener. North American, Electric Power, American Power and American Telephone brought higher prices. Standard Gas issues were healthy. Local tractions gained 1 to 2 points.

Metal shares found ready buyers. International Nickel was a leader. Anaconda did rather better than Kennecott most of the time, although Kennecott voted another special dividend. Smelters was steady to firm. Howe Sound continued in favor. Greene jumped 9 points.

Mail Order Stocks.

In spite of the bad break in grain prices, the speculation in farm implements and mail orders continued. Montgomery Ward, Deere, Harvester and others moved along. Allis Chalmers ran into profit taking. Miscellaneous preferred stocks, including Steel, found takers at 2 to 5 points higher.

Money market changes were inconsequential. New issues this week are turning out to be small. Some chance to breathe was promised the Government market by the Secretary of the Treasury, who suggested no new borrowing until next September, at least, and on that date nothing more than refunding may take place. It is understood by that the Treasury does not mean it will take less money from the market, for it is building up its cash balances by higher weekly issues of discount bills.

Among the foreign exchanges sterling again attracted attention by rising to another new high price, just short of $5. At $4.99 the pound reached a point which suggests some intervention by the British control fund to force it down a little, as it is unlikely the British would care to see such a high dollar value for the pound persist. Francs were fairly steady here, but were weak in London, where most of the French capital is held or is finding its way. Meanwhile gold is coming this way in larger volume.

Gold Buying Resumed.

With the rise in sterling to a new high, fine gold fell to a new low in London. For the first time since July 6 American banks were able to buy some of the metal, offered at fixing time, for resale to the United States Treasury. With the disappearance of the premium at which gold has been selling there may be further shipments of this kind in addition to Dutch and other consignments which, with arrivals of Japanese Government gold at San Francisco, are causing the inactive gold fund to rise steadily. The sterilized gold pile today went above $1,200,000,000.

Banking Position.

Figures of weekly reporting member banks in leading cities as of July 14 disclose that while New York City banks were contracting loans by $41,000,000 and total loans and investments by $92,000,000, the trend of bank credit in other cities was rising. All the banks reported a decrease of only $20,000,000 in loans and a drop of only $54,000,000 in loans and investments. For all banks the decrease in loans was in brokers and dealers' advances, amounting to $69,000,000, the bulk of it being in New York and this was mostly offset by expansion of $62,000,000 in commercial, agricultural and industrial advances not secured by securities. Banks here disposed of $38,000,000 of Government securities. Banks in other cities maintained their portfolios intact. There was a general increase in demand deposits in all districts, except Philadelphia, the increase for all the reporting banks being $176,000,000.

Corporate Profits 21% Over Year Ago

New York, July 20 (AP).—Profits of the first 51 companies reporting for the second quarter this year were 21 per cent above the same period in 1936, a compilation by the Associated Press showed today. Net income for the group totaled $84,545,159, compared with $69,717,473 a year earlier. The 21 per cent gain in the latest three months contrasted with an upturn of 5 per cent in the first six months over the like period of 1936.

Cotton Futures Break $1.50 a Bale

New York, July 20 (AP).—Cotton broke about $1.50 a bale from early moderate rallies today and into new low ground for the movement. December sold off from 12.04 to 11.75 and closed at 11.82, with final prices 11 to 15 points net lower.

Stock Seat $93,000, Advance of $3,000

New York, July 20 (AP).—The price of Stock Exchange seats rose a little today, a trend which brokers attributed to the mid-year advance in the share list. Arrangements were made for transfer of a membership at $93,000, up $3,000 from the previous transaction.

Last June, when the market was in the doldrums two seats sold at $85,000 each, the lowest in about two years. Highest price paid this year was $125,000 in March.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, July 20 (AP) (U. S. Dept. Agr.).—Trading was slow in the wool market today. A few buyers made occasional bids but prices were below the firm asking prices.

Most buyers for mills and top makers, however, made no effort to take wool. Wool houses, on the other hand, accepted the situation as seasonal quietness pending developments in the goods market.

While asking prices generally could not be realized, there was no indication of a disposition to shade quotation in an effort to find outlets for wool.

$100,000,000 Bills 3 Times Subscribed

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthmau announces that the tenders for two series of Treasury bills, to be dated July 21, 1937, which were offered on July 16, have been opened at the Federal Reserve banks.

Tenders were invited for the two series to the aggregate amount of $100,000,000, or thereabouts, and $301,426,000 was applied for, of which $100,151,000 was accepted.

Another Big Pulp Mill To Be Built in South

Raleigh, N. C., July 20.—Immediate expansion of the pulpwood industry in North Carolina was announced today by R. Bruce Etheridge, director of the State Board of Conservation and Development, who revealed that another large mill would be located near Acme, N. C., within six months.

Around 130,000 acres of pine timberland in Columbus and Brunswick counties has been purchased by the Riegel Paper Corporation, of New York, from the Waccamaw Lumber Co., and bleachable sulphate pulp will be shipped to the company's four paper-producing plants in New Jersey. The Riegel company will cut no timber from its holdings for 15 or 20 years, President John L. Riegel announced, but will buy around 75,000 cords of wood annually from other landholders in the section.

MRS. ELY CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Trap Hands.

Certain hands offer natural pitfalls to the optimistic bidder. The one described below is a typical example. North apparently had a good fit with both suits bid by his partner and had, in addition, persuasive honor strength and distribution. Nevertheless, his slam-try was unsound in that it jeopardized a game merely to investigate slam possibilities.

South, dealer.

North: ♠ 9 ♡ J 10 5 ◇ A 10 7 6 ♣ A Q 10 6 5
West: ♠ K Q 5 ♡ A K 2 ◇ 8 4 ♣ 9 8 7 3 2
East: ♠ 10 8 7 6 4 3 2 ♡ 7 4 ◇ Q 5 3 ♣ J
South: ♠ A J ♡ Q 9 8 6 3 ◇ K J 9 2 ♣ K 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	5 ◇	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	6 ◇	Pass
Pass	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

South's bid, though not robust, was beyond criticism. In addition to a five-card major suit his honor trick holding, including plus values, totaled practically three. North's two club bid was, of course, correct, and over two diamonds his jump preference bid of three hearts was as good a call as he could find. When South merely went to game in hearts however, North should have thought twice before making the five diamond slam-try. South had shown no additional strength after his opening bid. It is quite true that he could have held a minimum hand that would have produced a slam with a little luck, but this would have involved the holding of precisely the right cards. On the contrary, he could hold a great many hands above minimum strength that would offer very poor or no play for a slam. North should have visualized South hands such as the following:

1. ♠ 7 6 ♡ A K 7 4 3 ◇ K Q 8 5 ♣ 7 4
2. ♠ A 6 ♡ K Q 7 4 3 ◇ K J 8 4 ♣ 7 4
3. ♠ K Q ♡ A Q 8 6 4 ◇ Q J 8 3 ♣ K 5
4. ♠ K 5 ♡ A 8 6 4 3 ◇ K Q J 5 ♣ K J

All of these hands would be possible according to South's actual bidding, yet none of them would offer good slam possibilities. With Hand No. 1 South would lose a spade trick probably on the opening lead, and later would almost surely lose a heart or a club. Hand No. 2 would be off the Ace of trump, and it would then take great luck to avoid the loss of a trick in either clubs or diamonds. Hand No. 3 would lose a spade trick, and later probably require both the heart and diamond finesses. Hand No. 4 would certainly fail; a spade would be lost on the opening lead and a trump trick would be a certain loser. Yet most of the hands listed are definitely above minimum bids.

It follows then that North's optimism over slam chances was not justified and, although South did not have to accept his slam-try and could have signed off at five hearts, or could have passed the five diamonds, the fat was already in the fire.

At the actual six diamond contract, West opened the King and Ace of hearts, East echoed, and a third round was ruffed. Five hearts, also, could have been defeated by a club opening. West would win the first heart lead and give East a club ruff for the setting trick.

Mrs. Thomas Dies; Rites in Arlington

Mrs. Agnes C. Thomas, 56, wife of the late Lieut. Anthony Thomas and a resident of Washington for the past 10 years, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital after a month's illness.

Although Mrs. Thomas was married in Washington she did not make her home here until 1927. She was a native of St. Paul, Minn., and a member of the Starlight Lodge, Royal Neighbors of America, there.

She leaves two sons, Edwin F. Thomas, with whom she made her home at 2229 Bancroft place northwest, and Joseph A. Thomas of Atlanta, Ga., and a daughter, Mrs. Helen A. Walker, of Washington.

Funeral services will be tomorrow at 10 a. m. in St. Matthew's Catholic Church, 1727 Rhode Island avenue northwest. She will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mrs. L. T. Sturgis, D. C. Employe, Dies

Mrs. Louise T. Sturgis, 69, for the past 20 years secretary to Dr. John R. Noble, chief bacteriologist in the District Health Department, died yesterday in Casualty Hospital.

A native of Frederick, Md., she lived here for 54 years, and recently made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Norman Luber, 18 Eighth street southeast. Besides her daughter she is survived by two brothers, John Thomas Tabler, of this city, and Urner Tabler, of Los Angeles, Calif., and four grandchildren, Norma, Patricia, Kenneth and Donald Luber, all of Washington. Her husband, the late Charles Sturgis, died in 1906.

Private funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the W. W. Chambers chapel at 517 Eleventh street southeast.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

The franc again touched a ten-year low while the British pound reached a 1937 high in foreign exchange dealings yesterday as principal world monetary units grated against the dollar under the confusion of the French budgetary crisis.

The Holland guilder was in demand and also scored a 1937 high. Some traders attributed the unit's rise to the reduction in Amsterdam of the buying rate against the dollar which would automatically send the guilder up. Others assigned the jump to switching of French and Dutch balances from New York to Amsterdam and London in response to tax fears.

The franc lost .00½ of a cent at 3.75 cents, the lowest since 1926. Ninety-day futures for each around .16 of a cent below the spot rate. The British pound gained .01 of a cent to be quoted at $4.98¼. The Holland guilder rose .13 of a cent to 55.23 cents. The Swiss franc and marks also scored gains.

The London moderate offerings of United States dollars against the purchase of sterling sent the American unit down one cent. The dollar closed at 4.98¾ to the pound compared with $4.97.5 for sterling in New York overnight. Francs were weaker at 132.94 to the pound against 131.81 yesterday.

The dollar in Paris was quoted at the equivalent of 3.767 cents to the franc at the close in comparison with New York's final rate for the franc yesterday of 3.759 cents.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, July 20.—Transatlantic stocks were active and strong in the early dealings today, especially International Nickel and U. S. Steel. Oils and mining issues were also firm and the industrial group was in fair demand. European bonds moved irregularly and the gilt-edged division was somewhat easier.

Paris—The bourse closed with a generally firm tone although international issues sold lower. Rentes finished with net gains of 135 to 185 centimes. Royal Dutch moved up 82 francs and Bank of France shares were 195 francs higher. Suez Canal reacted from the high of the day and closed with a net gain of 75 francs.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures closed easy, ½d to 2d net lower in sympathy with the weakness in today's Winnipeg market and heavy July tenders. Cotton futures rallied on speculative buying and covering and closed 4 to 5 points up. Favorable views regarding developments in the Chinese-Japanese situation were influencing factors.

NLRB Rebukes Oregon Board For Union 'Bias'

Orders Portland Firm to Cease Interference With Employes.

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday held that the Oregon State Conciliation Board had shown "flagrant bias" in favor of the Oregon Worsted Co., of Portland, Oreg., in efforts to settle a strike there last winter. The NLRB also issued an order to the firm to stop interfering with its employes' rights to join the union of their choice.

The case was based on a complaint by the United Textile Workers, the union through which the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization is striving to organize the textile industry.

Chairman Everson, of the State board, was called "hostile" to the union case, in the NLRB findings, which said that from the State board's "deliberate disregard" of Federal board findings "we cannot fail to conclude that the State board exhibited a flagrant bias toward respondent which utterly belied its position as an impartial agency for conciliation."

At the same time the NLRB announced a stipulation by which the Dickson-Jenkins Manufacturing Co., Inc., of Fort Worth, Tex., agrees to stop discouraging membership in the United Garment Workers, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, and a company union in the concern's plant agrees not to attempt to act as a labor organization.

LaGuardia Hails White Compliment

New York, July 20 (AP).—William Allen White's suggestion in the Emporia (Kans.) Gazette that Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York, is a potential presidential candidate drew from the mayor this comment today:

"This is the first kind word I have heard from a Republican in a long time. I appreciate the compliment. Of course, I understand it is only that . . .

"I shall continue my nonpartisan administration as in the past and will not permit my usefulness as mayor to be impaired by any other activity."

Dorsey A. Allin's Rites Tomorrow

Dorsey A. Allin, 62, known to Takoma Park as "Pop" Allin, will be buried tomorrow in Rock Creek Cemetery following funeral services in his home at 221 Holly avenue, Takoma Park, where he died Monday night after an illness of six months. He had lived in Takoma Park for 23 years.

"Pop" Allin for nine years operated a restaurant in Silver Spring. Before that he had been a grocery chain store manager in Washington and earlier operated a stand in the old K street market.

Surviving are his wife, Catherine and two daughters, Mrs. Marie Ellis, of Silver Spring, and Mrs. Katherine Eakle, of Takoma Park.

The Rev. Claude Forcey of the Non-Sectarian Tabernacle in Takoma Park will conduct the funeral.

Bulls and Autos Clash, Terrify Jacksonville

A large gentleman cow attacked a car occupied by two Jacksonville men, bashed in a rear door and pursued the car down the road.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Atwood stopped to watch two bulls battling on the New Berlin road. Suddenly one charged the Atwood car. Result: One dead bull, front wheels knocked off car, cuts and bruises for the Atwoods.

Three Women Fined On Birth Control Count

Salem, Mass., July 20 (AP).—Three women, a doctor, a nurse and the wife of a physician, were convicted today of disseminating information on birth control and were fined $100 each. They appealed.

District Judge George B. Sears handed down the decision against Dr. Lucille Lord-Heinstein, of Salem; Mrs. Flora Rand, Brookline, the nurse, and Mrs. Carolyn P. Ardner, of Salem.

Girl, 6, Dies of Burns After Dress Is Ignited

Hurline Bailey, 6-year-old colored girl, died at Gallinger Hospital last night from burns suffered when her clothes were ignited from an oil stove yesterday. Her mother had washed the child's hair, and left her to dry it near the oil stove. She backed into the stove, and her dress caught on fire.

She was taken to Children's Hospital, and later transferred to Gallinger, where she died. Her home was at 1524 Twelfth street northwest.

$5,000 Compensation For Burns Authorized

President Roosevelt signed yesterday a bill to pay James H. Smith, of this city, $5,000 for X-ray burns received by him in August, 1922, and March, 1923, while employed at the U. S. Veterans Hospital, at Dwight, Ill., and the Veterans' Bureau regional office at Lexington, Ky.

Plea for Youth Heard By Lions Delegates

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—An estimated 10,000 delegates to the twenty-first annual convention of Lions International heard Edwin R. Kingsley, of Parkersburg, W. Va., president, plead for "specialized attention for underprivileged boys and girls" at the opening of a four-day convention today.

Kingsley said it is the underprivileged children "from whose ranks are recruited each year a large proportion of the criminal element."

Machines Reducing Number of Farms

By the Associated Press.

The machine age threatens to concentrate agricultural production on fewer and larger farms, a group of Government experts reported to President Roosevelt yesterday.

The national resources committee, in a study of the effect of mechanical development upon man power, said:

"The advance of technology in agriculture has tended to widen the gap in general well-being between farmers who are able to embrace it and those who are unable to utilize the fruits of science and invention. This gap is certain to widen. . . . the man with the hoe and the man with the tractor are not competitive equals where they are engaged in the same type of farming."

Concentration of production upon fewer farms would compel smaller farmers to migrate to the cities to compete for jobs with industrial workers, the report said.

Rev. James Doheny Heads D. C. College

South Bend, Ind., July 20 (AP).—The Very Rev. James A. Burns announced here tonight the re-election of the Rev. John O'Hara as president of the University of Notre Dame for a second three-year term.

Father O'Hara will be replaced at the end of the second term under Canon law, which permits only a six-year incumbency.

Father Burns said the Rev. Patrick Haggerty was named president of St. Edward's University, Austin, Texas, succeeding the Rev. Joseph Maguire. The Rev. James J. Doheny was elected superior of Holy Cross College, Brookland, Washington, D. C., succeeding the Rev. Francis McBride. The Rev. Michael Early was renamed vice president of the University of Portland Oreg.

John F. Callan Dies Here at 70

John F. Callan, a life-long resident of Washington, and for the past six years financial secretary of the Northeast Citizens' Association, died suddenly yesterday at his residence, 108 Eighth street northeast.

Death came at the home where he was born 70 years ago. He had lived there all his life, and for many years ran a tinning and heating business with offices in the basement of his residence. He was a member of the Holy Name Society, St. Joseph's Catholic Church, and at one time of the Knights of Columbus.

He leaves two sons, John L. Callan and Joseph I. Callan and two daughters, Mrs. Rose Springman, and Miss Gertrude Callan, all of Washington, and a third daughter, Mrs. Irene C. Digley, of Baltimore; a brother Edward S. Callan, and a sister, Mrs. Marie Nolan, of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at his residence tomorrow at 8:30 a. m. with requiem mass in St. Joseph's Church at 9. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Isabella Kearney Dies in Arlington

Isabella Eliza Kearney, 75, died yesterday at her residence, 931 North Edgewood street, Arlington, Va., after many years' illness.

She was a native of New York City, and graduate of Sacred Heart Convent there. She was the daughter of the late Charles and Isabella Kearney, and her father was one of the first trustees of St. Patrick's Cathedral there. She leaves a brother, Charles R. Kearney, and a sister, Florence Kearney, both of Arlington.

Funeral services will be at the residence tomorrow, with requiem mass in St. Charles Church at Clarendon, Va. Burial is to be in Columbia Gardens Cemtery in Arlington.

10 Hurt in Riot At Steel Plant In Cumberland

By the Associated Press.

Cumberland, Md., July 20.—A brief flare of fighting at the gates of a Republic Steel subsidiary here left ten persons injured today. Four of them received hospitalization.

Police said the battle started when pickets at the gate of the N. & G. Taylor Tin Mill tried to halt maintenance men entering the plant. A coupe containing two maintenance men crashed into a pole, hurting the four most seriously injured.

Police said another six were hurt in the fighting which followed. These were all taken away by pickets, the officers said.

Police said the crowd around the driveway of the plant contained 200 strikers and sympathizers. The city council recently passed an ordinance, effective Thursday, limiting the number of pickets to six.

After the fighting most of the crowd left quickly. A few hours later only 30 men and boys were around the gates. Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman ordered all cars parked in the area removed.

The plant has been closed since May 26.

Editors Pay Visit To Ford's Village

Detroit, July 20 (AP).—Publishers and editors of nearly 400 small-town daily and weekly newspapers visited Henry Ford's Greenfield Village after hearing discussions of press freedom.

De Loss Walker, editor of Liberty Magazine, told the delegates "only individual effort by editors, their never-ending seeking of the truth, has kept the press free; and it is only the individual effort of editors that can keep it free in the future."

Tomorrow will see action on the invitation of James Stahlman, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, to join the recently formed "newspaper committee" in opposition to closed editorial shops.

Meeting Called On D. C. Suffrage

Formation of an organization to press for enfranchisement of Washington's voteless half million was proposed last night in a call for a meeting to be held at 8 p. m. Friday in the boardroom of the District Building.

The call was issued by Wilbur S. Finch, temporary chairman of a group of Washington citizens who recently decided to attempt formation of a city-wide organization to fight for the right to vote.

Over Finch's name an invitation has been sent to representative groups throughout the city and to all other persons believed interested.

"Individuals and organizations in increasing numbers are coming to the fore in demanding suffrage for the citizens of the District," a statement accompanying the invitation declared, adding:

"It is believed that there has never been or will be for some time to come a more propitious time than the present for effective action."

Knudsen Accuses Automotive Union

Detroit, July 20 (AP).—William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, accused the United Automobile Workers of America tonight of not adhering to the grievance procedure in their agreement before calling strikes.

Knudsen said "the corporation has reiterated its position that ways and means for definitely stopping wildcat strikes must be negotiated before requested changes in the present agreement can be considered."

"It is felt very strongly that without definite guarantees against unwarranted interruptions to production the agreement will continue to be unsatisfactory to both the men and the management," he continued.

Campaign to Block Mine Union Pushed

Movement to form an independent union to combat efforts of the United Mine Workers to organize employes of the Washington Gaslight Co. continued last night.

Approximately 300 of the workmen were at a meeting Monday. Yesterday the association was said to be almost 100 per cent complete. U. M. W. workers, however, said they would continue their activity.

E. J. Boothby, vice president and general manager, said that the company is taking no part in employe organization efforts.

Acid Hurling Gang Hunted by G-Men

Jersey City, N. J., July 20 (U.P.).—An acid-throwing extortion gang which has attempted to terrorize business men was sought tonight by police and Federal agents. One man already was under arrest.

Threats to disfigure the victims' children by throwing acid accompanied demands for $1,000 and $500 from two businessmen, Police Chief Harry Walsh siad. He believed the man arrested was only a tool of the extortionists.

The threats have been received by Charles F. Courtney, president of the Solar Realty Co., and Harry Wycoff, president of the Wycoff Realty Co., each the father of three children.

W. C. Stettinius, Financier, Dies At Baltimore

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 20.—William Carrington Stettinius, 41, Baltimore financier and son of the late Edward R. Stettinius, former Assistant Secretary of War and J. P. Morgan partner, died here today. Physicians said his death was caused by uremic poisoning.

Born in Chicago, he came to Baltimore in 1920. In recent years he had been associated with the brokerage firm of D. Barney & Co., of New York and Baltimore, and was a director of the Worthington Pump & Machinery Co., the Pathe Exchange and other companies.

He lived on his estate, Pot Springs, near Loch Haven, a Baltimore suburb. He is survived by his mother, his wife, four children, a brother, Edward R. Stettinius, jr., chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation, and two sisters, Mrs. Juan T. Trippe and Mrs. John B. Marsh, both of New York.

O. O. Kuhn Buried With High Tribute

Oliver Owen Kuhn, managing editor of the Washington Star who died Sunday at Emergency Hospital, was buried yesterday in Rock Creek Cemetery following services in the National City Christian Church, at Thomas Circle.

His friends, many of them Government officials, joined with his family and associates in the Star at the church services as his body lay in state amid floral tributes from individuals and several civic associations in which he had been active.

Messages of sorrow and tributes to Mr. Kuhn's character and his contributions to journalism were received from friends all over the country yesterday, by his widow and officials of the Star.

Bekefi Dancers Appear At Sixth Sylvan Fete

Theodore Bekefi and his dancers will perform at the sixth summer festival in the Sylvan Theater Tuesday at 8 p. m. The program, sponsored jointly by the Community Center Department and the Office of National Capital Parks, will be preceded by a band concert. Tickets will be available beginning tomorrow at the Franklin Administration Building, the American Automobile Association, the Washington Hotel and the Willard Hotel.

16 Suspects Freed, Identification Fails

Sixteen holdup suspects were released after a public police lineup yesterday when only 20 out of more than 60 recent victims appeared at headquarters to attempt identification. Not one positive identification was made.

Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, said more cooperation on the part of robbery victims would be necessary if police efforts to identify criminals are to be effective.

Of the 16 suspects, eight were arrested following the death of Athanasios P. Econom, robbery victim, near the State War and Navy Building last Friday night.

The body of Econom is at Chamber's funeral parlors, 517 Eleventh street southeast, where services will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. Mass at St. Sophia Greek Church, Eighth and L streets northwest, will be at 2, with burial in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Fur Fashion Show.

The new 1938 models will be displayed by mannequins at a fur fashion show conducted by William Rosendorf on the terrace of the Shoreham tonight, tomorrow night and Friday, it was announced last night.
